HARGIS MEN APPLY TORCH

Attempted to Cremate Witnesses for Prosecution While Asleep.

PLAN IS FRUSTRATED

Capt. Ewen's Hotel Is Burned and He Is Ruined—Occupants Rescued.

JURY IS NOW INTIMIDATED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Jackson, Ky., June 14.—With audacity unparalleled even in the bloody chronicles of Breathitt county, the Hargis faction this morning attempted to cremate 30 witnesses for the commonwealth in the cases against Curtis Jett and Thomas White for the assassination of Marcum and Cockrill. The City hotel, in which these witnesses were lodging, which was the property of Capt. B. J. Ewen, also a star witness for the prosecution, was fired by an incendiary of the Hargis faction and completely destroyed, the occupants being rescued by soldiers.

Two suspected incendiaries were arrested. County Judge Hargis and Sheriff Callahan became their bondsmen.

The burning of the hotel is only accessory to other acts of intimidation in connection with the pending trial. It has openly been predicted that arson would go along with assassination, as disciplinary measures might be needed in Breathitt county. It is now stated that other witnesses for the commonwealth are not property owners, but that the jurors, who are farmers, and witnesses who could not be found when detachments of troops were trying to bring them into court, are property owners. The burning of Ewen's property not only has caused renewed fear for life and property, but has also increased the general doubt of conviction of either of the prisoners.

Capt. Ewen had recently put up an addition to the hotel. This was just completed and was as yet unoccupied. It was in this part of the hotel that the fire was discovered. The town has no fire department and its citizens were awakened by the firing of pistols and guns and much excitement prevailed. A detachment of militia came from their camp across the river and rendered valuable aid in assisting the guests to escape and preventing the flames from spreading.

Joe Redman, a watchman at the lumber yard of Swan & Day, early today discovered flames issuing from the roof of Ewen's hotel. The alarm was given and Lieut. Kinnard, with the provost guard, turned out to render assistance. Soon hundreds of people were on the scene. Good work by soldiers and citizens saved possibly the entire south side of the town.

The Ewen hotel is at the end of a long row of miners' cottages, all of which were in grave danger. When those in the hotel were notified the fire was under such headway that the guests, who had not arisen, had only time to save part of their clothing.

John Clarey of Louisville, a telegraph operator, was asleep on the second floor. In the excitement he was not awakened until the flames had shut off egress by the front stairway and he had a narrow escape.

Mrs. Ewen and children were poorly clad, and lost everything. The hotel and the furniture had been insured but only a week ago Capt. Ewen was notified that on account of threatening conditions the company had decided to cancel his policy. The house and fixtures were valued at about $10,000. They were the savings of a lifetime, and Ewen and family tonight are homeless and dependent on the hospitality of the troops in the camp.

MACHINE IS FINISHED

120 Horse Power Daimler-Mercedes Now on Ocean En Route to New York.

COST APPROXIMATES $30,000

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, June 14.

What will be the fastest, strongest and most compact touring car ever constructed will be delivered this week to Charles M. Schwab from the Daimler-Mercedes automobile factory of Cannstadt, Germany. It will be 120-horse power, specially built after designs of the owner, and will cost, delivered in New York, nearly $30,000, and will be able to cover a mile in many seconds less than 60. Mr. Schwab is congratulating himself that his handsome machine was not burned in the fire of last Wednesday, which completely destroyed the Cannstadt plant. His machine, he has been instructed, was shipped a few days before the fire and should by this time be on the ocean.

Mr. Schwab is perhaps one of the most devout autoists in New York and his devotion to the machine does not stop at an occasional spin in one of his four cars. He reads much and is familiar with every detail of the most popular cars and keeps in touch with every new patent.

He was anxious to increase the speed of the largest machines and he accordingly turned his mechanical training and his knowledge of the construction and operation of automobiles to good advantage. The new Mercedes was planned entirely by the steel magnate and it is declared to be one of the prettiest and most practical machines ever built. During his recent trip on the continent he rode frequently in a Mercedes machine, which he carried with him from this

HOT PRIMARIES MAY CAUSE DEATH

Westmoreland Democratic Victory Claimed by Doty Men Who Yet Fear.

JOSEPH BROWN NEARLY KILLED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Latrobe, Pa., June 14.—As a result of the heated Democratic primaries yesterday, Joseph Brown, is in a critical condition from concussion of the brain, caused by a blow on the head during a dispute over the selection of the county committeemen. The principals in the affair were Joseph Brown and James Gibson, both well-known political leaders. The discussion became heated and finally the lie was given. Fearing that his father would get the worst of the fist fight that ensued, Robert Gibson interfered and, it is alleged, struck Brown a stunning blow on the temple.

Brown was knocked unconscious and was at first thought to be dead. He was taken to his rooms in the Hotel McHenry, where he remained unconscious seven hours. He is 68 years old and may not recover. His alleged assailant is 30 years old.

GREENSBURG, PA., June 14.—Capt. John B. Keenan's candidates for poor director and jury commissioner were beaten at the Democratic primaries, but both factions claim to have a majority of the county committee, which carries with it control of the county organization. The Keenan men say they have won by a small majority, but have no figures to back their claim. The Doty men are more assertive.

Unofficial returns from outlying precincts received today indicate that the Keenan faction was defeated by an even greater majority than was estimated from early returns. The vote for poor director in one-third of the polling places, comprising over half the total vote, gives the following results: Herman Hamil, Mt. Pleasant township, 2,346; J. Q. Truxal, Southeast Greensburg, 1,946; George W. Megary, Latrobe, 1,228; W. W. Martz, Salem township, 970. If they have the victory the Doty men are apprehensive that they will not long enjoy it. The precinct election officers meet in Greensburg tomorrow to compile the vote. County Chairman Henry S. Ackerman of Greensburg, who was seated by the decision of the state executive committee, and is a leader in the Keenan faction, will call them together. The board of return judges will then be organized by the election of a president, two vice presidents, two secretaries and two tally clerks. Fear is freely expressed tonight that Ackerman will rule this meeting, appointing a committee from the Keenan faction to decide all questions in case of contested districts. If the Doty faction is ignored and their candidates for poor director and jury commissioner are counted out an appeal will not be made to the state executive committee, but suit will be brought in the local courts.

One Red Rose Pays Another Year's Rent.

LANCASTER, PA., June 14.—Rain today interfered somewhat with the annual feast of roses at Manheim, this county. Nevertheless, a great crowd witnessed the quaint and beautiful ceremony of the payment of one red rose by the congregation of Zion Lutheran church to the heirs of Baron Henry William Stiegel, the founder of Manheim, who, in 1770, deeded to the congregation the land on which their church stands with the stipulation that they pay "in the month of June yearly forever hereafter the rent of one red rose, if the same shall be lawfully demanded."

Twice, in 1772 and 1774, Baron Stiegel demanded the rose, and the custom then fell into disuse and was not renewed until 11 years ago. Today the rose was demanded by Mrs. Ida Boyer of Norristown, Pa., a lineal descendant of the baron, and paid by the Rev. Dr. Jacob Yutey of Selins Grove, Pa., on behalf of the congregation.

President Roosevelt Said to Be Determined to Construct Canal Under Rights Purchased from Panama Canal Company.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 75, Postal Building,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.

Does the Roosevelt administration intend to build the Panama canal without a treaty with Colombia?

That is the question being asked everywhere in Washington today. The query is the outgrowth of the statement which President Roosevelt is reported to have made yesterday to William Nelson Cromwell, American representative of the French Panama Canal Company. This was in effect that the United States regards Colombia's obligations as more binding than those of an ordinary treaty and cannot admit the right of the Colombian government to recede from them, and that if not carried out by ratification of the canal treaty, which comes before the Colombian congress on June 20, the United States hopes Colombia will find some other means to discharge its obligations to the United States in regard to the Panama canal.

This is regarded as a practical ultimatum to Colombia, for Mr. Cromwell, who incidentally today would neither confirm nor deny that the president had made this statement to him, will at once transmit whatever the president has said to Bogota for its effect upon the members of the Colombian congress who are opposing the treaty.

The view of the administration is said to be that the purchase of the French Canal Company's franchise to construct a canal by the Panama route carries with it all rights for the United States to perform this work, and therefore the United States, by paying the Panama Company $40,000,000, will have full right to go ahead with the construction of the canal without drawing any treaty with Colombia.

President Roosevelt, soon after Attorney General Knox returned from his investigation of the Panama Company's title in Paris, sought an opinion as to the powers carried to the United States by the franchise. He was, it is understood, informed that the United States acquired the same rights that another company would have acquired by purchase. The treaty, according to this opinion, was a mere extraneous detail so far as the construction of the canal is concerned. It is made a mere instrument to settle embarrassing diplomatic questions of its status in time of war, its relation to Colombian territory on each side and its policing.

The declaration of policy on the part of the United States that Colombia must permit the construction of the canal whether or not the Colombian congress ratifies the treaty is regarded as the most far-reaching development of the canal situation in months. It means, if put into effect, that the United States will regard as inviolate its right to construct the Panama canal and that if Colombia interferes with this right "the United States will take the steps necessary to protect it."

MADE BIG RAID AND PUT OFF TWO POLICE

Oakland Rod and Gun Club Closed—McTighe Says He Was Cheated.

FOUND POKER CHIPS

Inspector Henry W. Whitehouse and Sergt. Calvin Bartley of No. 4 police district were suspended from the service yesterday by Supt. John P. McTighe on charges of insubordination and neglect of their duties as officers. The suspension was the outcome of a raid made early yesterday morning on the Oakland Rod and Gun club at No. 2008 Fifth avenue, when the three proprietors and 30 visitors were arrested and taken to No. 4 police station.

The raid was made by officers from No. 1 police district and Supt. McTighe says this was done because Inspector Whitehouse repeatedly failed to close this resort when he had notice that it existed in his bailiwick. Inspector Whitehouse and Sergt. Bartley will be arraigned for a hearing before the police board next Monday. Inspector Whitehouse did not know of the raid until he came to the police station yesterday morning.

Some time ago Supt. McTighe issued orders to the inspectors of the various police districts that all speakeasies and gambling houses were to be closed. Supt. McTighe says this order has been fulfilled by all the inspectors except Whitehouse. Supt. McTighe spoke to Inspector Whitehouse about the Oakland Rod and Gun club and directed him to make an investigation of the place.

WHITEHOUSE DID NOT REPORT.

Inspector Whitehouse failed to do this. After several warnings on the part of Supt. McTighe he decided to let his officers in the First district make the investigation and close the place. Plain clothes men were detailed to look into this place. Early yesterday morning Inspector Bernard McKay and Captain Matthew Gorman with 15 officers went to the club house.

When they closed in on the place they found the three alleged proprietors, Walter McMichael, Peter Conley and Alexander Hardy and 30 visitors in the place. There were three poker games in progress and the others were sitting about the place drinking. Wagons were summoned from No. 4 police station, and the prisoners were taken to that station house.

Found in the place were 50 cases of beer and whisky, a gambling slot machine and about $400 "stuff" in the drawers of the three poker tables. Supt. McTighe carried on this raid without giving Inspector Whitehouse notice that the officers from the First district were going to invade this territory. Inspector Whitehouse protested his innocence to Supt. McTighe. He said that he understood the Oakland Rod and Gun club was a chartered organization and not a speakeasy.

PROPRIETORS AND VISITORS FINED.

The proprietors and prisoners were arraigned for a hearing before Police Magistrate E. C. Negley yesterday morning. The proprietors were fined $100 each and the visitors $10 each.

When the prisoners were taken to the station house Capt. Bell directed Sergt. Bartley to have the poker chips and cards ready to present as evidence at the hearing. Sergt. Bartley put the chips and cards away, and they could not be found at the hearing. Supt. McTighe was informed of this and served notice on Sergt. Bartley and Inspector Whitehouse they had been suspended.

Capt. Matthew Gorman will have charge of the Fourth district until Inspector Whitehouse's case is disposed of by the police board. Supt. McTighe says

MITCHELL'S MINERS AWAITING THE WORD

Convention at Scranton Today Will Decide Whether or Not the Anthracite War Is to Be Renewed.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WILKESBARRE, PA., June 14.—With the power to involve the country in another coal strike, 700 delegates representing its 147,000 anthracite mine workers, will assemble in Scranton tomorrow. President Mitchell will be at their head and the district presidents will report the action of the coal operators in refusing to recognize them. While most indications point to a peaceful settlement, there are those who fear trouble.

The mine workers are determined to support their district presidents, Nichols, Fahey and Dettrey, and insist upon their being recognized as conciliators.

That the convention is of great importance is indicated by the presence of President Mitchell, who has come on from Indianapolis to preside. He arrived at Scranton this morning. What he will advocate at the meeting in his address to the delegates he will not say, but it is known that he will do much to assure peace and endeavor to have the coal operators come to terms without any suspension of work. He is convinced the public believes the mine workers are right, and that the coal operators in raising the barrier they have over a technicality are wrong, and he hopes that an indorsement will be deemed by the operators equivalent to an election.

Most of the delegates are instructed to vote for this indorsement, but if the operators refuse to accept it as representing the voice of the workers, then it is believed even by the officers of the union that a strike cannot be prevented. Some of the mine workers believe now that the coal operators have broken their pledge to President Roosevelt by failing to live up to the finding of the strike commission, and believe in voting to declare strikes where grievances exist.

The most important grievances are the the following: The demand of the 30,000 Schuylkill region mine workers for an eight-hour day on Saturday instead of the nine they are compelled to work.

The demand of driver boys and others who want a straight nine-hour day and claim they have to work nine and a half to ten hours, contrary to the strike commission's findings.

The demand for the abolition of all wage and labor discrimination.

The demand for the restoration of the wages existing in April, 1902, on which the commission finding is based, in the collieries where reductions have been ordered.

The demand of the rock workers for the ten per cent back pay.

The demand of the Bernice district mine workers for the 10 per cent increase which has been refused them.

The observance of the checking boss provision.

SCRANTON, PA., June 14.—(Special.)—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers, arrived here today. The first business in order tomorrow will be the indorsement of District Presidents Nichols, Fahey and Dettrey as members of the board of conciliation, and in case the coal operators refuse to recognize them the executive board of the three mining districts will be empowered to order a suspension of work.

RUMORS GRIEVE LEO XIII.

Pontiff Believes Unfounded Tales to Be Expression of a Desire for His Death.

ROME, June 14.—Dr. Lapponi, the pope's physician, saw the pontiff today but merely continued the treatment of his indisposition which would not be worth mentioning if it were not for Pope Leo's age. His condition is much improved.

All rumors regarding his indisposition and premature reports of his death are kept from him as far as possible, as they give him much concern, for the pontiff takes them most seriously.

"Why do they want me to be gone?" he exclaims, "I do no one any harm."

It is impossible to make his holiness understand that it is the interest taken in his person which leads to the publication of these rumors.

EX-MAYOR M'KENNA STILL HOLDS TO LIFE

Ex-Mayor Bernard McKenna was still alive at a late hour last night, although reported to be steadily sinking. The patient's tenacious hold on life has been a matter of much wonder to the physicians, who have been expecting his death for several days. Last night they said they could not tell just when the end would come, in view of the remarkable vitality the ex-mayor has shown, but they were confident that he could live but a few hours longer.

PRINCE RUDOLPH ONCE LIVED HERE

Professor Said to Be Austrian Crown Prince Worked in Carnegie Mill.

HE HAS HAD SEVERAL NAMES

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

DES MOINES, IA., June 14.—Prof. Charles H. Hoffman, said to be Prince Rudolph of Austria, as stated in The Gazette this morning, was several years ago a resident of Pittsburgh, and worked in one of the Carnegie mills. He then went under a different name from that he has recently used, and what it was cannot be learned.

After leaving Pittsburgh he was injured by a dynamite explosion in a smelter at Butte, Mont., where he was then employed. Afterward he was in St. Peter's hospital in Minnesota. There he was employed as a bacteriologist, after being cured. He and his friends have constantly insisted that there were no blots on his history, and friends deny emphatically that he is Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria. He is 35 years of age, married and has a child. He is said to be in Marshalltown, Ia., now.

Before he was a member of the faculty of the University of Iowa, from which he recently resigned, he was connected with the faculty of the Iowa medical college, the medical department of Drake university in this city, for two years. Dean Lewis Schooler, who had known that he was living under an assumed name, desired that he produce the diplomas and certificates which would attest his educational standing. Rather than do this and divulge his real name Dr. Hoffman resigned. He had the support of many physicians, however, and opened a successful bacteriological laboratory in Des Moines.

He appeared in this city in May, 1900, wandering in the streets and apparently demented. He was examined by the insanity commission and committed to the hospital at Mount Pleasant. His trouble was a nervous disorder caused by insomnia. He displayed great learning and talked freely, except as to his identity, of which he would say nothing. He was committed under the name of Carl Schwartz.

Leaving the institution cured in three months, he assumed the name of Hoffmann. Under this name the state board of control employed him as state bacteriologist at the institution at Mount Pleasant. From this he entered the faculty of Drake university.

POSTOFFICE CLEAN-UP IS NEARING ITS FINISH

Several Sensational Arrests Will Be Made If Necessary Evidence Is Secured.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, June 14.—It is rumored here today that the postoffice investigation is to be closed this week, not because it has been decided to cork up the scandal, but because the inspectors expect to finish their work and be ready for a complete and full report. It is generally believed that a climax will mark the finish, a climax of fresh disclosures, coupled with a sensational arrest or perhaps two of them.

Postal officials, however, express entire ignorance of this progress. They say that while arrests other than those already made and quite as sensational are on the cards, or at least among the possibilities, they have as yet developed no case to warrant taking a single other man in custody. Nor will they set even an approximate date for the completion of the investigation, of which they say they cannot yet see the end.

L. W. STRAYER.

DOUBLE MURDER; PROBABLE LYNCHING.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 14.—Late tonight there was a double murder at Pittsfield and a lynching is probable. Fred Mink came back from the state of Washington with the avowed intention of killing Newton Harris because the latter denied permission to marry his daughter. After killing Harris, Mink killed his stepmother. He is surrounded in the house by a posse.

YALE EXPERIMENTERS FIND RADIUM IN WATER

This Is Newly Discovered Element Scientists Say Will Supply World's Light and Heat.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 14.—Yale scientists, experimenting along lines laid down by Prof. J. J. Thomson of Cambridge, England, during his recent visit here, have discovered what they technically describe as "radio activity" in water procured from a well in Connecticut that is 1,500 feet deep.

The significance of this announcement lies in the fact that radium, the newly-discovered chemical element, is looked to by scientists to furnish the world's supply of light and heat in the not far distant future. This discovery by the Yale experiments has an important bearing on the development of this theory.

For two months Dr. Lynde Wheeler and Dr. H. A. Bumstead of the Sheffield Scientific school, have been conducting original investigations along the lines suggested by Prof. Thomson, the most eminent physicist in the world, and they have found what appears like one discovery not even made by the great Cambridge scientist in his laboratory. They are confident that they have shown that the presence of radio activity can be almost demonstrated in surface water, at least in some parts of America.

Repeated experiments performed by Drs. Wheeler and Bumstead at Yale with water taken from the city supply at Lake Whitney show the radio activity. Prof. Thomson tried repeatedly to secure similar results from the water of England on different parts of the island without success.

that if he finds that Whitehouse directly and willfully violated his duty he will ask for his dismissal.

"I will not tolerate a cheater in the police service," said Supt. McTighe last night. "I ordered all speakeasies closed, and that order must be obeyed. The other inspectors obeyed the order, but Inspector Whitehouse paid no attention to it. I know he was aware the speakeasy was there, for I told him so. I directed him to close it several times and was surprised at his deliberate delay in not doing so. I gave him several chances and finally I got tired waiting and had the officers in the First district get the evidence and close the place. The other officers under me have to be fair and honest. I won't stand any cheating. As soon as I find them out I will ask for their dismissal. Whitehouse cheated me, and I know it."

ACTIVITY BY THE POLICE.

Alleged Speakeasies and Gambling and Disorderly Houses Were Raided.

The police were active in raiding alleged speakeasies, gambling houses and disorderly houses yesterday. Officers closed in on the house occupied by James Murphy at No. 44 Penn avenue yesterday morning and found six visitors. All will be arraigned for a hearing this morning.

Policeman W. D. Moore made a raid on a crap game at the head of South Eighteenth street yesterday afternoon and succeeded in landing John Trobe of Morgan street in No. 7 police station, charged with violating a city ordinance. A number of complaints have been coming in lately about the games.

The house of Bertha Frisbee, colored, 45 Townsend street, was raided by Lieut. Edward Kennelly last night and the woman, with 15 visitors, was arrested.

Magistrate Negley yesterday had before him besides the Oakland Rod and Gun club crowd Robert Jones, a negro, of No. 2171 Orchard street, charged with keeping a disorderly house. He was fined $50 and five visitors were fined $10 each.

Jennie Bell was fined $50 and costs for keeping a disorderly house at No. 38 Shore alley, and eight visitors in the house were fined $25 each. Charles Neil of 651 Second avenue was fined $25 for the same offense.

HOTELS OF CHICAGO RECOVERING FROM STRIKE

CHICAGO, June 14.—Although no progress was made today toward settling the hotel and restaurant strike in Chicago, still there was noticeable improvement in the service offered by the different establishments where the employes have quit work. All the hotels were open for business, and with few exceptions succeeded in taking care of all guests. The places of the strikers are being filled as fast as help can be imported from outside cities.

BOY KILLED FATHER IN DEFENSE OF MOTHER

EASTMAN, GA., June 14.—Dr. T. J. Buchanan of Eastman, whose brother is a member of the legislature, was shot and instantly killed today by his son, Oglethree. The father had seized a pistol and threatened to kill his wife and children. The wife attempted to wrest the weapon from him. The son, hearing the scuffle, ran into the room with a pistol in hand. It is supposed the discharge of the latter's weapon was accidental, the ball passing through the father's heart.

SERVIAN PARLIAMENT WILL MAKE RADICAL ALTERATIONS IN EXISTING CONSTITUTION

Reassuring Advices Received from Other European Capitals by Self-Nominated Ministry of Balkan Monarchy.

NO INTERVENTION IS PROBABLE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Belgrade, June 15.—At a conference of senators and deputies held here late last night it was unanimously resolved that the constitution voted by the great national assembly in 1888 should be put into force and that Prince Peter Karageorgevitch should be unanimously elected king at today's joint meeting of the skupshtina and senate. After the election a deputation of the assembly will be sent to wait upon Prince Peter and communicate to him the decision of the assembly.

The Servian constitution of 1888 was a more liberal one than any granted previously and provided that all tax-paying citizens should become electors by whose votes the skupshtina was elected. It continued in force until may, 1894, when the late King Alexander, by a coup d'etat, abolished it and restored the illiberal constitution of 1869.

BELGRADE, June 14.—Complete order has prevailed in Belgrade up to 11 o'clock tonight and absolute quiet is reported throughout Servia. The capital wears a much more peaceful aspect even than yesterday. The military has been withdrawn from the public offices and only a few sentries are now guarding the royal palace. Only occasional patrols are seen in the streets, which throughout the day have borne an animated appearance, being crowded with officers, ladies and large numbers of students who have arrived from abroad, it is believed, with the object of demonstrating in favor of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as king.

Some republican tendencies are notable among the students who have studied in France and Switzerland; these latter, however, are quite overshadowed by the opinion of the majority and there seems to be no doubt that the national assembly will tomorrow pronounce in favor of a monarchy and elect Prince Karageorgevitch. The newspapers continue to point out the impossibility of the establishment of a republic and advocate the election of Prince Karageorgevitch in order to assure a brighter epoch in Servian politics.

Politicians and members of the skupshtina have been holding conferences throughout the day and while there are rumors of minor differences the election of Prince Karageorgevitch appears absolutely assured.

CHANGES IN CONSTITUTION.

The skupshtina and the senate will meet jointly at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. It is stated that the ministry desired that the skupshtina shall immediately proceed to elect the king by acclamation. The members of the senate and skupshtina, however, would prefer that a new constitution be adopted first. The radical leaders have prepared a platform for the new constitution upon the lines of that of 1888. The chief points are:

"The king shall not be the commander of the army; the civil and military authorities must swear allegiance to the constitution and not to the king; universal suffrage and the abolition of the senate."

The constitution of 1888 is of a very liberal character and its adoption was approved at a conference held this morning of ministers and those deputies who are already in Belgrade.

The provisional government has received reports from all parts of the country stating that order prevails. Congratulatory addresses have been received by the ministry from a large number of country districts, expressing in the warmest terms thanks for its patriotic action at such a critical moment and hoping that it will carry matters to a successful ending.

FROM FOREIGN CAPITALS.

The foreign ministry has also received satisfactory dispatches from London, Paris, Berlin and Rome, all saying that the governments there have not the slightest intention of intervening in Servia's internal affairs, and expressing the hope that peace and order in the political situation will soon be restored. An official statement of Russia's position has not yet been received, but according to assurances from a reliable source, Russia has no desire to intervene and will not object to the election of Prince Karageorgevitch.

The Official Gazette issued today is confined almost exclusively to the publication of the messages of congratulation received by the provisional government.

It is now known that the murdered Premier Markovics resigned his portfolio only a few hours before his assassination. His action was the result of a difference of opinion with King Alexander concerning the meeting of the new skupshtina. The late king, fearing disturbances, proposed to the premier that the leading members of the opposition parties and the editors of the opposing parties should be arrested before the opening session of the parliament and later tried on the charge of lese majeste or disturbing public order. M. Markovics did not oppose the arrest of these men, but objected to the after procedure and therefore resigned. On returning home he told his wife that he brought good news, that he had resigned his post.

VISITORS TO ROYAL VAULT.

Many persons visited the cemeteries and the royal vault this afternoon, and at the graveside persons were heard saying that what had happened was good and necessary for the nation. Twenty graves were dug by the troops immediately after the assassinations, but only the bodies of two officers and that of Gen. Petrovics were buried therein. At his widow's request the remains of Gen. Petrovics were afterward removed by night to his family vault. The bodies of the late premier, Gen. Markovics, and his son-in-law, Capt. Milkovics, were also buried in their own graves. The widow of the latter was accoucher of a son almost at the moment that her husband was murdered.

It transpires that Queen Draga, in an audience with the foreign minister a few weeks ago, said she lived in deadly fear, not knowing what the day or night might bring forth. She knew, she added, that she was hated by the people and that King Alexander was also detested by his subjects, and she was convinced that the country would prove too strong for both of them.

Various reports are in circulation regarding the value of the late queen's estate, which was said to amount to $2,000,000, chiefly invested in her sister's name in Switzerland and Belgium. A commission is now engaged in making an inventory of the property of the royal couple, and it is thought probable that the total private estate of both will be found not to exceed half the sum mentioned.

KING HAD THICK SKULL.

The autopsy on the king's body showed that he had a skull of the extraordinary thickness of 11 millimeters, whereas the skulls of the strongest men usually measure only six millimeters. The brain was found to be in a catarrhal state and the liver unusually large and surrounded with fat, indicating that the king was an excessive eater and drinker.

Foreign diplomats in Belgrade continue to maintain an attitude of strict reserve.

Peter Velimirovitch, one of the oldest and most prominent members of the Radical party and a former minister of state, has been appointed president of the senate in succession to M. Marinkovitch, who has resigned. M. Velimirovitch will take the chair at the joint meeting of the senate and the skupshtina tomorrow on the occasion of the election of the new king.

After the election of the king tomorrow, the skupshtina will draw up a program of procedure for the new sovereign and will then adjourn until the arrival of the king at Belgrade. The sovereign will then form a new ministry and dissolve the skupshtina.

The provisional government yesterday pardoned all persons imprisoned for political and press offenses and ordered their immediate release. No arrests have occurred nor have any sentences been passed since the tragic events of last Thursday. The court of cassation and the appeal court suspended their sittings from that time.

NEW KING IS POPULAR.

Prince Karageorgevitch, although little is known of him among the people generally here, seems to have caught the public fancy and his election will be a popular one.

Former Queen Natalie has telegraphed to her former lady-in-waiting to make inquiries whether she will be permitted to come to Servia to visit her son's grave.

Lieut. Col. Milislav Zivanovics of the staff, committed suicide by shooting himself on Friday. It is understood that the officer took his life because among the late king's papers was found a letter from Zivanovics informing him of the plot against his life. The newspapers, however, attempt to make out the suicide to be the result of money troubles.

GENEVA, June 14.—Prince Peter Karageorgevitch, the newly proclaimed king of Servia, was seen walking at 6 o'clock this afternoon in Rue Corraterie with the Marquis de Rose, a friend from Paris. The prince was talking and gesticulating in an excited way, while the marquis was trying to calm him.

The prince's cousin, Nanatomtoh, is expected to arrive in Geneva this evening from Belgrade. It is believed he is the secret leader of the Karageorgevitch movement in Servia. He was imprisoned during the lifetime of King Milan for an attempt to assassinate that monarch.

There is reason to believe that Prince Karageorgevitch will start secretly for Vienna tomorrow afternoon.

KING'S DESK BROKEN OPEN.

VIENNA, June 14.—(Special Cable.)—Dispatches from Belgrade describe the election of Peter Karageorgevitch normally certain, nevertheless not unanimously. Dispatches record a marked alteration in the attitude of the population. There is now a strong leaning toward a republican form of government. This movement is particularly noticeable among better classes and university students.

The royal apartments were inspected by a special commission under Col. Schitkovitch, the new minister of justice. King Alexander's desk was broken open and found to contain a draft of a proclamation appointing Nicodemi Lunevich, Queen Draga's brother, as prince of Servia, and nominating him as a successor to the throne.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 14.—(Special Cable.)—As fuller details of the Belgrade tragedy become known here the wave of indignation rises against its brutality and the barbarous treatment of the victims. There is a general outcry that they should be punished. Official silence is observed.

FRIARS NOT WANTED.

South American Republics Offer No Welcome to French Emigrants.

BUENOS AYRES, June 14.—(Special Cable.)—There appears to be no place for the 6,000 French friars in South America. The minister of agriculture has answered the North German Lloyd Company that, while there is no law forbidding landing of the friars in this country, yet in the case of so numerous an immigration, the government will not answer definitely.

The company received a similar answer from Uruguay, in which it was said that, while there is no law to forbid the landing of the friars at present, the government appears disposed to pass one at once if the necessity arises.

WILL LEARN TO MILK.

Miss Alice Roosevelt Has Nice Jersey Cow to Practice on at Her Grandpa's.

BROOKLINE, MASS., June 14.—(Special.)—Miss Alice Roosevelt, who arrived here last night for a visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, at their homestead, Chestnut Hill, expects to become a famous milker while here.

A thoroughbred Jersey has been awaiting her coming and is reserved for Miss Roosevelt's special milking every night. This is only one of a large herd, but it is the special pet of the family, and has been dignified with the name of Pansy. Miss Alice has brought along her red automobile and will vary horseback riding with spins in the big machine along the magnificent roads here.

Two Brothers Struck By Train.

DUBOIS, PA., June 14.—(Special.)—Charles Trimble, 18 years old, was instantly killed and his brother, Norman, 22 years old, was fatally injured by being run down by a special train on the Erie railroad, near Ketner, this evening. They stepped out of the way of a southbound freight train and directly in front of the special, which was carrying President Yates and several other officials of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad.

Cornerstone Laid at Homestead.

The cornerstone of the St. John's Greek Catholic church at Homestead was laid yesterday with appropriate services. The Rev. Father Holosuyay, pastor of the congregation, delivered the address. A large number of priests of this church were present from the western part of the state and assisted. The congregation expects to occupy the edifice by October 1.

Capt. H. J. Ewen, the witness against Curtis Jett, whom the Hargis faction tried to kill by setting fire to the Jackson hotel in which he slept Saturday night. In this picture he is being escorted to court by the Kentucky militia.

FEUDISTS NOW USE THE TORCH

Hargis brothers, come across the bridge and return just before the blaze was discovered and Maj. Blake ordered these men arrested and taken into the camp and manacled in the guard house.

Gray Haddicks was retained by the provost guard as a witness. Soon the Hargis people were very active. They sent for Attorneys O'Neil of Covington and Golden of Barbourville, defending Jett and White, and swore out writs of habeas corpus before Judge Redwine, making them returnable at once. The writs were served on Maj. Allen and he sent the prisoners to the court house under a strong guard commanded by Capt. Maddox.

Commonwealth Attorney Byrd asked Judge Redwine for time for Maj. Allen to file a response. He asked that he be given till tomorrow morning, but Judge Redwine demanded that it be filed at once. This was done and the attorneys argued the case before Judge Redwine. Two of the most interested spectators were County Judge Hargis and Sheriff Edward Callahan.

REFUSED TO SIGN BONDS.

The attorneys argued that the men were being unlawfully held by Maj. Allen, as they were witnesses in the Jett and White cases for the defense. Attorney Byrd argued the case for the commonwealth and Maj. Allen, against whom the habeas corpus proceedings were brought, Judge Redwine finally decided to admit the men to bail in $3,000 each. County Judge Hargis and Sheriff Callahan had bonds drawn up, but after a consultation between them and the lawyers, they refused to sign the bonds and the two men were taken by the soldiers inside their lines and are tonight manacled in the military guard house with a heavy guard on watch and strong outposts.

The grand jury will meet tomorrow and Judge Redwine said these cases could be taken before that body.

The burning of Ewen's house fulfills in part the threat made by the man whom Ewen says called at his home and offered to bribe him by giving him $5,000 if he would alter his testimony.

Everyone seems to concede that the Hargis faction is having its own way. Not only is law and order dead in Breathitt county through the participation in the feud of County Judge Hargis, Sheriff Ed Callahan and others, but after the present trial is over and the militia has gone, the faction promises to wreak a terrible vengeance upon those who have dared to fell upon the witness stand what dozens have seen with their own eyes.

By the driving off of several important witnesses, some of whom may have been bribed, some intimidated and others may have met a worse fate since they have not left a tract of their whereabouts, the commonwealth has failed to show the connection of certain high officers with the taking off of Marcum, the mysterious closing of the sheriff's office and that of the county judge just previous to the assassination, while those officials took a position across the street, overlooking the very spot where Marcum was to fall. This and other important evidence could not be presented.

HARGIS GETTING BOLDER.

One of those missing witnesses, Henry Freeman, testified before the grand jury that Jett and White came to his blind tiger on the night of the assassination and told of the assassination, each man telling of his part. When they left Freeman's they were going, they said, to the home of farmer Elbert Hargis, a brother of County Judge Hargis, the leader of the feud.

Judge Hargis becomes bolder. Yesterday he took the prisoners for a conference, though his office puts him on the opposite side. He wanted the prisoners removed to his office and this being refused, demanded that the soldiers be excluded from the court room while he was with them. This was also refused.

Encouraged by words of counsel that they will get off, both men are much braver and it is not believed either will make any admissions on the stand. Alibis have been framed up for them and they have been told openly that there is no danger of their conviction.

While his home was in flames, Capt. Ewen, not knowing whether his wife and children were safe or not, was detained in camp. After the fire clothing had to be furnished the family and some guests by neighbors and only a few pieces of furniture were saved.

What soldiers could be spared from regular duty worked hard to save the hotel and when this became a hopeless undertaking endeavored to save adjoining property. It was feared to send any of the men on regular duty, as it was suspected that a rush on the jail or camp might have been planned and the fire was expected to draw the soldiers from the jail.

Extra precautions were taken in camp. It was found that rain barrels around the hotel, which afforded its chief fire protection, had been overturned. Nearly all of the insurance policies in Jackson have been canceled and extensions of the fire limits was more to be dreaded.

After the fire Mrs. Ewen and family were taken to the camp and the meeting with Capt. Ewen, who feared to go to them was most affecting. Their loss meant the savings of years of toil and was the last of several misfortunes.

LUMBER CONTRACTS CANCELED.

Until the killing of Marcum, when Ewen's look into the corridor of the court house and the subsequent courage which impelled him to tell what he had seen, Ewen had large lumber contracts which promised to yield a good revenue. When it became unsafe for him to leave his home these contracts had to be canceled.

The plan, it is believed, was to assassinate Ewen, as it was conceived that he would break out of camp when he learned that his house was burning, and run through the town, when men, stationed along the rout, could pick him off from the windows of houses. Ewen was detained in camp by the militia, Maj. Allen fearing such a scheme might have been hatched, and ordering him held until the militia had made a full investigation.

Many other cases of arson have been credited to the Hargises, the Cardwell-Cockrell sympathizers being the sufferers. In one case a woman was cremated. C. X. Bowling, shortly after the murder of J. Clark Cockrell, let it be known that he was a Cockrell sympathizer. One night his store was burned, and with it the residence and store of J. H. Atchison.

DEATH DUE TO EXPOSURE.

Mrs. Atchison worked hard in a cold rain to save her effects and in a few days was sickened and died from pneumonia. Fourteen residences and stores owned by Cardwell-Cockrell sympathizers have been burned in Jackson since 1900. Following is the list: J. H. Atchison's store and dwelling; Green Back, dwelling; C. N. Bowling, store; Lee Haggins, dwelling; Sid Johnson, dwelling; William Combs, stable and three cottages; S. S. Talbee, dwelling; William Jett, wholesale whisky house; Judge Davis, dwelling; John Goff, dwelling; S. H. Mann, dwelling; William Haskins, dwelling; Judge Eversole, dwelling; B. J. Ewen, hotel and residence.

FEUDISTS FLED BEFORE COL. WILLIAMS' CAMERA

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

LEXINGTON, KY., June 14.—Col. Roger Williams, who commands the Kentucky troops stationed in the turbulent environs of Jackson, is distinguished as the first military man to put photography to practical use in the field. Col. Williams is an enthusiastic amateur and the camera he carries is more feared by the feudists than the brace of ivory-handled Colts that gleam from his belt.

When Gov. Beckham ordered the troops into Breathitt county not a picture had been made of the scene of the Marcum tragedy. Newspaper correspondents were given notice by the Hargis people that no photographs should be made and a local professional photographer who ventured to disobey was promptly ordered out of the town. Cameras which had been taken to Jackson by newspaper correspondents were hidden under the corn-husk mattresses in the old hotel and were never put to use.

When Col. Williams heard that cameras had been declared contraband, he ordered his own outfit to be placed in his baggage, and on leaving Lexington, told the correspondent for The Gazette that he would take every opportunity to use his camera and that The Gazette should have the benefit of all the pictures he would succeed in making. On reaching Jackson, the colonel loaded his camera with a long roll of film and while encountering the situation with his staff officers made several dozen exposures. When the long, raw-boned mountaineers saw his camera they fled to their houses in terror. Men who had been known to stand up before bristling Winchesters without flinching, lost all their courage before the little black box, while Col. Williams rode through Jackson on his horse and photographed every object of interest, showing the position of the camp, the scene of several murders, and when a night attack was made upon the troops he accompanied the photograph of the ambush ground with a minute description of the battle.

Every train that comes to Lexington brings a fresh roll of film from the colonel's camera and the pictures which were printed in The Gazette were among the first made on his trip. The same pictures will be used by Col. Williams in his official reports, and in this he will introduce a novel feature in the illustration of military correspondence.

PRESIDENT TO RECEIVE B'NAI BRITH COMMITTEE

Representations Concerning the Kishineff Massacre Will Be Presented.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The massacre of the Jews at Kishineff and the representations to be made to the president and the secretary of state in connection therewith occupied the greater portion of the time of the annual meeting here today of the executive committee of the independent order of the B'Nai Brith. The committee will meet Mr. Hay in the morning and by him will be escorted to the White House, where the members will have their conference with the president.

Reports submitted showed the membership in the American district of the order now approximates 17,500, an increase of 500 during the year. The European lodges have a membership of 7,000, while in the orient unattached lodges have about 1,200 members.

Some interesting statistics were presented, showing the success which has attained the introduction of the "removal" movement. This movement aids arriving Jewish immigrants at seaboard cities and those inhabitants from the congested lower East Side in New York city to remove to sections of the country where they may become self-supporting. During 10 months of 1901, 1,800 persons were removed to various portions of the country; during 1902, 3,500, while during this year the number probably will reach 5,000 or 6,000. Ninety per cent of these people have settled where they are self-supporting and they are influencing their relatives to move to the country districts.

HORSE OWNER FATALLY INJURED IN QUARREL

CHICAGO, June 14.—In a quarrel with one of his stable hands at the Harlem race track early today, Sidney S. Bender, a well-known horse owner, was struck with a pitchfork and so badly injured that he may die. His assailant, who is known about the track as "Dutch," was arrested.

NEW RAILROAD FOR SOUTHWEST

Oklahoma & Rio Grande Southern to Reach to the Mexican Border.

WILL HAVE A GULF TERMINAL

William F. Harrity and Charles E. Ingersoll of Philadelphia Connected With the New Enterprise—Oklahoma City Will Be Northeastern Terminal.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GUTHRIE, OKLA., June 14.—The preliminaries are now being arranged for another immense railroad project. The new road is to be known as the Oklahoma & Rio Grande Southern.

This new line, according to the chief engineer, Llano W. Van Horne, who represents the capitalists back of the enterprise, will be built from Oklahoma City through the state of Texas to the Rio Grande border, and will secure a connection in Mexico to Tampico or a nearby port. A map prepared in the engineering offices of the company shows the line passing through Fort Worth straight south toward San Antonio and thence to a point on the Mexican border.

A cut-off is also dotted from Fort Worth to Dallas and a second track to the Fredericksburg region south of San Antonio. One of the proposed lines goes through Llano to Fredericksburg and thence south, while a second goes west of Llano and via Kerrville, joining the main line below that point. An old abandoned grade between Llano and Fredericksburg is being inspected by Van Horne. This grade was thrown up for the Aransas Pass, but never used, and, with the exception of a cut, the grade is still intact all the way.

Upon the report of Van Horne depends the purchase of this piece of work, which, it is stated, belongs to a railroad contractor named Sullivan, and to him the new railroad company has made an offer for his property. Van Horne will investigate both routes and make his report.

The engineer admitted that prominent railway magnates are connected with this new venture and that material has already been purchased. He claims that they have 5,000 tons of steel on the piers at Philadelphia awaiting shipment. The rails will be ordered forward to points on the new line upon the receipt of intelligence that the plans in Oklahoma and Texas have been consummated.

The names of William F. Harrity, Charles E. Ingersoll and others of Philadelphia are mentioned in connection with this new road. Since the inspection of the grade commenced it has also leaked out that the company will make an effort to purchase the Kerrville branch of the Aransas Pass road and thus avoid some difficult construction work in getting into San Antonio and also preserve the air line to the Rio Grande. Should the efforts be successful the new line will cross the Aransas Pass at Comfort, if the grade be bought; otherwise it would go via Kerrville and the Aransas Pass would be used to reach San Antonio. The distance from San Antonio to Kerrville is 75 miles. The first construction on the new line, it is stated, will begin in Texas at various places, but first of all on the Llano-Fredericksburg grade, if it is purchased.

MARK TWAIN PROMISES BURGLARS A WELCOME

Says He Will Treat Them Well When They Come to His House—The Best Is Theirs.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 14.—Mark Twain has thrown wide the doors of his mansion at Riverdale to burglars. He says burglars and literary folk have a good deal alike and he wants to treat the fellows well. An organized gang has been looting the borough and Mark Twain speaks of them in this way:

"I just wish I knew the fellows on my route," the humorist's eyes twinkling with merriment. "I have been expecting them about here, and from feelings of brotherhood, if for no more noble reason, I have been intending to give them a warm reception. My larder is open to them, and if they smoke they can have the best in the box. You know all we literary people and second-story men have a good deal akin. We all travel in groups. We work one neighborhood until we feel that we have sapped the lemon dry and then we move to more fruitful soil.

"Burglary, like many other things, has got to be a science, and the man who is a success at it ought to be respected. He has a family to support, maybe little babies and a wife who need nice clothes and things, and it is only fair that he should be given a chance to ply his trade. It is cruel to put him in jail with forgers and common swindlers."

ST. LOUIS SAENGERFEST.

Reception Chorus Has Final Rehearsal and All Is Ready for Visitors.

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—The reception chorus of the St. Louis saengerfest, consisting of 3,000 picked voices among St. Louis choristers, had its final rehearsal in Liberal Arts hall, world's fair grounds, this afternoon. The test of the hall proved most satisfactory.

A committee was sent to Alton to receive the European trio, Mme. Fleischer-Edel, Herr Will Birmenheven and Herr Max Lohling, who complete the quartet and solo contingent. The advance sale of seats is heavy and the floral trophies will no longer keep out the visiting contingent of singers, of whom 25,000 are expected before Wednesday.

Hunted Leak and Was Hurt.

Walter G. Standing of Kittanning street, Etna, started to find the leak in a gas pipe in the cellar of his home last night. An explosion resulted which shattered two windows and set the joists of the first floor on fire. The flames were extinguished before much damage was done. Mr. Standing's face and hands were severely burned.

Oil Explosion Kills Two.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 14.—An explosion caused by pouring kerosene into a lighted stove at the store and residence of John Brzoskowski here today, resulted in the death of two persons, the probable fatal injury of one other, and the serious burning of six more. The dead are Annie Brzoskowski, aged 15, and Tony Brzoskowski, aged 2.

Died While Away for His Health.

David Seddenstein, a former resident of McKeesport, who went to Europe for his health a year ago, is dead in Liverpool. He was a member of Youghiogheny lodge F. & A. M., the S. V. F. and the Heptasophs. He was choir leader and chorister of the McKeesport Swedish church.

Aged Couple Killed By Train.

MONTGOMERY, MINN., June 14.—John Zeethka and wife, an aged couple, were instantly killed tonight by being struck by the North Star limited on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad. Their buggy was struck as they attempted to cross the tracks.

C. M. SCHWAB DREW HIS PLANS

side, and it was then that he submitted his plans for a 120-horse power car.

It should be said to the credit of Mr. Schwab that he drew the plans and details, not with a view to spending as much money as possible, but to build the strongest and fastest machine at only a slight increase in cost over a 90-horse-power car. He drew and figured as though he were working for someone else at a commission on every dollar saved per increased horsepower.

The machine is a marvel. It combines not only the features of the Mercedes car, but the ideas of Mr. Schwab. In addition have made it a wonder even to the German manufacturers. Every improvement will be guarded by patent, as Mr. Schwab is anxious not to have his machine duplicated.

When the news of the burning of the plant reached here much was said in regard to the American owners of Mercedes cars and those who were to have received 1903 types. Strangely, Mr. Schwab's name was not given. As a matter of fact it is not known that he had even ordered a new machine, and certainly not that he will stand before the automobile world as the designer of the fastest and most complete car ever built. His improvements have been directed in the application of power and the elimination of noises. The machine will be run by gasoline and will have eight cylinders.

WILL HAVE EIGHT CYLINDERS.

Just in what way he gains power cannot be learned, but the fact that the car is to have eight cylinders that can develop 120-horsepower should be enough. The average car has only four cylinders, while, of course, the smaller ones have only one. The best mufflers have been used to deaden the exhaust, and it is claimed that the car can run practically without noise. It will have an extra long chassis and a roomy tonneau. Mr. Schwab intends using it solely for pleasure.

He will be the sixth American to receive one of the 1903 order Mercedes cars. Five have been delivered to Foxhall Keene, George Arents, O. K. Bright, W. G. Graves and P. Maloney of 60-horsepower each. Mr. Keene also has a 90-horsepower machine building for the International cup race to be held on July 2. This racing machine will be the fastest Mercedes ever built.

O. K. Bright, who is vice president of the New York Insurance and Trust Company, has a 60-horsepower that Mercedes. It was the first to reach America. Some idea of the speed of a 60-horsepower car can be gained from the fact that at the Empire City course on Memorial day, Mr. Osborne covered a mile in one minute and seven seconds without the machine being stripped or specially prepared for racing. A 90-horsepower machine can clip off a mile in perhaps 50 seconds, and it would not be wise to estimate what Mr. Schwab's giant will do.

COST OF A "SIXTY."

The cost of the "sixties" in Paris is $12,000, import duties increasing the price to $18,000 laid down in New York. The "nineties" which were destroyed in the fire were to have cost $16,000 and in America $24,000. The cost of Mr. Schwab's machine will therefore probably run to $30,000, if not over, on account of a premium for delivery and special parts, etc.

Mr. Schwab now owns four machines, all of which are propelled by gasoline, with the exception of one, which he keeps at his home in Loretto. The power of this is steam. He employs the most skilled French chauffeur. He frequently takes a spin along Riverside drive in his 40-horsepower Mercedes and every day, when the weather is good, he rides from the Lorraine to the Empire building in a 15-horsepower car.

CONCESSIONS OFFERED.

Pennsylvania Railroad Tempers Its Refusal of Philadelphia Trainmen's Demands.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—(Special)—Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen employed on the Philadelphia terminal division of the Pennsylvania railroad met today to consider the refusal of the company to accede to their request for shorter hours, but refused to make public what action had been taken.

It was learned, however, that the company, while refusing to reduce the hours from 12 to 8, on the ground that such action would entail three shifts each day, did offer the men a 7 per cent increase in wages and three days off each month.

The men who are seeking the reduction in hours are freight brakemen and conductors, baggagemen, car inspectors and shop employes in Broad street station, at the Market street ferries, Washington avenue wharves, and in all the freight yards and passenger stations in and near Philadelphia.

MURDER IN CLEVELAND.

Joseph Sockey Stabbed His Brother-in-Law to the Heart. Mob Forms.

CLEVELAND, O., June 14.—Louis Renta, 27 years old, was stabbed to death tonight by Joseph Sockey, 25 years old, his brother-in-law. Renta died within five minutes.

The murder occurred in a foreign settlement and a crowd of 5,000 men quickly formed and began searching for Sockey. He was not found until the excitement had to a great extent subsided, and was then taken in charge by the police.

Sockey drove a pocket knife into Renta's heart and the latter did not realize how serious his injuries were until he fell over dying.

Spanish Flag in the Parade.

SAN JUAN, P. R., June 14.—The church festival of Corpus Christi was celebrated here today. Five thousand children marched and there was a great show of Spanish colors. Forty church societies escorted Bishop Blenk to altars in various parts of the city. The ceremonies at the cathedral were on an elaborate scale. For the first time since the occupation of the island many Americans participated in the ceremonies.

Preacher Defies Ministerium.

TRENTON, N. J., June 14.—Despite the order of the ministerium of the Lutheran church made at the sessions in Philadelphia last week suspending the Rev. Hugo Wendell, pastor of the Trinity church here, that clergyman today occupied his pulpit as usual.

Must Not Pluck the Flowers.

E. C. Smith of Turtle Creek was arrested in Highland park yesterday afternoon. Park Policeman Patrick Heenan said Smith was pulling flowers. He was afterwards released on a forfeit.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching leper, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

PEACE AND ORDER IN PORTO RICO

Gov. Hunt Arrives and Tells of the Substantial Advancement on the Island.

DENIES RESIGNATION RUMOR

Valuable Asset for Porto Ricans and Chance for San Juan to Grow in the Distribution of Lands Shortly to Be Made in Washington.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 14.—Gov. William H. Hunt of Porto Rico arrived tonight on the steamer Ponce. He said there was no truth in the rumor that he would resign. Speaking of Porto Rico Gov. Hunt said:

"There has been continued development in the island during the closing fiscal year. Business conditions have steadily improved and commercial relations between the Porto Ricans and the people of the United States have been greatly extended. Trade statistics show, for example, that from January to June of this year more than $200,000 worth of coffee was exported to the United States, against only $21,000 worth in the same period last year. Coffee planters find encouragement in the belief that the New York market is at last opening to Porto Rico coffee, which is

MRS. MAGEE MUST SIGN THE DEED

City Cannot Acquire Property for Technical School Without Her Consent.

PAPERS TO GO TO ROME.

Orphans Court Compelled Executors to Take This Action—Another Delay of a Month—Examination of Title Completed and Report Is Favorable.

Mrs. C. L. Magee must sign a quit-claim deed to the technical school site before the city can obtain possession of the property. This is responsible for the prolonged delay in the acquisition of the Flinn-Magee tract, although the ordinance for the purchase was passed by councils nearly a month ago. It will require three weeks or a month longer before the signature of Mrs. Magee is obtained and before the city can turn the property over to the trustees of the Carnegie Institute.

H. S. A. Stewart, one of the executors of the Magee estate, said yesterday that a deed for the relinquishment of the property would be sent to Mrs. Magee this week at Rome, Italy, where she is now sojourning.

"The orphans' court a few days ago ordered the executors to do this, stating that unless Mrs. Magee signed a quit-claim deed, relinquishing all rights to the property, it could not be sold to the city," said Mr. Stewart. "I have corresponded with Mrs. Magee, and she is willing to sell the property to the city. After her signature is obtained there will be no further obstacle to the property being transferred to the city. The title has been examined and is perfectly clear. The deed will have to be signed by Mrs. Magee, by Senator Flinn, who holds a half-interest, by the officers of the Elizabeth Steel-Magee Hospital Association, by the three executors and the Fidelity Title and Trust Company as trustees of the Magee estate.

"We will not consider any other offers for the property, even should they be more than the city is to pay for it, as we have already agreed to sell it to the city for $350,000. As soon as the conditions stipulated by the court are complied with the sale will be made to the city."

Mr. Stewart stated that Mrs. Magee would not return to Pittsburgh before September and that it is necessary to send the papers to her to have the deal with the city closed soon. He said the papers would be intrusted to the mails and he hoped to have them back in Pittsburgh in about three weeks or soon thereafter.

HIGH MARK IS FIXED FOR ORPHAN'S PICNIC

Preparing for the Annual Benefit for St. Paul's Asylum, Crafton.

Preparations for the annual picnic that furnishes so many comforts to the little children in St. Paul's Orphan asylum were begun last night in the Catholic lyceum in Washington street. Some 50 men, representing the leading parishes of the three cities in the county, were present. J. C. Reilly was elected chairman; T. F. Cavanaugh of McKeesport and J. G. Christy of Allegheny, vice chairmen; Father T. Lynch, the head of the asylum, secretary and treasurer.

It was announced that the asylum is now the home of 700 boys and girls, the largest number gathered under its roof at any one time in the 60 years of its history. When the institution was moved from Tannehill street to Crafton there were 630 children taken to the new building. The number has steadily increased until it reaches 700.

In view of the larger number of orphans and the consequent increased expense the meeting decided to set a high mark for the picnic. Last year $15,000 was fixed as the sum to be made. This was greater than had ever been reached and there were fears that it was too high, but the results were $15,400, a little above the mark. This year it will be a $20,000 picnic, and every effort will be made to raise that sum.

The picnic will be held two days, July 16 and 17, at Calhoun park. There will be all the usual features and probably some new attractions, if satisfactory arrangements can be made. Representatives present last night reported that booths would be conducted by the ladies of the Church of the Epiphany, practically the old St. Paul's cathedral people; Sacred Heart, East End; St. Peter's, Allegheny; St. Andrew's, Allegheny; St. Agnes', Soho; St. Patrick's, Seventeenth street; St. Stephen's, Hazelwood; Holy Cross, South Side, and St. Peter's, McKeesport. There will probably be some additions to this list.

Over 15,000 tickets were distributed last night and they will be placed on sale in all the parishes at once. At the meeting next Sunday night the sub-committee will be announced by Chairman Reilly.

TUBE CITY POSTOFFICE TO HAVE MORE MEN

Postmaster William V. Campbell of McKeesport, who spent part of last week in Washington, where he held a conference with some of the postal authorities with regard to the conditions of the McKeesport postoffice, returned home yesterday morning. Owing to the rapidly increasing business the present force needs assistance. The postmaster presented the situation to First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne, who gave assurance that relief would be afforded. The postmaster asked for two new clerks and several new carriers.

Boy Struck By a Car.

Willie Watson, 8 years old, of No. 143 Eureka street, was struck by a Hilltop car on Brownsville avenue last evening and thrown against the curb, his head striking it. He received a scalp wound a number of bruises.

New Building for Wilmerding Bank.

The board of directors of the Wilmerding National bank awarded to Hall & Morgan of Homestead the contract for a handsome three-story building of red pressed brick, with stone trimmings, to cost $56,000.

Wanted a Case of Beer.

Edward Jones of Eckert street, Allegheny, was sentenced yesterday to 60 days in the workhouse as a suspicious person. It was alleged he tried to steal a case of beer from Liberty hall Saturday night.

Used a Blackjack on a Policeman.

Simpson Berry of Pearl street was fighting Saturday night when Policeman John Fitzgerald interfered. Berry then attacked the officer with a blackjack. He paid $25 and costs yesterday morning.

Work on Duquesne Free Library.

Work on the new Duquesne Free library will be continued five weeks more before the interior is complete. The entire structure will be ready for occupancy by September.

WARM WEATHER DOES IT.

Crowds calling at the offices of the Philadelphia Company, 165 Sixth avenue, to take advantage of the offer to make natural gas service connections and set meter free to those who make application this month. Gas is economical, clean, and it doesn't heat the whole house up in summer. Do not spoil your temper living in a house where cooking is done over a coal fire.

STILL BREAKS RECORDS IN THE WEATHER LINE

Low Temperature of Yesterday Has Not Been Equalled for Twenty Years.

One of the oddest June Sundays in the recollection of any living Pittsburgher was experienced yesterday. For the most part of the day it rained in torrents, although occasionally the sun came out. There were times when the sky was cloudy and no rain fell. The day was unseasonable and quite cold for the time of year.

Yesterday was warmer than the two preceding days, the latter breaking any previous records. The lowest temperature yesterday was 51 degrees, reached at 1 o'clock in the morning. This exceeds for cold any June 14 back as far as 1883, or 20 years. Then the maximum temperature was 48. The only other colder days of that date experienced as far back as the local weather office has records are 1876, 50 degrees; 1878, 50 degrees, and 1875, 45 degrees.

The day was remarkable, too, for the fact that in Huron, S. D., which is considerably farther north than Pittsburgh, the maximum temperature was 84 degrees, while in Bismarck, still farther north, the highest point reached was 82 degrees. The maximum temperature here was 64 degrees. Last year the maximum temperature on June 14 in Pittsburgh was 93 degrees.

Chased Children With a Knife.

Constant Champoli, an Italian of Kearns street, West End, was arrested in Independence street yesterday afternoon while he was chasing a number of small children with a butcher knife, threatening to kill them.

BOOTBLACK HIGHWAYMAN ROBS BOY OF SHIRTWAIST

Superintendent of Police John P. McTighe has a new class of highwaymen to contend with. Newsboys and bootblacks are trying their hands at the role of "knight of the road." Johnny Murphy, 14 years old, of Webster avenue, who is a newsboy, attired himself in a new clean shirtwaist yesterday morning and walked down Diamond alley.

Charles Burnheim, 15 years old, of Brady street, who is a bootblack, was walking up Diamond alley. Charley had slept in the doorway of a saloon all night and was dirty and wet. The sight of Johnny's clean shirt made him envious. Charley picked up part of a brick and held it back of him. As the boys neared each other Charley walked up to Johnny and held the brick over his head in a threatening manner.

"Take off that shirt," he demanded.

Without further orders Johnny took off the shirt.

"Hand it to me," commanded the young highwayman.

When the shirt was delivered the young robber ordered Johnny to run away. Officer Andrew Adams met Johnny who was on his way home in his undershirt. The boy told the policeman his story and Officer Adams found Charley strutting up and down Diamond alley with the stolen shirt on. He took the boy to the central police station. When asked why he stole the shirt, Charley said:

"That kid looked too clean for me."

U. L. L. PRESIDENT RESIGNS

Revision of Constitution Will Take Place at Next Meeting.

At a meeting of the United Labor league last evening in its headquarters, No. 510 Smithfield street, E. L. Eckels, president of the league, tendered his resignation. He announced that too much business requires his attention to continue the duties attached to the league. With reluctance the members present voted to accept it. W. T. Hamilton, formerly vice president, was elected his successor.

A report was read from the committee on revision of the constitution. It was decided to refer the report back to the committee for printing, when it will be taken up at the next meeting for final consideration. Another report was read from the committee appointed to devise a plan of settlement between the bricklayers and stone masons. The action of the committee was published in The Gazette. It submitted a proposition to the warring factions, but it was not accepted. The report was referred to the Building Trades council.

WILL TURN TROUBLES OVER TO THE NEW BODY

Citizens Committee, of 32 Will Have to Smooth Out the Rough Spots.

The Citizens committee of five on rules and organization will meet at the Third avenue headquarters this morning. The purpose of the meeting is to certify the election of the new county committeemen to the committee of 32 that convenes tomorrow.

A couple of members of the committee of five wanted to act upon the contests in the Fourteenth ward and the Sixth legislative district. They have been persuaded to let the new committee of 32 deal with the various troubles of the organization. The five men will also pass up the question of fusion to the new body.

Thomas S. Bigelow is said to have a plan for settling the Fourteenth ward trouble. The indications are that his scheme will not include a recognition of W. J. Moore. His method of bringing peace is expected to satisfy the 900 Democratic voters of the ward. The plan is not likely to be acceptable to the real reformers of the ward and Bigelow will have difficulty in smoothing out this rough spot.

"Found" Seven Pounds of Butter.

Policeman Samuel Beam saw Patrick Flaherty walking along Braddock avenue, near Eleventh street, Braddock, yesterday morning at 3 o'clock and arrested him as a suspicious character. Under his arm Flaherty had seven pounds of butter, which he said he had "found." He was sent to the workhouse for 50 days.

MUCH WORK TO REMOVE FOSSILS

Bringing of the de Bayet Collection to This City Is a Big Undertaking.

PACKING WILL BE TEDIOUS.

Valuable Book Received at Carnegie Museum—Few People Went to Parks and Library Yesterday Because of the Weather.

Dr. W. J. Holland and his assistants in the Carnegie museum are preparing for a gigantic undertaking in bringing the Baron de Bayet collection of fossils to Pittsburgh. These are the specimens which have been purchased by Andrew Carnegie for the local collection after Harvard university and other institutions were unable to meet the iron master's offer. To bring the fossils across the Atlantic will require months of tedious and most painstaking work by skilled paleontologists.

The de Bayet fossils will constitute the most ponderous array of bones ever brought to America. In preparing them for shipment it will be necessary to make a complete inventory of each individual specimen. After this tabulation has been made a history of every specimen will be written and filed away with voluminous indexes accompanying the archives of the collection.

After this has been done the paleontologists must pack the specimens in especially prepared boxes to insure safe transportation. This in itself is a herculean task, and thousands of separate pieces must be carefully placed in the wadded cases. After this, another inventory will be made, and the long list will be checked up a third time.

On reaching Pittsburgh the fossils will be stored away in fire-proof vaults until the new wing on the museum is ready for occupancy. The unpacking of the specimens and the display for exhibition purposes will require nearly half a year's work, but when the work has finally been completed Pittsburgh can boast of possessing one of the most valuable scientific collections in existence, and eminent scientists from all parts of the country will come here to study the collection. Prof. Hatcher, paleontologist of the museum, is now making a survey of Mount Garfield in Montana, and Dr. Holland may go to Belgium to arrange for the shipment of the de Bayet fossils.

Dr. Holland's library in the museum has received a valuable addition in the new work on the hawk moths of the world, which has just been issued from the press by the Hon. Walter Rothschild of London. The book contains over 1,000 pages of text and 67 beautifully executed colored plates, and is the result of eight years of prodigious labor. One of the species shown in Mr. Rothschild's plates was named after Dr. Holland, "Polyptychus hollandi."

Bad weather yesterday resulted in a slim attendance at the Carnegie institute and in the parks. Those who died through the art galleries and the museum seemed to have been driven thither by the rain.

Scarcely 200 persons attended the six hundredth free organ recital in the Carnegie music hall, given by W. N. Stelzer. An especially fine program had been prepared and was enthusiastically received by the few music lovers that gathered in the big auditorium. A new composition by Horatio Parker was played for Mr. Stelzer from the original manuscript, which had been forwarded especially for yesterday's performance, and was received with numerous applause.

FACTORY CHANGED HANDS.

American Fog Signal Company Absorbs the Sculley-McClure Plant.

The American Fog Signal Company, a New Jersey corporation, capitalized at $500,000, has secured the control of the Sculley-McClure Company at Versailles. The consideration is said to be about $60,000. This practically gives the American Fog Signal Company a control of the output of railroad torpedoes and other fog signal torches.

Besides the Sculley-McClure Company the constituent companies of the new corporation are the Hopewell Railway Signal Company, with factories in Massachusetts; the Joseph Taite & Sons Company of Coatesville, Pa.; the Great Railway Signal Company of Alleghany; the Western Railway Signal Company of Rogers, O., and the Acme Railway Signal Company of Joliet, Ill.

The American Fog Signal Company was chartered about six months ago. No change will be made in the manufacture of the product of any of the factories. Railway torpedoes have been made in the United States for the past 80 years, but the fuse product is only about four years old. J. G. Bennett of Pittsburgh is president and William Bowen, secretary and treasurer. Besides his official duties Mr. Bowen will manage the Versailles and Allegheny factories.

The model is one that we have sold freely for $17.50, and in reproducing it in a garment to sell for $5, something entirely out of the ordinary is offered.

Monday, June 15, 1903.

Pope Leo has been grieved by the false report of his death that emanated from Vienna or some other point distant from Rome. The aged prelate is feeble and in the course of nature to die, and it is natural that he should be shocked by such a rumor at a time when he is rallying from serious indisposition. Just how the report started no one seems to know. Probably it will never be explained. It is not the first case of the kind on record. Certainly no one started it with malicious intent. More likely it was an inadvertent word, dropped thoughtlessly, wrongly construed without the context, passed from one mouth to another and finally taken up as truth. But it shows that people ought to be careful of their speech, more than they usually are.

Alfred Stead's review of the situation in Manchuria, in yesterday's Gazette, is very clear as to Russia's attitude and what it has accomplished. The territory belongs to China, but the influence that is dominant is that of Russia, exerted through the Chinese eastern railroad and the Russo-Chinese bank. Russia is in possession of the commerce and resources of the province, with the right to guard its interests by military force whenever such a course seems expedient, while China possesses the empty title to sovereignty. The Russian influence has been a good thing for Manchuria, a better thing for Russia, and it remains to be seen whether it is any worse for the United States or the nations of Europe. Their trade has not been restricted. On the contrary, the United States, at least, has done a good business in supplying Russia with the means of development.

A memorial from the Ponce branch of the chamber of commerce of Porto Rico has been mailed to each member of congress praying for a tariff on coffee. The appeal is fervid and contains a sly thrust or two, for example, when it selects sugar, rice and wine as special objects of the care of congress by the imposition of duties for the protection of a domestic output that is a mere fraction of the total consumption. In addition, the chamber appeals for improvement of the harbor of Ponce, which in its present condition does not encourage steamers to put in there. Two American lines touch there regularly, but the majority of the lines plying between New York or New England and the West Indies or South America pass by Porto Rico without giving it any attention. There is some justice in the appeal, but rather more of offensive smartness.

While the weather bureau has done excellent work at times in giving advance information of gales and frosts, it made a lamentable failure of its predictions last week. Up to Saturday evening the Washington forecaster made no mention of rain. His prediction for Saturday was "fair and warmer" for western Pennsylvania, though the rain was falling here when the forecast was sent out for publication. All day Saturday it rained and at times the downpour was heavy. In short, this storm has been one of the heaviest of the season, and there is room for dissatisfaction with a failure to discover it until it had almost passed. No worse blunders were made during the days when local observers made the forecasts for their localities based upon local conditions.

Millions of dollars are spent to make Pittsburgh beautiful—that is, to surround its homes with flowers and shrubbery. The result is apparent to all who get out of the downtown district into the residence sections. There are magnificent private grounds, especially in the East End, maintained at great expense to overcome the adverse influences of smoke and grime. The money is well spent. Mohammed said: "If I had but two loaves of bread I would give one for some hyacinths to feed my soul." That phrasing savors of oriental extravagance, but it expresses the idea. The soul needs to be fed as well as the body, and we may well spend of our surplus to surround ourselves with the beauty of flowers and sweet odors. Not only in the city, but in the country some thought should be given to beauty and some aid lent to nature to create it. The traveler of taste cannot fail, in a day's journey, to note a hundred neglected places where nature intended there should be beauty to delight the eye.

East St. Louis is looking in the right direction in its agitation for flood-proof levees. They will cost more than ordinary earth banks in the first instance, but will realize economy in maintenance and in the better protection of property. The proposition under consideration is for solid masonry. That, however, is preliminary. It will probably be found on fuller investigation that cement and concrete may be constructed more cheaply and prove equally strong. These materials are within the financial reach of populous communities. For the long stretches of rural lands along the Mississippi masonry and concrete are out of the question. Earth banks are the best they can hope for. Yet even these may be rendered comparatively secure at moderate expense by judicious planting. The department of agriculture at Washington and the state experiment stations should be able to lend some assistance in this matter. They should know the best plants and trees to use in getting a root growth that will rip-rap the soft earth, beginning with semi-aquatics that will grow down to low water, giving a summit crown of strong trees and a shore side of vigorous dry land roots and vines. Utility will naturally be the first consideration, but beauty will be the result.

Outrage Upon Outrage.

While the burning of Capt. Ewen's Central hotel at Jackson, Ky., may have been accidental, the presumption is strongly in favor of incendiarism. After giving his testimony in court to the effect that he saw Curtis Jett fire the shot that killed Attorney J. B. Marcum, Capt. Ewen went to the military camp for protection and has since remained there. The friends of Jett and White have had no opportunity to wreak the ordinary Breathitt county vengeance upon the captain, it being contrary to the rules to attempt the assassination of a man so well protected, so they appear to have turned to arson as the second best crime on the calendar.

It is not easy to predict the effect of this latest outrage upon the administration of justice. The probable intent was to make it plain to members of the jury and others connected with the trial that it is not safe to tamper with a man of the Hargis faction. It may result in the intimidation of all concerned and the miscarriage of justice. On the other hand, it may arouse the jurors to a quicker sense of their duty. The Kentuckian living in the feud district is not always a coward. His sense of honor often dominates every other consideration. His finger is quick on the trigger to defend his honor and he will sometimes face certain death in the chivalrous belief that duty calls him. The jury may be composed of that kind of men. Capt. Ewen dared everything and it is possible his example will prove an inspiration to others connected with the trial. It is the more probable that justice will not be baiked because the town of Jackson has been put under martial law, and there is a chance that the incendiaries may be located and dealt with summarily.

Martial law is the kind best suited to a community that persistently interferes with the administration of law by orderly processes. It has the advantage of being full-armed for defense and of being able to pass and execute sentence without the aid of a trembling jury. Breathitt county would be better for a long term of martial supervision. A vigorous enforcement of the first principles of good order would have the effect of reducing the number of principal agents in the feuds that exist and so would prepare the way for a better order of living.

Still They Come.

Notwithsanding the fact that the government has during the past few years placed additional restrictions upon the immigration of foreigners to this country, the present indications point to the largest inpour of foreigners to America that we have suffered since the record-breaking year of 1882, just after the tide of prosperity following the "Jay Cooke panic" was at its height, when 789,000 foreigners landed on these shores. "A recent estimate made by the officers of the immigration bureau points to the probability," says the Philadelphia Bulletin, "that at the end of this month, which will close the fiscal year of the government, the entire number landed at American ports in the preceding twelve months will be about 792,000." Viewed from one standpoint, these figures are appalling and give rise to the query: How shall we be able to digest and assimilate this immense mass of foreign population? So far as providing physical supplies for them, there is little ground for fear. Our vast unoccupied territory can provide for years to come ample asylum for those who may seek a home in this country, while our ever-expanding industries invite the labor of those who may be seeking a chance to earn their living. These are not the serious problems of increasing immigration. How to assimilate and incorporate these diverse, and in many instances antagonistic, elements is the great question, a question than which no other modern problem is more serious.

Evidently the effort of our lawmakers to enact laws by which the United States may protect itself against floods of undesirable foreign population has not been successful. It has only required time for the news of the great prosperity of this country to penetrate to the European countries when we are bombarded with an invasion more extensive than any that the country has ever witnessed, even when the immigration laws were construed as an open invitation, rather than a formidable barrier, as they are now vainly supposed to be.

Divine Right.

The theory of the divine right of kings still cherished by some monarchs (need we mention our august friend of Germany as one of them?) must have been given a rude shock when Robert de Bourbon, formerly sovereign duke of Parma; Don Carlos, pretender to the throne of Spain; Count Caserta, pretender to the crown of Naples; duke of Cumberland, pretender to the crown of Hanover, and Archduke Ferdinand IV., pretender to the crown of Tuscany, met one day recently at dinner in the Hofburg palace, at Vienna. Two of these had actually reigned, and two are eldest sons of former sovereigns whom they would have succeeded had not something gone wrong. The dominions over which three of them would now hold sway, but for the decrees of fate, are absorbed in the larger kingdom of Italy, whose monarch is probably no foe of the divine right theory so far as it may be applied to himself. The dominions to which another of the dinner guests lays claim are embraced in the kingdom of Prussia, whose ruler is not unconvinced that his commission to rule is direct from heaven. Still another would be on the Spanish throne instead of young Alfonso had not an ancestor of Alfonso set aside in favor of his daughter the law of succession that denied the crown to females. It is hardly worth while to trace the origin or point out the absurdity of the claim of kings to rule by divine right. The fact that kings who rest their pretentions on this theory deny its protection to other kings is enough in itself to riddle the doctrine. If monarchs are inconsistent in not admitting the divine right of other monarchs they cut the ground from under their own claims. If monarchs ruling by assertion of divine right had been consistent the map of Europe would be different.

Order being heaven's first law, governments come into being and exist as a means to an end by operation of the divine law that governs the universe. Order being divinely ordained, government, as one of the expressions of order, is divinely appointed. There is a distinction between goverament and the agents and agencies of government that is easily preserved in a republic, but less easily in a monarchy. The head of a republic rules by a right at least no less divine than the right of the head of a monarchy. The foundation of the right of each is in the consent of the governed, though in the monarch's case the hereditary principle helps to conceal the fact, and flattery does the rest. The state is viewed as existing for the head of the state until something occurs to bring the agent of government and the state into their true relations, or transfers the agency, as in the case of the diners at the Hofburg. In their cases the claim to rule is asserted against monarchs who bar them out, rather than against the people, but the people are doubtless better satisfied with things as they are, since they are an improvement over the old order, and so they will remain until progress takes another step, by reducing monarchical control.

French Old Age Pensions.

France has adopted a plan providing pensions for the aged and infirm of not less than $2 a month. It is an approach to the Socialistic idea of division and leveling and has been forced by the Socialist propaganda that is very strong in France. In this country a pension of $2 a month would be regarded as little better than nothing, but in France it is almost, if not quite, sufficient to sustain life. The Socialists will look upon it as a triumph in legislation and many of the peasants are apt to see it as a government beneficence. In point of fact it amounts simply to a means of forcing the French people to make that much provision for their old age and to compelling the more thrifty to bear the bulk of the burden.

Government pensions are supported by taxation. The people as a whole must pay into the treasury what is paid out in the form of pensions. This they should be willing to do when the pensions are for men disabled in the service of their country, or for the families of men who are killed in their country's defense. It is a different proposition when they are compelled to contribute to the support of a man who has come to poverty because he has been profligate all of his life. It is true that in the United States and in England the public must support the delinquents in almshouses, prisons and asylums. They do it as a matter of humanity, however, and not from any sense of the right of the delinquent to claim support.

To the argument that a mere sentiment is the only difference between maintenance in an almshouse and the payment of pensions to indigent old age or infirmity there is a pertinent reply. The management of the almshouse is in the hands of the people who pay the bills, while the expenditure of a pension is solely in the judgment of the recipient. The taxpayer in the one case has something to say about how his money is spent; in the other case he has nothing to say. There will be a proportion of delinquents in either case, but it is a fair presumption there will be more under a system of old age pensions assuring some sort of subsistence than under the individual system, which puts a premium upon industry and thrift.

The pensions granted by corporations to old and crippled servants are on a better plane than government schemes for universal pension, because they are made a reward for merit and long service. In other words, they bear a relation to government pensions for army and navy, or for official civil service. The universal pension has nothing to recommend it. It is a premium upon shiftlessness.

An Explosive Critic.

An Englishman, Ponsonby, we believe, is the gentleman's name, has recently written a book in which he undertakes to describe what he calls "the dominant American characteristics." As a literary work the book does not exhibit any marks of genius, but as an effort to express the muddled conception of America and Americans that the Britishers of Ponsonby's type pick up, either through a sojourn of brief duration on the outskirts of American life on this side or by rubbing elbows with a few of our blase young sprigs who go abroad to spend papa's money, the volume may be expected to rattle its way down the corridors of history as the limit of dense and spluttering imbecility. In the start off Mr. Ponsonby calmly announces that it is his settled conviction that Americans are, as a rule, a set of cheap vulgarians, whose love of the almighty dollar overshadows any future hope of higher culture or better manners. This sweeping postulate, be it understood, is Mr. Ponsonby's basis of supply. From out this storehouse of brilliant conclusion he draws a fund of intermediate and subsidiary abuse and caricature that is chiefly diverting by reason of its falsity and stupidity.

The surprising thing is that a modern Englishman, possessed of intelligence enough to write and have published a book, should make such an exhibition of his ignorance or his prejudice in this day when the actual facts are so easily obtained. Thackery and Dickens were both guilty of missing the real American life in their hunt for material out of which to make books on America, but that was when the means of communication were less accessible. And then, too, the satire of a Dickens or a Thackery is quite another thing from the crass vituperation of a Ponsonby. There will be no disposition in this country to grow red in the face over Mr. Ponsonby's book. It isn't worth while. The Americans with whom Mr. Ponsonby has evidently associated mostly end by going to England to live permanently, so that as a reflection of American character his corse and uninformed tirade will have little effect. Attention is called to it here simply to express the doubt whether Mr. Ponsonby was ever in America. His descriptions tally with no known types of existing Americans outside of certain flunkey circles of society that advertise themselves as "so English, you know," though occasionally a returned visitor from the British metropolis admits rather reluctantly having met the same kind in some of the cafes and music halls of London, who for want of other distinguishing mark called themselves Americans.

KEEP PEGGING AWAY.

It is not a bad plan to do all that you can
In your chosen particular line,
And if progress is slow and there's little to show
For your work, not to whimper and whine.
It is better to creep than fall short in a leap,
You will come out all right if you stay;
You are bound to succeed if this warning you heed
Keep pegging away.

Perhaps once in a while you will see a man pile
Up a fortune in no time—that's true;
You'll observe that he's struck in a rich streak of luck
And you'll think that might happen to you.
But if you would advance you must not trust to chance;
You will find as a rule it won't pay;
Just a slow, steady pace is the best in life's race—
Keep pegging away.

If you're willing to climb just a step at a time
You are more apt to get to the top.
There is many a stroke to the fall of an oak
And the stone is worn through drop by drop.
It's a proverb that haste is conducive to waste,
And that Rome was not built in a day.
If you don't go too fast you will get there at last.
Keep pegging away.

Vain Regret.

After surveying the flood disasters, the Populist party of Kansas is almost sorry that it is dead.—Kansas City Journal.

The Quiet Observer.

ERASMUS WILSON.

Have you ever heard of the whisky war? Not the endless war of whisky against man, and of women against whisky, but the real thing.

Of course you have heard of it, but what do you know about it?

It was a famous war, and far more serious than the riotous outbreaks which require the presence of the militia in these days. It was a rebellion against the government, and caused President Washington much concern, because some vitally important principles were involved. But being a strong man he took strong measures to put an end to it.

The headquarters of the insurrectionists was on or near the Braddock battle field, and the entire Monongahela valley was in turmoil and trouble for some time.

An account of this affair may be of interest to others, besides the schoolboy, who has asked for facts concerning it.

* * * * *

In the year 1791 congress enacted laws levying duties upon spirits distilled in the United States, and upon stills. From the very commencement of the operation of these laws, combinations were formed in the four western counties of Pennsylvania to defeat them, and violence was repeatedly committed. The western insurgents followed, as they supposed, the example of the American revolution in opposing an excise law. Distilling was then considered a reputable business and was very extensively carried on in Western Pennsylvania. Rye, their principal crop, was too bulky to transport across the mountains; therefore, having no market for it they were obliged to convert in into the more easily transported article of whisky, which was their principal item to pay for their salt, sugar and iron. They had cultivated their lands for years at the peril of their lives, with little or no protection from the federal government, and when at last they were enabled to raise a little surplus grain, to meet their expenses of living, they were met by a law which forbade them doing as they pleased with the fruits of their labors. In effect it was as bad as government tax on wheat would be at the present day to the western farmer.

* * * * *

The indignation of the people at this law was universal. Public meetings were held, composed of the most influential men, denouncing the law and resolutions passed recommending the public to treat all persons holding the office of collector of the tax with contempt; the tax collectors were subjected to all sorts of indignities from the populace. In September, 1791, Robert Johnson, the collector for Allegheny and Washington, was waylaid, dragged from his horse, his hair cut off and he was tarred and feathered. The officer sent to serve the process against these offenders was treated in a similar manner. The next month a man named Wilson was torn from his bed by persons in disguise, carried several miles to a blacksmith's shop, stripped naked, burnt with a red-hot iron, and covered with a coat of tar and feathers. Not long after one Rosebury was tarred and feathered for speaking in favor of the law.

* * * * *

Congress, in May, 1792, passed material modification to the law, but all to no purpose. The excitement increased; not only were collectors visited with violence, but those distillers who complied with the law. The adversaries of the law went so far as to burn the barns and tear down the houses of the collectors and others, and threaten with death those who should disclose their names. So strong was the public feeling that one word in favor of the law was enough to ruin any man. It was considered as a badge of torylism. No clergyman, physician, lawyer, nor merchant was sustained by the people unless his sentiments were in opposition.

On the 16th of July, 1794, a band of about 40 individuals attacked the mansion of Gen. John Neville, chief inspector of Western Pennsylvania, situated 11 miles southwest of Pittsburgh. It was defended by Maj. Kirkpatrick, with 11 men from the garrison at Pittsburgh. The attack was previously made with small arms, and fire having been set to the house the garrison was obliged to surrender. One of the insurgents was killed.

Gen. Neville was one of the most zealous patriots of the revolution, and a man of great wealth and unbounded benevolence. During the "starving years" of the early settlement in that region he largely contributed to the necessities of the suffering pioneers; and, when necessary, he had divided his last loaf with the needy. In accepting the office he was governed by a sense of public duty. It was done at the hazard of his life and the loss of all his property. All his revolutionary services, his great popularity, were insufficient to shield him from public indignation, and his hospitable mansion was consumed to ashes in the presence of hundreds who had shared his bounty or had enjoyed his benevolence.

Insubordination everywhere prevailed; all law was disregarded; the peaceable members of society became obnoxious to the mob and their adherents; the mail was boldly robbed, and disclosed letters which added new victims to the lawless rage; the United States marshal was compelled to escape for his life down the Ohio.

* * * * *

At length, so dangerous had become the state of affairs, that President Washington, on the 7th of August (1794) issued a proclamation, commanding the insurgents to disperse, and warning all persons against abetting, aiding or comforting the perpetrators of these treasonable acts, and requiring all officers and other citizens, according to their respective duties and the laws of the land, to exert their utmost endeavors to prevent and suppress such dangerous proceedings.

Washington having ordered out 15,000 militia from the adjoining states, proceeded, in October, to Bedford, whence he gave out instructions to Gen. Lee of Virginia, who marched his troops to Pittsburgh. On their approach the insurgents were awed into submission to the law. In the spring succeeding a part of the military who had remained at Pittsburgh through the winter, under Gen. Morgan, returned; order had been fully restored, and the law acquiesced in. Some of the insurgents were imprisoned for nearly a year.

* * * * *

The story of this insurrection has in it more of thrilling interest than the best of the historical novels. The greatest men in the land, from President Washington down, were concerned in it. Among these were Albert Gallatin, Senator Ross, H. H. Brackenridge, Gen. Neville—in fact all the men of note in the state.

The meeting on Braddock field, August 1, 1794, was a particularly notable occasion. The town of Pittsburgh practically surrendered to the insurgents gathered there. These people had come to drive out or kill the agents of the government, and threatened to loot the town. This was what the citizens most feared, and in order to avert it they had decided to join the insurgents, in sympathy, if not in sentiment.

A committee of 21, composed of leading citizens, followed by the town militia, 250 strong, under command of Gen. Wilkins, marched out to the camp of the insurrectionists. There they were met by about 7,000 men armed and ready either to parley or fight. And what was more to the point, they were in dead earnest and meant to shoot to kill.

A series of resolutions, which had been passed at a meeting of citizens, expressing sympathy with the insurrectionists, and promising to use all possible influence with President Washington to secure a suspension of the objectionable excise law, and with congress to secure its repeal, was presented and accepted.

But this did not stop the president from calling for 15,000 troops and ordering them on to Pittsburgh at once. And when they arrived in the latter part of October, our leading citizens had great times trying to square their actions on Braddock field with their claims of loyalty to the government.

But the story is too long for this column, so you are respectfully referred to the printed accounts of the affair, which may be found in the "Standard History of Pittsburgh," and other reliable publications.

Safer Mail Cars.

The movement inaugurated by the railway mail clerks to have the mail cars built of steel, or more substantial than at present, is one that will be generally indorsed. There is hardly a railroad wreck in which a mail car figures that one or more of its occupants are not killed. In fact, the mail car seems to be the most dangerous part of the train. The cars are not so substantially built as are the passenger coaches. Placed between the heavier coaches and the heavy engine, they act as a "buffer" in case of a wreck—the passenger coaches telescope into the more fragile mail car and the engine does the same, with the result that its occupants rarely come out of the wreck alive.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Talked of in New York

GEORGE C. JENKS.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, June 14.—Mrs. Russell Sage has given Sunday golf a sharp dig from a different angle. She says it is not fair to the wife and children of a man for him to take his wife to the links to watch him play on Sunday when he should be enjoying a quiet day at home. In spite of the criticism of Mrs. Sage—a sweet, motherly woman, as everyone knows—golf was played earnestly, almost piously, all this day, at the various places where convenience for the sport exists. You cannot kill Sunday golf around New York except by sharp state legislation. The microbe has sunk too deep into the vitals of the people and the golfer stupefy will not believe that he is endangering his immortal soul by driving and putting over the hankers and level stretches of the course on the first day of the week. It is true that boys who play baseball in New York are in danger of being arrested if there happens to be a surly policeman on the beat. But the magistrate always discharges them with a warning and often with a rebuke for the policeman. The fact is that this big city and its environs is permeated with a liberalism as to the Christian Sabbath which would be inexplicable in Pittsburgh. It is no longer a question of religion, but of good taste. Many men play golf who are ashamed of it only because certain of their neighbors are at church while the game is in full swing, but few golf enthusiasts are inclined to give up their favorite amusement for fear of anything their neighbors may say. That was proved today by the way hundreds of golf links were actually crowded with players from 9 o'clock in the morning until dark.

Mrs. Sage an Authority.

Mrs. Sage, besides referring to golf, has said that girls have too much brains nowadays. She does not object to girls being intellectual, but she does think that if they were not educated to such a fine point they might have what she calls more heart. She was talking about New York girls specifically, but perhaps her remarks may be fitly applied to maidens in other communities. At all events, Mrs. Sage is known as a thinker and it is conceded here that when she talks about girls and their ways she can do so as authoritatively as "Uncle Russell" can lay down the law on the mighty dollar.

A Graduate of the Willard School.

It was 86 years ago that Mrs. Sage was graduated from the Emma Willard school at Troy, N. Y., and when she attended the commencement exercises there last year it was the first time she had visited her alma mater for a generation at least.

Engagement of Mme. Calve.

"The engagement of Mme. Calve for the Metropolitan opera house next season is good news for Pittsburghers," remarked a gentleman connected with the Metropolitan to me yesterday afternoon. "She will surely sing in Pittsburgh if she comes to New York, for she always says she thinks Pittsburgh is as worthy of note on account of its musical taste as it is for its steel and iron. Of course she will appear as Carmen and besides will fill any other roles that Herr Conreid selects for her. Altogether, it looks to me as if we should have a great opera season next winter."

Holiday Schedules Published.

One of the indications that the summer really has arrived is that the railroads here have issued their "holiday schedule." This means that many extra trains are run on Saturday and that when the tired worker, either with hand or brain, is ready to launch forth to the country or seashore on Saturday afternoon he can find many trains from which to choose, to say nothing of a large fleet of excursion boats going to anywhere that can be reached by water.

One of the Gang Vows Vengeance.

The cheerful disposition of the "Cherry hill gang," which amused itself with several murderous battles a few weeks ago, varying an amusement by shooting or knifing some innocent passers-by, is indicated by the remark of "Rubber" Kenny of "de gang," who was arraigned yesterday on a charge of larceny. As the magistrate held him for a further hearing he turned scowlingly to Detective Stein, who had arrested him, and growled, "Say, Steiny, you'd better be dodgin'. I'll do some six-shooter work when dis blows off. An' I'm true to me word, see?" Stein did not reply, but he said afterward that "Rubber" would be pretty sure to try to "do" him when he got out of prison and that he would be on the lookout. The "Cherry hill gang" is composed of as picturesque a set of low-browed ruffians as could be dug up with a muck rake in all New York.

Playing a Waiting Game.

The police keep on raiding the few Bowery saloons of the old villainous type that still exist. There are not many of them and the half-dozen or so that remain are so perpetually harassed by the police that they are not likely to try it much longer. What they are trying to do is to hang on until after the November election, when they hope to see Tammany returned to power. They think things will be "wide open" then, although they may be mistaken.

Picnic for 15,000 Children.

Although the weather yesterday was of a very April complexion, being sunshine and rain alternately, the Tammany alderman, John T. McCall, gave 15,000 children a "walk." They trudged from Second avenue to Central park, where they felt upon a hundred cans of milk, mountains of sandwiches and enormous quantities of ice cream and cake. There was music, and although the grass was not as dry as might have been wished, there were all kinds of games, which made the youngsters think they were having the time of their lives. One thing must be said for Tammany leaders, and that is that they know how to keep up their popularity with the children.

Keeping a Girl for a Board Bill.

They have peculiar ideas of the powers of creditors over in Hoboken. A woman has been boarding an 8-year-old girl and now that the mother is unable to pay a bill of $84 for seven months' board the boarding house keeper will not give the child to its mother. A suit in chancery will begin and the right of the woman to hold the child will be tested. The mother is out of work and cannot pay the bill, she says, but she cannot see by what right the other woman keeps the little girl. The courts will have to settle the matter and meanwhile the women would like to fly into each others hair, to use the flowery language of Hoboken.

Big Day at Old Coney.

Coney Island again today had the biggest day of the season. If this kind of thing keeps up with each Sunday being bigger than any other Coney Island must either extend its borders or a few thousands of its visitors will be crowded into the Atlantic ocean.

The Lost Ball.

Forgotten was the lovely girl
Who there beside me sat—
One eye was on the pitcher, and
The other on the bat.
Score was three to two against us,
The inning was the last,
Two men were out, the bases full—
Our hearts were beating fast.

Hans Wagner faced the pitcher, and
The ball sizzed o'er the plate,
It was a strike, three wild ones came,
Then another cut the plate.
A breathless silence settled o'er
The pale, expectant fans—
The only voice the coacher's shout,
"Now for a good one, Hans!"

The pitcher's arm swung o'er his head,
The ball sailed for the plate—
Right there my recollection ends,
I ne'er can tell its fate,
For that sweet girl—I loved her once,
But never after that—
Tugged at my arm and loud exclaimed:
"Just see that lovely hat!"

Advertised and Found Trouble.

"No more for me!" was the greeting of a friend the other day. He had a careworn look as of a man short of sleep and long on work and worry.

"You know that stuff I wanted to sell and told you about the other day," he continued. "Well, I took your advice and advertised the fact. Now look at me."

"Sold the stuff, didn't you?" I asked.

"Yes, sold it," he replied, "and for more than I expected to get. But I've been the busiest man in the ward ever since I inserted that ad. You know I work late at night, and do not get up very early in the morning. Well, I've been getting up early this week, all right. People began coming after that stuff before the ink on the papers was dry, and of course, I had to get up to make good. If I had had twice as much stuff I could have sold it. Buyers continued to come for two days after I had nothing to sell. Next time I will pay extra to have the ad run in only half the edition. This strenuous life is too much for me, please."

The Sweet Girl Graduate.

The following was contributed by the Telegraph editor whose daily duty it is to fix up the stories of the out-of-town commencements, and perhaps their number has soured him:

THEN.
When first I saw her, flushed with pride,
She stood upon the stage,
And read her college essay on
The follies of the age;
Like sizzling cannon balls of speech,
Her eloquence she hurled,
And showed the proper way to steer
This now misguided world.

NOW.
When next I saw her, there she was,
At six or so a week,
Her business selling remnants, and
Her manner mild and meek.

For Man and Beast.

A gentleman of my acquaintance, who works at night and consequently sleeps late in the day, recently secured a new servant, a German girl not too long from the Fatherland. The other morning his wife was in his room and asked him if he wanted anything sent up, as she was going downstairs.

"Send me a bottle of beer," was the request that proves this little tale is several days old.

In giving the order for the beer the wife also told the girl to take some meat along for the dog, which occupies the same room most of the time. In a few moments she arrived with a large plate of raw meat and a bottle.

"Der meat is for der dog, der beer is for you," she said, depositing the tray on the table.

A Story of Long Ago.

The usual crowd was sitting around the stove in the village store. The fire was burning brightly and the postmaster had just thrown open the door, sending the rays of heat and light to the furthermost corners of the badly-lighted room. Suddenly a patriarch with a long gray beard and very little hair was moved to speak.

"It was a hot day in June," he began.

"Aw, cut out that last century talk," exclaimed a young fellow who had just entered and was brushing the snow from his clothing. "Seems like you've begun to believe some of them tall ones you've been telling us for the last half century."

What happened on that fabled hot day in June will never be known, as the patriarch at this juncture had a call to come home and carry in some firewood.

If Not, Why Not?

Suppose that in some manner the immigration to this country should suddenly be stopped—that for a period of two or three years no foreigners, either male or female, were to come to our shores. What would happen? How would we build our railroads, our trolley lines, our sewerage systems, etc? Who would till the soil? Who would dig the trenches, the ditches and cellars? And who would do the drudgery in the kitchen, the laundry work and scrubbing? Would our common school system supply the deficiency?—Oil City Blizzard.

LOOK ASKANCE AT CARNEGIE'S OFFER

American Society of Civil Engineers Doubtful About Million Dollar Club.

ARE A VERY EXCLUSIVE LOT

Object to Association With Men of Same Occupation Who Have Not the Requisite Professional Standing—Have New York Home of Their Own.

Andrew Carnegie's recent offer to give $1,000,000 or more if necessary to erect a great building in New York as a home for the engineering societies of the country, may not be accepted on the part of the American society of Civil Engineers, which has just closed its annual convention at Asheville, N. C. This information is given by members who have just returned from the meeting.

During the convention the question of the acceptance of Mr. Carnegie's offer was discussed at length, but no conclusion was arrived at. The debate, however, developed a strong sentiment against an acceptance. Mr. Carnegie's offer was made through the influence of Charles F. Scott, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

The prevailing sentiment among the members of the American society of Civil Engineers is against accepting Mr. Carnegie's gift for its members without at least some modifications in its provisions. The feeling of professional ethics runs strong in this, the oldest of the technical societies to which the offer is made. The American society of Civil Engineers is the oldest of the number included in Mr. Carnegie's project, and excludes from its ranks all except those who have actual professional standing. The society owns its own fine property in Fifty-seventh street, in New York, and is numerically and financially in the enjoyment of great prosperity.

While the Asheville convention took no decided action on the subject, sentiment was emphatically against affiliating in a new home with those members of the Engineer's club who are not of the profession. The Engineer's club numbers among its members a large element who, while interested in engineering, are not of the profession, and permanent association with this class the American society of Civil Engineers seeks to avoid. They welcome the project to have a home with the other two societies whose professional status is fully determined.

Among the Pittsburghers who attended the Asheville convention were: Emil Swensson and wife, J. N. Chester, Capt. William Martin, George S. Davison, County Engineer Charles Davis and George P. Barnsley.

ROCKEFELLER MAKES ADDRESS TO CHILDREN

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, June 14.—Following his custom John D. Rockefeller today delivered an address to the Sunday school of Euclid Avenue Baptist church, of which he is superintendent, this being one of the features of the Children's Day exercises.

He was given an enthusiastic welcome as usual, and close attention was given to what he said. Mr. Rockefeller congratulated the school upon its growth during the past year. He referred to those who had died during the year also. In that connection, he paid a tribute to the honesty of a young man who had died. This young man, he said, had come to him one day saying:

"Mr. Rockefeller, I want to settle a little financial matter with you."

Mr. Rockefeller asked him to what he referred.

"I borrowed some money from you," said the man, "and I want to pay it."

Mr. Rockefeller said he did not distinctly remember the loan.

"But I owe you the money, and I want to pay it," said the young man.

"All right," said Mr. Rockefeller, "you may pay me."

"But I want to pay the interest, also," was his remark.

The debt and interest were paid, and Mr. Rockefeller pointed a lesson in honesty from that incident.

"Some people," he said, "are prone to forget, but this young man did not."

BAD NEGRO TO GO SOUTH.

Tried to Shoot Chattanooga Officer and Escaped to Pittsburgh.

Jay Williams, a negro, was taken from the county jail last night and placed in Central station by Sheriff W. P. Hays of Chattanooga. Early this morning Hays will take Williams back to Tennessee for trial on a charge of attempted murder.

Williams was being arrested in Chattanooga on December 17 last by Deputy Sheriff A. L. Hartman, who wanted him for larceny, when Williams shot him in the abdomen and thigh. He escaped at once and was finally located here, employed at a furniture house in Penn avenue. Inspector McStay arrested him and kept him in jail pending the arrival of Sheriff Hays with requisition papers.

Traction Car on Fire.

Car No. 3160 of the Frankstown avenue line caught fire last night at Thirty-third street and Penn avenue. The passengers got out and the motorman ran the car through to the police station at Twenty-sixth street, where the attaches put out the fire. The machinery of the car was rendered useless and the floor was badly burned.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—Herbert W. Wilson, general auditor of the Harrison Chemical Company, was killed by lightning here today. He was out sailing when a storm came up and was in the act of fastening the sail boat to a tree on the shore of the Schuylkill river when lightning struck the tree, killing him instantly.

THREW HERSELF BEFORE CAR IN ALLEGHENY

Mrs. Rose Menigat of Natrona, While Temporarily Deranged, Suddenly Seized With Suicidal Mania and Is Fatally Hurt.

Mrs. Rose Menigat of Natrona was perhaps fatally injured yesterday by a traction car in Western avenue, while out walking with a trained nurse. The woman was partially deranged, and her sudden conceived idea of suicide was carried out so quickly that it was impossible to prevent her. Mrs. Menigat was struck senseless by the car, and late last night she had not recovered consciousness. It was feared at the Presbyterian hospital that she might not recover. No bones seemed to be broken and the skull was not fractured, so that it is supposed that she is suffering from concussion of the brain.

Mrs. Menigat is about 45 years old. She is the wife of J. Menigat of Natrona, and is the mother of eight children. Nearly a month ago she became sick with a serious ailment and in convalescing the usual symptoms of temporary derangement followed. She was brought to the Presbyterian hospital and had her own physician and private trained nurse, neither being connected with the hospital. Her health, both physical and mental, was progressing favorably, and it was supposed that she would soon be entirely well. The doctor prescribed open-air exercise for her, and yesterday morning her nurse took her out.

The two women were walking along Western avenue. At Grant avenue a Western avenue car came along at a pretty fair rate of speed, when Mrs. Menigat suddenly darted from the side of the nurse and hurled herself in front of it. The car struck her before she was prone on the ground and had the motorman not made a quick stop, the wheels would have passed over her body. As it was, she was pushed 50 feet by the fender. The Pittsburgh Railways Company's ambulance was at the scene before the hospital could be notified, and Mrs. Menigat was taken back to the institution.

Baccalaureate Sermon at Harvard Preached by the Rev. Dr. Van Dyke.

President Thwing Delivers a Talk on "The Best Work"—Commencement of University of Pennsylvania, at Which the Rev. Dr. Tupper Talks.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., June 14.—The Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke of New York, was the preacher of the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates of Harvard university this afternoon. Appleton chapel was crowded and the speaker's words were listened to with keen interest. He took for his theme "The Good Old Way," and said in part:

"I ask you to stand in the ways and see. I do not mean to say that you have not been doing this to a certain extent during your years here at fair Harvard. This college yard, like the great world, is crossed by human footsteps which make paths leading in all directions. Men travel through this place on different ways, and I suppose some of you have noticed the fact and thought a little about it. I earnestly advise you to ask for the old paths, where is the good way.

"I do not regard this as a mere counsel of conservatism, an unqualified commendation of antiquity. True, it implies that the good way will not be a new discovery, a track that you and I strike out for ourselves. In the realm of conduct that which is altogether original is likely to be false, and that which is true is likely to have some footprints on it. When a man comes to us with a scheme of life which he has made all by himself, we may safely say to him, as the old composer said to the young musician who brought him a symphony of the future, 'It is both new and beautiful; but that which is new is not beautiful, and that which is beautiful is not new.'

CLEVELAND, O., June 14.—President Thwing of Western Reserve university tonight delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduate classes of Adelbert college and the College for Women of Western Reserve university. His subject was "The Best Work." His text was: St. Matthew, iv, 19-20: "And he saith unto them, follow me and I will make you fishers of men. And they straightway left their nets and followed him."

Dr. Thwing's sermon was a thoughtful analysis of the philosophy of work and of the feeling that men and women should enter into their chosen spheres of avocation. He said that one's life work should be done with as much interest and care as if each worker believed that God himself called them to it, as he called the apostles to work in his ministry.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—Commencement week at the University of Pennsylvania began today with the baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Dr. Herr Boyce Tupper at the First Baptist church. The edifice was crowded with the graduates and their friends. Provost Harrison occupied the platform with Dr. Tupper, both wearing academy gowns. Dr. Tupper's subject was "Independence and Interdependence." His text was Romans 14, 12. "Everyone of us shall give an account of himself to God;" and Romans 14, 7. "No one of us liveth to himself."

Dr. Tupper said that independence is more popular today than interdependence, but while this is true, it is equally true that absolute independence is an impossible relation; that the law of intimate connection and mutual dependence binds the whole human family in an inseparable unity. Continuing, he said:

"We are recognizing today, as never before, perhaps, that we are members one of another and debtors one to another, that neither languages nor customs, widely as they may vary, interfere with the strange oneness of community of nations. Even we of this splendid twentieth century of enlightenment and progress are acknowledging our indebtedness to faraway nations—to Rome for the principles that underlie our system of laws, to Greece for our ideals of art and to Judea for the inspiration of our highest faith. It is the great truth of universal dependence and interdependence, no man living to himself, no nation living to itself."

SOUTH SIDE BOY DROWNED.

Water Was Cold and He Took Cramps—Young Man Killed at Braddock.

James P. Higgins, 8 years old, of No. 3115 Wampum street, South Side, was drowned while swimming in the Monongahela river yesterday morning at the foot of South Thirty-fourth street. His cousin, James Kerr, of No. 3129 Wampum street, would not go in the water, as it was too cold, and tried to persuade Higgins not to.

The latter was unmindful of the warning and jumped into the water. He was seized with cramps and called for help. Kerr shoved a board to Higgins as he was struggling in the water. The boy sank and the board floated over his head. Rody Campbell, also of Wampum street, came along a half hour afterward, and finding young Kerr crying, learned of the accident. He took off his clothes and recovered the body after two attempts.

Paul Suchy of No. 1140 River street, Braddock, was killed by a train in the yards of the Edgar Thomson steel works yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. He was repairing the tracks and was struck by an ingot car. He was 19 years old and a Pole.

CAPTAIN'S WIFE KILLED IN A SCHOONER WRECK

PORTLAND, ME., June 14.—One life was lost by the wrecking of the new five-masted schooner Washington B. Thomas of Thomaston, N. B., on Stratton's Island, within four miles of Old Orchard, in the gale of Friday night, while bound with 4,000 tons of soft coal from Norfolk, Va., for Portland. The wife of Capt. William J. Lermond, to whom he was married a year ago was killed by the immense waves breaking in the cabin. Her body was washed away in the darkness and has not been recovered. Lermond and crew of 18 men were rescued today by a volunteer life-saving crew. One seaman had a leg broken and the captain, engineer and four seamen were badly bruised.

BISHOP OF JARO IS CONSECRATED

Mgr. Rooker, Formerly of Washington, Honored by Church at Rome.

MARTINELLI THE OFFICIANT

The Rev. Dennis J. Daugherty, Formerly of Philadelphia, Was Also Consecrated Bishop of Nueva Segoria. Splendid Ceremonies Mark Occasion.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ROME, June 14.—The consecration today of Mgr. Rooker, formerly secretary of the Apostolic delegation at Washington, as bishop of Jar, Philippine islands, and of the Rev. Dennis J. Dougherty, formerly of Philadelphia, as bishop of Nuevia Segovia, were grand and impressive ceremonies. The latter was consecrated first, the act being performed by Cardinal Satolli in the church of St. John and St. Paul, which is under his jurisdiction, assisted by Mgr. Gaspari, secretary of the Congregation of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs, and Archbishop Grazioli.

The ceremony took place to the accompaniment of beautiful music, which reached its height of sweetness when the newly consecrated bishop, accompanied by the officiating clergy, went through the church giving his first episcopal benediction. Thirty students of the American college, including all those from Philadelphia, which is Bishop Dougherty's archdiocese, were present.

The consecration of Mgr. Rooker, with the same ceremony, conducted in this case by Cardinal Martinelli, assisted by the archbishop of Camilli and the bishop of Virili, was celebrated later in the church of the American college. The two ceremonies were followed by a sumptuous collation, attended by many distinguished guests, including Archbishop Stonor, Archbishop Seton and all the rectors of the English speaking colleges.

Bishop Rooker received warm greetings from his many friends in Rome, where he resided until eight years ago, and to both the new bishops came many telegrams of congratulation from the United States, one of the most cordial being from Rector O'Connell of the Catholic university in Washington, of which both were graduates. Both will proceed to the Philippines by way of America, Bishop Dougherty sailing from Cherbourg June 24 and Bishop Rooker July 1.

ZANARDELLI'S ILLNESS DELAYS SETTLEMENT

ROME, June 14.—The political crisis continues. Former Premier Zanardelli was unable to go to the quirinal today to see the king, owing to illness. He arose this morning but was obliged to return to bed. This circumstance is delaying the solution of the crisis. It is reported that if Signor Zanardelli persists in his refusal to form a cabinet, the king will call on former Interior Minister Giolitti.

PHILIPPINE HEMP WILL BE INSPECTED

MANILA, June 14.—The government has drafted a bill to prevent the exportation of inferior hemp. It provides for a system of government inspection and grading of the product. There have been numerous complaints in the markets of the world of the inferior quality of the exported hemp and the trade in it is thereby endangered. A commission will meet the growers and exporters before action is taken.

CHEAP EXCURSIONS FROM THE RATE WAR

Kansas City as Result of Railroad Rivalry Enters on Season of Low Fares.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—A rush of outbound travel has been precipitated by what promises to be the liveliest passenger rate war that Kansas City has known for several years. The war began in Kansas City with the cutting of the round trip rate to Indianapolis to $10. Tickets sold today for $14.50 for the round trip between Kansas City and Chicago, and $9.50 was the round trip rate between Kansas City and St. Louis.

The indications point to a protracted rate war, with the prospect of the cheapest excursions known for several years between Missouri river points and extreme eastern points in New England, with correspondingly cheap rates to intermediate points.

The competition was started by the granting of a cheap rate for the Y. M. C. A. summer school at Chicago. Then the meeting of Modern Woodmen at Indianapolis followed the granting of cheap rates for the summer school, with the announcement of a cheap rate to Chicago and also a one-fare rate from Chicago to points in New England and New York.

DEALERS TO RETALIATE.

Agents of Beef Packers Will Be Prosecuted for Violating Oleo Statutes.

NEW YORK June 14.—(Special.)—According to statements made by several of New York's most prominent butter, poultry and egg dealers, the internal revenue department at Washington, as well as the revenue officers of New Jersey and New York, will shortly be called upon to arrest and prosecute certain alleged agents of the large western packing houses who for several years have been selling and delivering oleomargarine in New York and Jersey City in violation of the state and national laws.

This step has been decided upon by the leading commission houses in retaliation against the packers for invading the New York poultry, butter and egg market.

Considered, and undoubtedly is, the strongest Taffeta Silk made—not as lustrous as some, but bright enough for all purposes.
When a staple thing like Black Taffeta is sold on such a basis as this, there's a reason for it, but in this case the reduction and saving is far greater than the cause warrants.
Nothing but occasional rough threads that you'll find in any Taffeta, no matter how much you pay.
Probably more of such threads in these, but not enough to hurt—anyway, the rough threads are as strong as the smooth, and don't hurt the Silk, except the looks, and that but little.
Therefore, 75c Black Taffeta Silk for 55c, especially for women who want it for Petticoats or for Linings, is something to be prompt for.

JAMES O'HARA PASSED AWAY

Member of Well-Known Family Succumbed to Pneumonia at His Allegheny Home.

HE LEAVES A LARGE FORTUNE

He Was a Grandson of Gen. O'Hara of Revolutionary Fame and a First Cousin of Mrs. Mary Schenley—Made Money in Oil and Realty.

James O'Hara, a member of one of Allegheny county's most prominent families, died at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his residence, No. 216 East Stockton avenue, Allegheny, of pneumonia. He was 82 years of age and took sick while out in the cold and unseasonable weather of last Friday. He first took a severe cold, which later developed into pneumonia, and he expired with a house servant at his bedside.

Mr. O'Hara was related to a number of prominent families in Pittsburgh and vicinity. He was the third son of Richard Butler O'Hara and Mary Fitzsimmons O'Hara. The former was a son of Gen. James O'Hara, who was prominent in the Revolutionary war, and who settled in Fort Pitt in 1773. He was an Indian trader here before the war. Gen. O'Hara was a presidential elector when Washington was elected for a second term. He also served for two years as United States quartermaster.

James O'Hara married Miss Elizabeth Price of Hillsboro, O., who died in 1882, and who was a sister of Mrs. Albert H. Childs of Amberson avenue. His father and the mother of Mrs. Mary Schenley, the prominent Pittsburgh woman, were brother and sister, making the deceased a nephew of Mrs. Mary Denny, mother of Miss Mathilda Denny of Allegheny.

The deceased has one sister living, Mrs. Mary C. Darlington, widow of William M. Darlington. Mrs. Samuel A. Ammon of this city, is her daughter. Mrs. Darlington lives at her home, "Guyasuta," O'Hara township. Mr. O'Hara is survived besides his sister by three daughters and one son. They are Mrs. George Beecher of Hillsboro, O.; Mrs. S. T. Schoyer of Mexico City, Mexico; Mrs. Frederick G. Kay and Richard W. O'Hara of Pittsburgh.

For a number of years Mr. O'Hara was very active in social and business life in this city. He was formerly in the oil business, in which he made considerable money. This he invested in real estate and amassed an immense fortune. During the last decade he had not been actively engaged in any business. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church of this city, having joined quite early in life.

EMPLOYES TO STRIKE.

New York Contractors Will Attempt to Compel Workmen to Come to Agreement.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(Special.)—New York in the morning will experience the novel situation of a strike of employers against employes. The contractors are not satisfied with any temporary truce and until the unions of the city will make a promise to continue work at the present increased rate of pay the contractors will not furnish them work.

Ninety per cent of all the building work that has been going on in New York since the building material yards were opened last week will shut down again as the result of a decision reached by the governing board of the Building Trades Employers' association. This action is taken by the employers as the only method by which they can force the unions to come to a definite agreement on the new plan of arbitration which the employers have held before them. They are determined to carry the fight to a finish.

WEDDING A SURPRISE.

Couple Married in Waynesburg Church During the Sunday Services.

WAYNESBURG, PA., June 14.—(Special.)—At the close of the services at the Cumberland Presbyterian church today the pastor asked the congregation to remain seated when two young people, William Stoy and Miss Ella Core, stepped from the choir and were married. The event was a surprise.

A feature of the service was a hymn which had been selected by the pastor, the Rev. James E. Garis, before he knew of the young couple's intentions. When "Oh Happy Day That Fixed My Choice" was rendered at the closing hymn it caused a blush and smile to spread over the face of the prospective groom. Mr. Stoy is a printer, formerly of this place, but now resides at Homestead. His bride is a daughter of O. C. Core of Waynesburg.

Red Tape Interferes With Promptness in Trial for Murder of American.

DES MOINES, IA., June 14.—The case of J. H. Greenwell, whose extradition on a charge of murdering J. L. Stanfield, near Tamiapas, is demanded by the Mexican government, has been set for Monday by United States Commissioner C. M. Arthur. Manuel Martinez, the Mexican commissioner, has asked a further continuance.

The defense will not consent unless it shall be given 30 days in which to secure rebuttal evidence from Mexico. The new extradition treaty makes no provision for securing such evidence and Senor Martinez has asked for instructions from the Mexican ambassador at Washington.

OPENING TAKES PLACE TODAY.

Clevelanders Will Be Present at First Day of Pittsburgh Industrial Exchange.

The Pittsburgh industrial exchange, which was granted a charter on Thursday, will open today. The exchange is to be operated in the interest of owners of stocks not listed on the Pittsburgh exchange. There is a large number of these which are not dealt in on the big exchange and those engaged in brokerage business which most largely affects these stocks believe that a new exchange to handle these heretofore unlisted stocks will be profitable.

A number of Cleveland men will attend the opening. The Cleveland Oil & Mining exchange will be closed all day to allow members to attend the opening. The Cleveland party left last night over the Pennsylvania railroad in a special car. The new exchange is organized with an active membership of 75 members. Clevelanders control about 20 per cent. While here the Cleveland party will be entertained by the local officers and will be the guests of the exchange.

CITIES EMERGE FROM THE WATER

Situation at East St. Louis Is Greatly Relieved and Trains Are Starting on Railroads.

THE FLOOD TIDE IS NOW PAST

Rehabilitation of the Towns, Burying the Dead, Rebuilding Dikes and Caring for the Homeless Now Occupy Time and Attention.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 14.—The flood situation in East St. Louis and other East Side cities was greatly relieved today and the first train to cross the Eades bridge since the Mississippi passed the danger mark was sent out by the Vandalia today. Tomorrow the Baltimore & Ohio will send out its first train from St. Louis. The Illinois Central sent a train over the bridge tonight. The Big Four will continue the use of ferry boats for connection between Alton and St. Louis for several days, but by the middle of the week regular train service out of St. Louis east and north should be resumed by all roads.

The water around the relay depot at East St. Louis was only two and one-half feet deep, as against six feet two days ago, showing that the rapid fall in the river is rapidly draining off the backwater, which flooded all the American bottoms, inundated Madison, Venice and Granite City and three-fourths of East St. Louis, and did damage roughly estimated at $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The flood situation is now merely aftermath—a task of locating the missing, burying the dead, rehabilitating the cities, rebuilding the dikes and caring for those unfortunates left homeless and helpless by the great wave of waters. A great train of coal came across the bridge today from the East Side, the first which has entered the city in a week. The coal situation was becoming desperate and several large buildings had been compelled to shut down their elevators for lack of coal for the engines.

The Vandalia was enabled to run its trains out of St. Louis today through one of the most novel and enterprising feats of engineering ever attempted in this country. A bridge 60 feet long was constructed four and one-half feet underneath the surface of the water at a point where it was 25 feet deep, and trains were run across the rails while the water still covered them to a depth of 18 inches.

KANSAS CITY APPEAL.

KANSAS CITY, MO., June 14.—The relief committee of Kansas City, Kan., has given out the following:

"In connection with relief for the flood sufferers in Kansas City, Kan., it is very important that the people of the United States should understand that there are two Kansas Citys—Kansas City in Missouri, with about 280,000 people, and Kansas City in Kansas, with over 90,000 people, adjoining the former city on the west and separated from it by the state line; that each city has a separate organization for the relief of its flood sufferers, and that in Kansas City, Kan., an area including 23,000 people has been swept by a rushing flood of from 10 to 30 feet in depth, which has carried away more than one-third of the houses in this district, has almost ruined another third, and that in the entire district the merchandise, household goods and clothing have either been washed away or almost totally ruined by a 10 days' submersion and a deposit in all buildings of from two to four feet of mud.

"With the falling of the water, employment to a large number has been given and the conditions thereby much improved. There remain, however, many thousands dependent on charity for shelter, food, clothing, and the most meager outfit of cooking utensils and furniture. These cannot be supplied without outside aid and unless it is furnished to a large amount the most dire suffering and widespread sickness and even death must result. No more worthy or urgent cause can be presented than that of the flood sufferers of Kansas City, Kan., and we appeal to the generous people of the country to aid in supplying these pressing needs of our stricken people. Money and supplies should be sent to T. B. Gilbert, mayor of Kansas City, Kan.

"By a vote of the committee—T. B. Gilbert, mayor, chairman executive committee; J. L. Carlisle, secretary of the executive committee; W. A. Simpson, chairman committee on outside aid.

LAUGHING HYENA MET UNTIMELY END

NEW YORK, June 14.—(Special.)—After a wild chase through Coney Island a laughing hyena, which escaped from a menagerie, was killed this morning by bullets from the revolvers of policemen and others who had joined in the pursuit. Forty wounds were found in the body. The hyena was tame and a great favorite with children. Its cage was left open this morning and it wandered out.

BATHERS SOUGHT REFUGE FROM RAIN

NEW BRIDGES MADE ABROAD

American Firms Unable to Supply Ironwork for Traction Structures Under Two Years—Have Too Many Contracts Ahead—Germans Secured the Order.

[THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU. YOUNG'S OCEAN PIER, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 14.

This has been another rainy Sunday at the shore. There was a thunderstorm during the night and all day there were alternate half hours of sunshine and rain. Just as soon as the visitors ventured on the boardwalk for a stroll a heavy shower would drive them to shelter. The sea was rough, precluding sailing and fishing.

A score or more of visitors donned bathing suits during one of the sunshiny half hours, and though they had been plunging into breakers, when a shower came up they made a bee-line for the bath houses as though they were afraid of getting wet. This is one of the unexplained things about the shore. If the beach is full of bathers, with hundreds of men and women being buffeted about by the breakers and enjoying the dashing of the spray over them, a few drops of rain will drive them either under the boardwalk for shelter or to the bath houses until the shower is over.

BRIDGES FROM GERMANY.

An indication of the great prosperity of the iron trade is shown in the fact that the bridges which are to be used on the meadows by the Suburban Traction Company, which is building a line on the meadow pike, are being imported from Germany. They have been made in Essen upon a rush order from the trolley company. The officials in the concern are not unpatriotic, but when they sought to have the bridges built by the American bridge builders they were confounded with the reply that they could not be delivered within two years.

"But we want them in two months," was the answer sent back by telegraph. "Have too many orders ahead and cannot deliver before two years," was the discouraging answer. That would mean that the trolley could not be operated until two years in the future. Agents of German firms in New York and Philadelphia were called in to solve the problem and they found that they could fill a rush order within six months, and the contract was given to the firm in Essen, which now has the bridge complete and ready to be shipped if it has not already started on its journey across the ocean.

One of the officials of the trolley line said, in speaking of the extraordinary contract: "This is the first time I have ever known American bridge firms to be so overwhelmed with contracts. It speaks well for the prosperity of the country and the prosperity will be reflected in the travel which will come to Atlantic City during the summer. While we are disappointed with the failure to get the bridges in America, we are glad to hear of the conditions existing in commercial and building circles, for it means business for the new road."

WILL ENTERTAIN THE GOVERNOR.

Gov. Franklin P. Murphy of New Jersey will likely be the guest of the Islanders next Saturday. This new organization is to have its first dinner and the governor is to be the guest of honor. The governor hopes to so arrange his pressing official cares that he can spend a few days in Atlantic City for rest and recreation.

The dinner which will be an elaborate affair, is to be held in the Hotel Windsor. Proprietor G. Jason Waters, who has been in Europe for the past four or six weeks, is to return home today and he will take personal charge of the event. He intends to have the decorations novel and pretty and the menu one of the best that can be prepared by the chef of the Windsor. Whether any other guests will attend the banquet is unknown but the Islanders are ambitious to have several notables among the party which will gather around the table in celebrating one of the first dinners given under the auspices of the new organization.

ATTORNEY GENERAL KNOX'S PRIVATE SECRETARY

CHARLES C. LONG,
Who Is an Ohio Man.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—(Special.)—The position of private secretary to a cabinet officer is a very responsible one. To successfully hold such a position one must possess many qualities, the most important being tact. The private secretary, in addition to being well informed concerning the affairs of his chief and being well posted on matters generally, must also have as much diplomacy as an ambassador. All of these necessary qualities seem to be happily combined in Mr. Charles C. Long, private secretary to Attorney General P. C. Knox. Mr. Long is an Ohio man. He was born at Gallipolis and later moved to Steubenville, where he graduated from the public schools. Then he went to Pittsburgh and attended the Curry university, from which he graduated as the honor man of his class. He went to Boston, where he remained for over a year, and on November 15, 1901, came to Washington, having been appointed private secretary by the attorney general. Mr. Long has the knack of handling visitors easily and smoothly and yet expeditiously, and he is familiar in a general way with all the workings of the law department of the government. Standing as a buffer between the attorney general and the great crowd of callers who insist upon personal interviews with Mr. Knox, he is a great aid to his chief. Although Mr. Knox is easy of access to those who have business with him, yet a cabinet officer's minutes are valuable, and a capable private secretary enables him to economize his time. Mr. Long's daily routine demonstrates his ability.

CHEAP METHOD OF REFINING COPPER

Isaac Baum of Uniontown Distinguishes Himself at Cornell University.

PARTNER IN NEW DISCOVERY

With Florence Joseph Schwab of New Orleans He Devises Money-Saving Method of Treating the Red Metal. Will Save 20 Per Cent.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ITHACA, N. Y., June 14.—Isaac Baum of Uniontown, Pa., and Florence Joseph Schwab of New Orleans, students in the engineering department at Cornell, have just made discoveries which will probably revolutionize the copper refining industry. They explain their discovery in a thesis on which they collaborated. Baum and Schwab have received a mark of 98 per cent on their treatise, the highest in the history of Cornell.

For some time past these young men have been experimenting day and night to discover the most economical conditions under which to refine copper. In the thesis which they have submitted they describe a process for refining copper which professors here say will stand any test and will save copper refineries millions of dollars annually.

They demonstrate that the temperature at which copper is now refined and the current which is passed through the refining vats are not high enough. By using the temperature and the current density, which these young inventors have calculated, the original cost of a refinery will be reduced more than one-half.

"All that I will say at present," declared Baum today, "is that I believe all the refineries in this country will soon use our method."

Prof. Wilder D. Bancroft, under whose supervision Baum and Schwab have been working, will translate the thesis into German and it will be read before the Electro-Chemical society of Berlin. At this meeting the details of the discovery will be explained in full.

About $80,000,000 of copper is refined in this country annually and $12,000,000 worth of silver and $4,000,000 worth of gold recovered therefrom. The present cost of refining is $5 per ton, and with the new method more than $1 on a ton will be saved.

Baum and Schwab have stood at the head of their class since entering the university. Baum was recently elected a member of the Honorary Scientific society, Sigma Phi, and has accepted an instructorship in electro-chemistry in the university.

RAN INTO A PATROL WAGON

Car Got Beyond Control and a Policeman Was Injured.

Patrol wagon No. 10, while answering a call for a prisoner at Second avenue and Rutherglen street, was struck by a Second avenue car and badly wrecked shortly before 11 o'clock last night. The wagon was standing in front of the patrol box when the car, which had gotten beyond the control of the motorman, crashed into it.

Wagonman John McGinty was thrown out against a telegraph pole. He received a broken nose and was injured about the back and side. The side of the wagon was broken in and one of the rear wheels was smashed. McGinty was attended by Dr. A. E. McCandless and later sent to his home in Forward avenue.

SUNDAY MURDER IN OHIO VILLAGE

A LYNCHING WAS IMMINENT

Police Save Prisoner from Mob Vengeance by Secretly Taking Him to Bucyrus—Crime Said to Be Due to Wide-Open Saloons.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CRESTLINE, O., June 14.—This afternoon Frank Dilling, a Portuguese, shot and killed George Cook in the barroom of the Emerson house at this place. Dilling was intoxicated and had gone to the bar for a drink. A bystander made a remark which he did not like, and he at once pulled a gun and began to shoot. Cook ran to escape and Dilling turned upon him and shot him through the back as he was leaving the place.

The bullet penetrated the heart and he fell dead instantly. Dilling ran, but was overtaken by a mob which quickly gathered. He was beaten with sticks and clubs and trampled under foot before the police could interfere. So roughly was he used that he was thought to be dead, but after being taken to the jail he recovered.

The news that he was not dead soon spread and a mob gathered to finish up the job, but before they could secure the man the police obtained a buggy and started for Bucyrus to put their prisoner in the county jail. The mob was beaten back and kept at bay at the point of revolvers. The posse of police escaped with their prisoner and arrived at Bucyrus soon after dark.

The people of Crestline are aroused, and, as the two towns are connected by an electric line, trouble is feared, as Crestline people are arriving at Bucyrus on every car, while others obtained buggies and followed the prisoner over. The jail is strong, and, if necessary, the local military company will be called. The murdered man was only 28, a plasterer by trade and popular. Dilling is 25 and a worker on the Pennsylvania section gang. The trouble is attributed to the wide-open Sundays which Crestline enjoys.

STRIKE OF LINEMEN.

Employes of Telephone Company in Ohio and Mississippi Valley Quit Work.

LOUISVILLE, KY., June 14.—Between 100 and 150 linesmen, employed by the Cumberland Telephone Company in this city, went on strike Saturday at midnight. The men are asking for an increase in pay. The strike, so far, is confined to the linemen employed in Louisville, although for nearly a year there has been talk of a general strike of the linemen in all cities where the Cumberland company operates.

The Cumberland has exchanges in New Orleans, Nashville, Memphis, Natchez and other large cities along the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. The Home Telephone Company, the large independent concern, denied that there is any prospect of a sympathetic strike on the part of the linemen employed by that corporation.

CONSTRUCTION OF SHIPS DELAYED

United States Shipbuilding Company Has Contracts for Numerous Vessels.

COMPLICATIONS ARE FEARED

Aggregate Amount Tied Up in Uncompleted Battleships, Cruisers and Smaller Auxiliary Craft Is $25,000,000. Summary Action Likely to Be Taken.

Danger for the United States navy lurks in the United States Shipbuilding Company crisis and President Roosevelt knows it. More than one dozen warships of various types are under construction in the various yards of the United States Shipbuilding Company and if the affairs of this corporation become further involved their speedy completion is threatened.

No consideration will be shown by the administration for the persons whose financial thumbscrewing has brought the affairs of this corporation to a point where the defense of the nation is interfered with.

A prominent administration official today declared that this was "merely the bursting of one bladder, others will pop up soon." The contracts which the various yards of the shipbuilding trust have with the government aggregate more than $25,000,000. These companies all belonging to the United States Shipbuilding Company have the following warships under construction:

Crescent Shipbuilding Company (Lewis Nixon) at Elizabethport, N. J., cruiser Chattanooga, submarine torpedo boats Porpoise, Shark and Plunger.

Bath Iron works, Bath, Me., battleship Georgia, protected cruiser Cleveland.

Union Iron works, San Francisco, the battleship Ohio, cruisers California, South Dakota, Tacoma and Milwaukee and the submarine torpedo boats Grampus and Pike.

The Harland & Hollingsworth Company of Wilmington, Del., the torpedo boat Stringham.

In every contract for a warship drawn by the government with any company there is a provision that in the event of delay or inability in the completion of the craft the government may take it out of the hands of the contractor and complete it elsewhere.

But a still greater danger lies in the probable action of directors of the companies in the event the government should try to take any of the warships away. Such action it is anticipated would bring forth an injunction from the creditors of the shipbuilding company prohibiting the government from taking the ships. Many of the warships, notably the Ohio at San Francisco, are far behind in their construction now.

FAMINE IN MEATS.

Flooded Cities Will Suffer Food Shortage as Result of Recent High Water.

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—(Special.)—St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City and other western cities are threatened with a serious meat famine the coming week which will raise prices of beef, pork and mutton above the high-water mark of the famine of a year ago.

The floods of the last 30 days first checked and then stopped entirely the shipment of cattle. Kansas City packing houses were taxed to the limit of their capacity to supply the demand of Kansas City and Topeka following the flood, which destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of provisions. St. Louis has been cut off from the east for 10 days and the packing houses are running very low. High prices are bound to prevail for the next few weeks.

RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT, AS WITH THE SUNDAY GAZETTE

This is the age of specialists. Versatility in a business way in one person is not the great success it once was. The "Jack-of-all-trades" has had his day. Having skilled men who "stick to their lasts" is a winner in the shoemaking business, and it is also in the newspaper line. This is strongly exemplified in The Sunday Gazette, for whose making the best in men and material are sought and secured. Under such circumstances results are obtained. Results are what count. With all details capably and carefully handled the work at the top is less irksome, and everything goes as smoothly as oiled machinery.

The Sunday Gazette yesterday aptly illustrated this feature. A glance through its six sections of 44 pages showed, through a dove-tailing of many well-executed parts, a whole that was perfect. Such a system was one of the greatest causes of the success of Andrew Carnegie.

A combination of news-gatherer, instructor and entertainer, the best of its kind in each department, is what The Sunday Gazette is, and it is not necessary to secure one of Prof. Brashear's glasses to see it. News when it is news from every part of the world, nothing that would shock the most exacting reader, the latest in science, politics, religion and all the other questions that are discussed and read about by up-to-date people, the best writers' and artists' finest productions for the enjoyment of its readers are some of the things that have made The Sunday Gazette so popular and caused its widespread and increasing circulation and large advertising patronage.

In addition to all the local, telegraph and cable news from all points of the globe, The Sunday Gazette yesterday had among other articles the following:

Art Society, Summer Resorts, Sports, Financial and Markets, Rostand Admitted to the Immortals, Russia in Manchuria, Men's Fashions, Labor, Books, The Woman in the Mizzen-Top, The Gibson Girl, Coon Hollow Folks, The Brownies, Mother Goose, Lovers' Union, Famous Knights of the Revolver, Buster Brown, Fashions, Southern California, Science Studies Ghosts, New Wrinkles in Styles, The President's Home-Coming and Navajo Blankets. The colored section as usual was the best of its kind, and the illustrations and colorings in connection with the article on Navajo Blankets were the finest ever printed in a daily paper.

ARMY OF SINGERS IN GREAT CHORUS

Triennial Saengerfest of Northeastern Saengerbund Opens at Baltimore.

5,000 VOCALISTS ON STAGE

Half Were School Children—Numbers Arranged Especially in Honor of Flag Day—Prof. Melamet Directs Orchestra of 135 Pieces.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BALTIMORE, June 14.—The formal opening of the 20th triennial saengerfest of the Northeastern Saengerbund of America took place here this afternoon with a "reception concert" in the Fifth armory hall. The seating capacity of the auditorium of this structure is 15,000, and the entire space was occupied, there being 5,000 singers on the stage and 9,000 persons seated on the floor.

The hall, which had been elaborately decorated, presented a scene of dazzling brilliancy and artistic beauty. Upon the walls and pendent from the arched roof there was a lavish display of American and national German flags, gay bunting and streamers and a profusion of evergreens, smilax, palms and potted plants met the eye in every direction.

This afternoon's concert was mainly a "welcome" concert designed as a greeting from the Baltimore singers to the singing society guests from other cities. The singing was participated in by 2,500 Baltimore singers and 2,500 school children and the numbers were arranged especially in honor of flag day, this being the 126th anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes by the American congress. Professor Melamet led the orchestra of 135 pieces, the largest ever heard in Baltimore.

THE PROGRAM.

Prelude to "Meistersinger"—Wagner; orchestra.

"God Greet Thee"—Muecke; United Singers of Baltimore.

"The Heavens Are Telling"—Beethoven; children's chorus and orchestra.

Address of welcome—President Wieman.

Choral fantasia—Beethoven; piano solo, soli, chorus and orchestra. Piano: Mrs. D. Melamet.

"Woodland Harps"—Spicker; "Harmonie" of Baltimore.

"Old Folks at Home"—arranged for solo and male chorus by Melamet; solo by children's chorus.

a. American fantasia—Herbert; orchestra. b. "Star Spangled Banner"—national anthem; sung by the entire audience, standing.

A number of singing classes from other cities arrived here today to participate in the grand prize concerts of tomorrow and Tuesday and the festivities of Wednesday. Thousands of visitors are already here and it is estimated that there will be an average of 40,000 here until the end of the saengerfest. Adequate preparations have been made for the entertainment of visitors at the various hotels and boarding houses, while thousands will be guests at private residences.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS.

Among the distinguished guests who will be present tomorrow night are included President Theodore Roosevelt, who will make an address; the German ambassador, Baron von Sternberg, and suite; the Prussian minister of finance, Baron von Rheinbaben, and suite; Gov. John Walter Smith and staff, Admiral H. C. Taylor, Herr von Versen, assistant consul general at Berlin; Mayor Robert M. McLane, officers at Fort McHenry, officers of the United States ships which will be present during the saengerfest, officers of the German gunboat Panther.

At the meeting of the directors of the Northeastern band today, Karl Kuhl of Philadelphia, chairman of the music committee, announced that Dr. Hans Hartan of Munich, one of the members of the college of judges, had not arrived in this country. The music committee was instructed to fill the vacancy so that a complete membership of five shall judge the prize songs.

An effort was made to strike the societies of Albany, Troy, N. Y. and Trenton, N. J., from membership in the bund, but President Carl Lentz of Newark, N. J., ruled the motion out of order.

It was decided to change the manner of selecting the prize songs for the next "Fest," and an advisory committee of three shall be created to confer with the music committee as to the best method of selecting the songs.

A proposition to change the bylaws so that the "Fest" should be held quadrennially instead of triennially, was voted down.

At the conclusion of the meeting dinner was served at Harmonie hall.

COTTON IS KING AMONG EXPORTS

Exports for Present Fiscal Year Will Break All Records in Values.

$308,000,000 IN 11 MONTHS

Quantity Sent Abroad Will Likely Be Smaller but Brings Higher Prices. Rapid Increase in Imports of Egyptian Article—Some Treasury Figures.

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Room 16, Postal Building, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.

Cotton is still king in the export records of the United States, and its record in the present year is likely to surpass that of any preceding year. The value of raw cotton exported in the 11 months ending with May is, according to the preliminary figures of the treasury bureau of statistics, $308,747,005, which is $5,000,000 in excess of the highest 11 months' record ever heretofore made. The highest 11 months' figures recorded by this preliminary statement in earlier years were for the 11 months ending with May, 1901, when the total stood at $303,497,617. Should the June figures equal those of June in the immediately preceding years the total for the fiscal year would be $317,000,000, or $4,000,000 in excess of the banner year, 1901.

The quantity exported this year is not as great as that of the years 1898 and 1899, but owing to the higher prices received the value is very much greater than that of those years, and, as already indicated, larger than that of the corresponding months of any preceding year. The total quantity exported in the 11 months ending with May, according to the preliminary statement, is 5,481,353,287 pounds, against 3,208,821,478 pounds in the corresponding months of 1901, when the value was but $5,000,000 less than at the present time, and 3,721,310,000 pounds in 11 months of 1898, when the value was but $222,414,180.

QUANTITY LESS, VALUE MORE.

Thus the total quantity at the present time is 240,000,000 pounds less than that of the corresponding 11 months of 1898, but the value is $86,000,000 in excess of the value for the corresponding period of that year.

The average price per pound of the cotton exported, determined by dividing the number of pounds into the value stated by the bureau of statistics records, is, for the 11 months ending with May 1903, 8.87 cents, and for the 11 months ending with May, 1898, 5.07 cents.

Comparing the total values of cotton exported with those of preceding years, it may be said that 1903 seems likely to show the largest total value in raw cotton exports of any year in the history of our commerce. In 1818 the total value of raw cotton exported was, in round terms, $62,000,000; in 1869, $192,000,000; in 1870, $227,000,000, in paper, but $181,000,000 stated in gold; in 1880, $211,000,000; in 1890, $250,000,000; in 1900, $242,000,000; in 1901, $513,000,000, and, as already indicated, seems likely to be, for 1903, $317,000,000.

MANUFACTURED COTTON EXPORTED

Meantime the value of cotton exported in manufactured form has also increased, and will make the highest record in the present fiscal year. The total value of cotton manufactures exported in the 10 months ending with April is $27,062,559, indicating that the total for the full fiscal year will probably be about $34,000,000, against $33,000,000 in 1902, $24,000,000 in 1900, $10,000,000 in 1890, $10,000,000 in 1880, and $4,000,000 in 1870.

At the same time the cotton manufactures of the United States have increased and are still increasing their consumption of cotton both from and our own fields and from abroad. The total number of bales taken by the mills of the United States last year for the first time passed the 4,000,000 line, the figures being 4,083,000 bales, against 3,644,000 in 1900; 3,325,000 bales in 1899; 1,797,000 bales in 1880, and 857,000 bales in 1870.

Meanwhile the importations of foreign cotton, chiefly Egyptian, are growing with remarkable rapidity, the importations in the present year being likely to reach 80,000,000 pounds, to which may be added 20,000,000 pounds of "flocks," or cotton waste, with a total valuation of about $12,000,000, against 48,000,000 pounds of raw cotton and 18,000 pounds of waste imported in 1893, valued at less than $5,000,000.

WILKINSBURG GIRL TOOK CARBOLIC ACID

Anna Kiser Committed Suicide Because Forbidden by Uncle to See Her Lover.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., June 14.—"Friends, I do this because of uncle." These words were written by pretty Miss Anna Kiser of Wilkinsburg, just before she drained the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid this morning. The deed was committed about 7 o'clock and the girl died three hours later, after suffering untold agony and in spite of the work of physicians.

Miss Kiser is said to have been annoyed by her uncle, August Craft, with whom she recently has made her home. She was out with her fiance late Saturday night and on her return was reprimanded by Craft. She retired for the night, but Mrs. Craft says she was restless. She then wrote the note and ended her life.

Miss Kiser had, during her brief stay in this city, been employed in a pottery. Prior to her arrival here, she lived in Wilkinsburg with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Kiser. Mrs. Kiser, who still lives in Wilkinsburg, was notified of her daughter's death and arrived here tonight to take charge of the remains.

Miss Kiser was during her brief residence here a favorite among the young people. She received attentions from a young man to whom she was betrothed. Her uncle states that he forbade her to see the young man again when she returned Saturday night, and this he believes was the cause of her suicide.

The affair, owing to the popularity of the girl, created a profound sensation in East Liverpool. The remains will probably be taken to Wilkinsburg.

This year she was promoted with high grades from Grade 8 to Grade 9 of the Thaddeus Stevens building, and hopes to continue her excellent record next year. The school term here is nine months, so Miss Martha has attended 1,080 days without a break, and has had just 2,160 chances of being either absent or tardy without once being delinquent. MONESSEN HAD PLENTY OF BEER FOR SUNDAY

Chief of Police Promises That the Agent Who Handles the Goods Will Be Arrested.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

MONESSEN, PA., June 14.—Since the judges of Westmoreland county handed down a ruling on the wholesale delivery of beer and other intoxicating liquors, this city has been exceptionally quiet for the past two months. Today, however, it has been given out by Chief of Police D. W. G. Cooper that a consignment of nearly 300 quarters of beer was received in the city consigned to a certain agent, and it was his intention to arrest the agent tomorrow on a charge of selling liquor without a license.

The beer finds its way mostly into boarding houses of the foreigners and the result is invariably a Sunday riot. The city council has instructed the chief of police to investigate the wholesale delivery of the liquor and make arrests wherever he is sure that an illicit business is being carried on.

LAKE ERIE EXTENSION IS READY FOR TRAFFIC

Passenger Trains Will Be Run to Marchand, the New Terminus, Today.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

MONESSEN, PA., June 14.—All passenger trains on the Monongahela division of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad will be run to Marchand, the new terminus on the Brownsville extension, tomorrow. Marchand is the first town of any size on the road this side of Brownsville and will continue to be the terminus of the road until the work on the crossover at Red Stone junction is completed, when trains will be run into Brownsville. The upper end of the extension between Bridgeport and Gates has been completed and is ready for traffic, but this cannot be carried on on account of a break in the road between Brownsville and Bridgeport, where the company will have to build a bridge over Dunlaps creek.

It is announced that the Monongahela division of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie will be ready for both freight and passenger traffic through from Pittsburgh to Gates, Fayette county, by July 1. At Marchand the East Side Land Company, a Pittsburgh concern with headquarters in this city, is laying out a new town.

It is also given out that it is the intention of the Lake Erie people to make Marchand a railroad terminal on the order of McKees Rocks and that railroad shops and round houses will be built there. The location is one of the prettiest on the Monongahela river, with as much ground as could be desired for yards and side tracks.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., June 14.—Deputy sheriffs are guarding Shepherd college, a state institution, at Shepherdstown, and the entire town is in turmoil. Recently Prof. E. F. Goodwin, principal of the college, preferred charges against Miss Salome Windgate, professor of music, a pretty young woman. The charges were investigated by the board of regents and found to be untrue. But the town divided into factions, one side defending the girl, the other the professor.

Two married ladies met in the street and fought until they were exhausted over the question. Then the husband of one of them went gunning for Prof. Goodwin, threatening to kill him on sight. To protect the principal Sheriff Billmyer called out the college cadets to act as bodyguard. A street riot followed and the sheriff may yet have to call upon the governor for troops.

ERIE RAILROAD COMPANY TO MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

NEW CASTLE, PA., June 14.—(Special.)—About $500,000 will be spent upon local improvements by the Erie Railroad Company as the result of filing of the $50,000,000 mortgage at the court house this week. The mortgage is held by the Standard Trust Company of New York, as a lien upon the entire Erie railroad system and the mortgage is being filed in each county the Erie traverses. It is also possible that much of the funds realized from the mortgage may be used by the Erie Railroad Company in forcing its way into Pittsburgh. There is a well founded rumor that the Erie branch from here to Sharon will be double-tracked to accommodate the heavy freight traffic.

TWISTED COW'S TAIL.

Mischievous Irishmen Precipitate Riot by Indulging Their Propensity for a Joke.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(Special.)—Twisting a cow's tail precipitated a street fight in Jersey City this afternoon, the participants being Irishmen and Italians. Three of the former are under arrest. One will answer to a charge of atrocious assault.

The spirit of devilry in the Irishmen obtained ascendancy when they saw Mrs. Lafrano leading the cow along Railroad avenue, while her lord and master acted as superintendent of the job and walked contentedly along the sidewalk smoking. One of the Irishmen rushed over to the cow and grasping its tail gave it a vigorous twist. The animal kicked. Lafrano, muttering Italian curses, sprang upon the offender, and a general fight ensued.

PERSONALS

Morton E. Fleming of Chattanooga, Tenn., district attorney of Hamilton county, was in the city on business yesterday and registered at the Henry. Speaking of the stirring times in Breathitt county, Ky., he said: "No matter what is done to quell the trouble, peace cannot be brought about. The feud has existed for the past 30 years. The people in those mountains know no law. They do not know what a commonwealth is. They can hang all those who take active part in the lawlessness, but that will not wipe out the bitter feeling existing between the two factions."

S. D. Casanave, formerly superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, now general agent of the Pennsylvania system, passed through the city last night on his way to Indianapolis. He will hold a conference with the officials of the company.

I have made for many years and propose to continue to make a specialty of the treatment of Rupture. There is no sufferer whom I cannot relieve, no matter how long standing. The essential thing is to a sufferer from Rupture. A ruptured person is under a fixed disadvantage in the battle of life. The wearing of a truss only holds in appearance and prolongs a Rupture. It wears out that body and mind and will not effect a cure in any case.
Rupture sufferers after making the examination are readily convinced of the truth of my ELECTRO-PLASMIC METHOD, and the ease with which it is applied, especially to children, when is familiar with the method, to effect a permanent and painless cure in a few weeks.

PITTSBURGH CHAMPIONS HAVE IDLE SUNDAY BEFORE MEETING CHICAGOS TODAY

PIRATES' SECOND QUIET SUNDAY

Clarke's Men Have No Game, but Will Begin Hard Series Today With Chicago Cubs.

MANAGER M'GRAW'S OPINION

The Pittsburgh champions enjoyed their second idle Sunday of this season yesterday. Since the Philadelphias have taken to Sunday ball the Pirates get a chance to rest. Zimmer's crowd taking some of the dates. However, the idleness is not regretted by Capt. Clarke, in fact he thinks the players should have a day of rest just the same as any other athlete or working man.

Chicago will be here today for the first of a series. With the first notch so near the champions will not let any opportunities pass by whereby they may again occupy the position, and it is needless to say that the series will be one of the hottest of the season. The Pirates want to get up and so do the Cubs, and the latter's ability on the diamond cannot be underestimated.

Manager McGraw of New York gave the following interview to Ed. Grill at Cincinnati, which expresses his opinion on the Pirates:

"There is an awful lot of luck in baseball," he remarked yesterday, "and a team, in order to make a good showing must have its share of it. We have had our share of good breaks this season, and that explains our beginning at the top of the ladder. I don't mean to say that my team has not played good ball, for it has, but good ball playing and hard luck will not win ball games, for you must be lucky to do that, and we have been lucky a great many times. Now, take the Reds for instance. I notice that they have lost game after game by one run, and many of them in the ninth inning. Now, that is what I call hard luck.

"A team which is beaten by one run almost every day is certainly not having its share of breaks. I don't think that Kelley would finish no lower than second, and he may still do that, though it will take great ball playing to get out of the hole.

"I naturally thought that Pittsburgh would win the pennant again. That is a perfect ball team. Just look over that infield—Leach, Wagner, Ritchey and Brnahefield—every man a star in his position and all knowing how to play for the team's interests. And when you look over that outfield you must admit that it is the strongest in the league. You see, the Pirates' pitchers did not go so well in the early days and it was believed that the champs were weak in the box, but now that the season is fairly well advanced they are beginning to show their last year's form and the Pirates are as strong as, if not stronger than, ever before.

"We have a good lead, and we will try to hold first place as long as we can, but we must all admit that the Pittsburgh team is the strongest.

"Cleveland is the only one of the sixteen major league teams that I have not seen at work this season, and that team being little changed from last year, I think I have a pretty fair line on the bunch in both leagues," says Tim Murnane.

"I still like the Philadelphia boys for the American league championship. Boston struck a winning streak and looked good for a while, and just then Detroit came along and made the locals look bad again. Collins' men lacked just when it came to clinching their style of play. They always play the same style of game, and must hit to win. I know but two ball teams that ever won a championship with straight-away ball playing, viz., Detroit in 1887 and Boston in 1883.

"To win a championship the manager must know the temper of his opponents, and be ready for a slump at any time and reverse the play of days when some club has mapped out a strong defense. Bill Reid, the old Harvard catcher, once said: 'I could write many interesting things about baseball, but there is seldom a chance of that kind for fear that I might in some way reveal our secret about stopping Yale's hit and run game.'

"There is nothing like having something on the other fellows, but, if clever, the other chaps will fathom your secret and turn it against you. The Chicago Americans are up to all the tricks of the trade, and will win many games by good heads work, but they are too weak in the infield to win the first prize. Detroit looked good while here. Donovan gave the finest exhibition of pitching that I have seen in years. Besides, the Detroits can hit the ball. Their inside work, however, was of the A-B-C order and easy to cross.

"I am quite sure that bunt hitting as well as old-fooled sacrifice pushing in the ball is played out far as the spectators are concerned, and it's the people who keep the game alive and pay the big salaries."

DUMONT AT RACES.

Vanderbilt's Biltmore Runs Fourth in Prix de Villeron.

PARIS, June 14.—W. K. Vanderbilt's horse Biltmore was fourth today in the race today for the Prix de Villeron at Longchamps.

During the racing M. Santos Dumont, in his airship No. 9, appeared over the course and went through a variety of maneuvers, which evoked great enthusiasm from the crowd. The passage of the other balloons over the Longchamps race course at the same time added to the originality of the scene.

M. Santos Dumont finally descended unaided in the center of the course, where a great ovation was given him. He then reascended and, after executing a second series of maneuvers, sailed away in the direction of Bagatelle. A curious coincidence during the presence of the Santos Dumont No. 9 was the winning of two races by horses numbered 9 on the racing card.

THREE-EYE LEAGUE IS STILL DOING BUSINESS

Umpire Problem Is Serious One and Causes President Saxton Worry.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ROCKFORD, ILL., June 14.—(Special.)—Although a bit groggy from a fierce attack on the part of the weather man, the Three Eye league persistently refuses to go down for the count. Perhaps no minor organization ever experienced such discouraging handicaps in the way of rain and freezing weather, and it speaks well for the pluck of the clubs and general good management that the league is still an entity.

The break in the circuit by the forfeiture of Joliet's franchise was generally anticipated when it was discovered how far the grounds were located from the city. The distance was too great for the week day games, there being only a beggarly attendance save on Sundays. The club could perhaps have struggled along for a considerable period, but President Sexton decided to take time by the forelock. The result is that Springfield will get the team, a pretty good one, by the way, and Joliet is out the $500 forfeit money and Illa's share of the Memorial day receipts, to say nothing of the expenses of fitting the new park. The present plan is for Springfield to assume ownership of the team and franchise on June 21, and in the meantime the league is supporting the Westerners.

The umpire question continues to be a serious one. The policy of appointing to the important office mere boys who have never played the game professionally or had experience with the indicator, appears wholly a wrong one, it is felt, however, that President Sexton is doing his best to solve this always perplexing problem. He has average men in Conn and Lowinson and probably will soon be able to land for his staff former players who will prove acceptable.

Features of the pennant race of the last ten days have been the fine record made on the road by the Bloomington team, its upset in Cedar Rapids, and the drop experienced by the Rockford champions. The Bloomington club cleaned up nine victories in succession. Six of these formed the starter for the present trip, three being taken from Rockford and three from Davenport. The nice lead accumulated was cut down in Cedar Rapids, where Hill's team, by dint of brilliant pitching, nosed out the leaders in four close games, two of them twelve inning contests.

A number of the clubs have released players in order to get down to the limit and others have been dropped to make way for new men. Decatur dropped Shortstep Leopold, who could hit, but was a poor fielder. Pitchers Eui, formerly of the Peoria Western league club, and McGill of the Louisville club have joined the staff, and Mertens has been loaned to the Cairo club.

Cedar Rapids has secured Fuller, who was with the team there when it won a championship in 1898, and is playing at first base, sending Novacek to the outfield. The change has strengthened the Rabbits.

Davenport has dropped Outfielder Walter Kinfoot, once one of the stars of the league. Ransom, who was given his yellow envelope, has been taken on again. Ruby has finished his examination at Purdue university and rejoined the team.

Bloomington has been carrying 14 men on the present trip and must let a couple go. Manager Connors will soon be ready to return to the outfield and Goodwin, Martin and Cassady, all of whom have been doing excellent work, are wondering which ones of the trio the ax will hit. A choice will also likely have to be made between Catchers Donovan and Belt, with the latter, a wise veteran, standing the best show.

President Sexton reports a total of $65 collected in fines against players. Three managers were fined, McFarland, Donnelly and Hill. The Rockford team furnished three instances of this displeasure of the umpires, Rock Island, four; Decatur two, and Cedar Rapids one.

BOOM MAY COLLAPSE.

Too Many Baseball Leagues and Salaries Are Too Big for Club Owners.

While the interest in baseball was never greater than today and the game was never more prosperous throughout the country, there are unmistakable signs that the "boom" days are nearly over and that the present period of inflation must be followed by depression which will once more put the game on a solid business basis, says the Chicago Tribune. As far as the big leagues are concerned, the only probable effect will be in the gradual curtailing of expenses and salaries of players, which have been soaring beyond all reason because of the unhealthy competition of warfare. Most of the clubs of the American and National leagues have sufficient backing to stand considerable losses if necessary under present conditions, and the one or two which are not able to stand losses can get assistance to tide them over until conditions are more advantageous to the magnate and the player does not get the receipts. But in the minor leagues would there will doubtless be fewer leagues next season, if not earlier.

Already there are signs of weakening in several circuits. Three changes have been necessary. The Anderson club of the Central league has been transferred to Grand Rapids, the Three Eye league is looking for a home for the Joliet club, and the Eastern league of the Rochester backers want to quit, having offered Montreal their club. The Western league must be pretty near the limit after losing all its Decoration day receipts on account of rain and having its schedule badly disabled by the recent floods. Salaries go on just the same when it rains or the floods rage, and the minor leagues are paying fabulous salaries considering their receipts. There are too many minor leagues in the country, and the competition for players may become so great that almost any ball man who even says he can play baseball has a half dozen contracts thrust upon him to be filled out at his own terms.

If this abnormal demand lasted long enough it would naturally be supplied, because all the rising generations would learn to play baseball if possible. In that way salaries would be brought back to the normal, but the minor league backers as a rule have not the capital to hang on for that length of time, and some of them do not expect to live so long. The natural outcome will be a gradual reduction of the number of leagues, a rearrangement of existing minor circuits, and more ball players for the clubs which remain.

HARVARD GAMES APPROACHING AND YALE IS DISCOURAGED.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 14.—Yale's baseball players are upset by their defeat of yesterday after they had the Tigers beaten 6 to 1, with one out, in the ninth. The trouble lay in Pitcher Bowman's lame arm and the lack of substitutes. Yale hails Princeton as the intercollegiate champion of 1903, because the Tigers have already whipped Harvard and her full share of the minor colleges.

Yale men are thoroughly discouraged over the prospect of the three Harvard games, which begin Thursday and are all to be played in nine days. There seems no hope that Bowman can stand the strain, and how Yale can land the series is a vexing question. All the players are in good condition except Bowman. The team will practice hard tomorrow and Tuesday, and leave Wednesday for Cambridge. Jimmy O'Rourke and Shevlin have won third base and right field by their brilliant work of yesterday.

LIPTON'S CHALLENGER ARRIVES HERE IN SAFETY

England's Best Lying at Anchor off Thompkinsville After Hard Voyage.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, June 14.—Safe and sound, after a rough passage from Gourock, Scotland, of 16 days and 22 hours, Sir Thomas Lipton's latest challenger for the Americas cup, the Shamrock III., is now lying at anchor off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, where she arrived at 10:20 this morning, in company with the steam yacht Erin, that had towed her most of the way across the Atlantic, and by the Shamrock I., towed by the British tug Cruiser. The 166 men that manned the yachts and their convoys, are all well, and there were no accidents to mar the passage.

Between Gourock and Fayal, Azores, where the steamers stopped for coal, squalls and stormy weather were encountered. The Erin and her tow became separated from the Cruiser and the Shamrock I. before reaching Fayal, but they never lost sight of each other after leaving there. On June 12 the yachts were caught in a gale from the southeast, and while it blew very hard and a heavy sea was running, very little water was shipped and no damage was done.

The tug Charles E. Matthews, in charge of H. H. Davies, met the yachts at daylight 20 miles east of Sandy Hook lightship. Pilots were put on board the Erin at sea and the Matthews towed the Shamrock III. to quarantine, the Shamrock I. being towed by the Cruiser. The yachts passed Sandy Hook lightship soon after 6 o'clock this morning. They were saluted by every vessel that passed them all the way to Quarantine. When they arrived there, the crews of the yachts gave three cheers for each other as they lined the deck. Both yachts flew the pennant of the Royal Ulster Yacht club.

At 12:30 this morning when the Erin was 100 miles east of Sandy Hook, the operator of the wireless telegraph system on board the Erin succeeded in speaking the Sandy Island station. Capt. Mathews then sent the following message, to be cabled to Sir Thomas Lipton:

The reply to this message was received on board the Erin by wireless from Coney Island station at 8:55 a. m.:

"Delighted to receive your good news. Convey to all officers and men my best wishes. I hope they are all well and fit as fiddlers. LIPTON."

Commodore Robert E. Tod of the Atlantic Yacht club, met the yachts in his schooner yacht Thistle at Sandy Hook lightship.

WASHER WANTS TO PLAY WITH HOMESTEAD TEAM

St. Louis Nationals Will Meet Risher's Outfit Tomorrow at Steel Works Park.

"Buck" Washer, the Buchtel college pitcher who came into prominence as a pitcher at the West Virginia university and who has been in the Eastern league, may be added to Howard Risher's Homestead string of pitchers. Washer is now at his home in Akron and has no engagement. In a letter to Risher he expressed his desire to join the Steel Workers and it is likely that he will be signed, Manager Risher said last night:

"We have a good string of pitchers now in Burns, Pearson and Pattison, but I think I could make room for Washer. He did good work for West Virginia and got along fairly well in the Eastern league, and if he wants a trial with us it will be given. This spring he joined the Wheeling Central league team, but was let out with a batch of players because they had too many men then and had to get rid of them. [illegible]

Risher is pleased with the work of his team thus far, but is always on the lookout for more men of class. Risher has been "put next" to a team that is to be transferred to a certain town that the tosserr do not like, and if the deal goes through he will add at least three new men to his collection.

The St. Louis Nationals will be at Steel Works park tomorrow to play Risher's team. Risher will send Alex Pearson against his former team mates. If not Pearson, then "Slab" Burns. Homestead plays at Rochester Thursday and the fans there would like to see Pearson their fellow townsman, pitch.

Friday and Saturday the Altoona nine, champions of Central Pennsylvania, will be the attraction at Homestead. This will be Altoona's first appearance at Homestead this season. Menager Carpenter still has the Homestead favorites, Hinton, Davis and Lang. The two first-named players formerly wore Homestead uniforms, while the latter played on the Pittsburgh football team last fall and was considered the best tackle in the professional league. Lang formerly played at W. and J.

SIGNED "DUCKY" HOLMES.

Loftus Gives Him to Chicago Because He Has Joe Martin for Outfield.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—(Special.)—William ("Ducky") Holmes has been signed by Manager Cullahan to fill the vacancy made by the trade of Harry Dolan to Cincinnati. Callahan secured Holmes from Manager Loftus of the local club and the crack outfielder will accompany the White Stockings to New York. He will probably play in Monday's game there against Griffith's team.

Holmes has been on the extra list here nearly all season, for, with Capt. Selbach, Jones and Delehanty, Loftus had no regular berth for him. Loftus has another extra outfielder in Joe Martin, the former Altoona player, and does not need Holmes.

Loftus gave Holmes to the White Stockings with the understanding that, should the Chicago club pick up new infielders, so that Callahan gets back to pitching, he will give one of his staff of twirlers to the Senators, for it is in the box the local club is weakest.

STRONG SCHOOL TEAM SELECTED

Price to Captain All-Interscholastic Nine That Will Play West Virginia This Thursday.

RECORDS OF THE PLAYERS

E. Hull, East Liberty Academy, Catcher.
Burns, East Liberty, Pitcher.
M. Porterfield, Kiski, First.
Russell, East Liberty, Second.
Price, Shadyside, Short.
McCracken, East Liberty, Third.

The above players have been selected to form the All-Interscholastic nine that will play the West Virginia university team this Thursday, Commencement day, at Morgantown. The team will be captained by Kerr Price, who has been elected captain of the Shadyside team for next season. On the team are other school captains. Meade Porterfield captained this year's Kiskiminetas Springs school team and Frank "Midget" Spuhler had charge of the Pittsburgh High school nine. Alex McCracken of East Liberty has no opposition for the captaincy of his team for next season. The team will represent the strength of the local school baseball.

The boys chosen to go to Morgantown were all eager to stay together during the early period of the summer and accordingly a schedule is being arranged for them. This coming Saturday they will play the Pittsburgh Amateurs, managed by Noble Matthews, at Friendship park, and the following Tuesday they will meet Risher's champion Homestead team. The Saturday of next week they will try conclusions with Burgess Ed. Hickey's outfit at Etna. In order to play these games with success several new players will be added to the squad. Capt. Ed. Davin and Pitcher Kilgallen of Pittsburgh college; Smith and Kennoy, of West Virginia, and Buck of the Princeton Preps. will play in some of the games. It is very lik

FORAKER PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

Trying to Land Herrick in Vice Presidency in Order to Make Harding Governor.

HANNA MAY TAKE A HAND

Ohio Junior Senator Has Had Enough of National Chairmanship and Desires to Retire—Democratic Plans in the Buckeye State.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

COLUMBUS, June 14.—In spite of his own expostulations, the talk of Colonel Myron T. Herrick for the vice presidency will not down. Senator Foraker feels that he had the upper hand of his ancient rival in Ohio Republican politics at the recent state convention and some of those old fighting qualities which have slumbered so long are beginning to show themselves. He is eager to push his advantage, the extent of which he perhaps overestimates, and the election of the next governor to the vice presidency would give him every chance to build up a machine in Ohio which would endure for years. With Herrick on the national ticket, his lieutenant governor, Warren G. Harding, probably the leading Foraker man in the state would become governor, the Hanna appointees would be turned out ignominiously and Foraker would be firm in the saddle.

The fact that George B. Cox and Senator Foraker insisted so strenuously upon Harding's nomination for an office for which he cares nothing and which Senator Hanna was very anxious he should not have lends some color of truth to the reports of the scheme which is said to have been elaborated by the Foraker followers. If it were put into successful operation, Senator Hanna would find the power which he has held so long waning rapidly with all the patronage at the disposal of Senator Foraker.

PUT IT BEFORE ROOSEVELT.

The scheme, however, is extremely difficult to carry out. Of course Foraker and Harding believe that the former could influence President Roosevelt to consent to it and that his preference as to his running mate, quietly whispered about among the delegates to the national convention, would settle the matter. Moreover, Colonel Herrick is a strong and popular man and, if it were known that he were a candidate, he might land the place on his own merits. It is probable that he would rather be vice president than governor of Ohio, but there is very grave question whether he would make any effort to secure the nomination or even accept it if it were urged upon him, against the wishes of Senator Hanna. Moreover, the history of national conventions shows that the known candidates for the honor are seldom chosen for the second place on the national ticket. All things considered, it looks very much as if the Forakerites of Ohio were building air castles which would float away long before the national Republican convention meets.

It is definitely known to his close friends in this city that Senator Hanna will not accept the chairmanship of the national Republican committee next year. It is further known that President Roosevelt wishes the Ohio senator to direct his campaign and that a very large majority of the committee will urge Hanna to accept the place. But he will not do so unless a complete change of purpose overtakes him. He told two intimate friends in this city during convention week that his health is such that he has determined not to bear the brunt of the battle again, no matter what pressure is brought to bear upon him. He will make a very vigorous stumping campaign in his own interests and those of the state ticket this fall. After his reelection to the senate, he expects to take things with comparative ease. It is believed by leading Republican politicians here that Senator Quay of Pennsylvania will be chosen to manage the Roosevelt campaign.

TOM JOHNSON FEARS AROUND.

The nomination of the Republican state ticket and the active preparation for the campaign have caused no sign of life in the Ohio Democracy. Tom Johnson is tearing about the state in his automobile defeating for further political honors those Democrats upon whom he has placed the ban of his disapproval, but one hears little talk of the work of the state convention, which meets here in August.

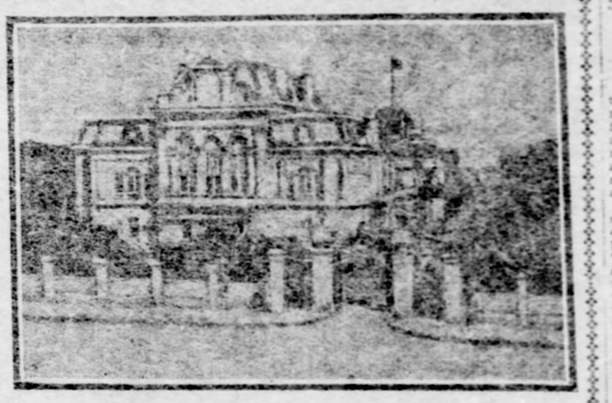
It is a rather difficult task with which Mayor Johnson finds himself face to face. He is the acknowledged leader of his party for one year more, his own political future depends upon his making a good showing and he is anxious to place a strong list of nominees in the field. His only hope is to elect a Democratic legislature. He is too wise a politician to believe, after his disastrous experience of a year ago, that he can elect his state ticket. He will make his great fight on Senator Hanna, hoping to carry enough of the close counties to insure a Democratic majority in the legislature. His success, he feels, depends wholly upon the naming of a state ticket so strong that it will receive the support of many Republican and independent voters and he is now casting about for candidates and the patriots show little disposition to announce their willingness to be sacrificed.

Mayor Johnson quite possibly will decide to accept the nomination for the governorship himself. He has supreme confidence in his own running abilities and it is altogether probable that his candidacy would hold in line for the Democracy his own county of Cuyahoga, with its 14 votes in the general assembly. It would be a pretty race between Johnson and Herrick in their own county and the probabilities are that Johnson would win. He is strong with the big foreign element in Cleveland and past experience has shown that he is a hard man to beat in his own bailiwick.

The other candidate mentioned, John L. Zimmerman of Springfield, is a conservative, heretofore allied with the McLean wing of the party. He is a man of high personal character and reputation and would make as good a race as any Democrat could make in Ohio. His nomination would bring the factions together more or less and it is possible that Johnson will consent to it, having in view the election of a Democratic legislature.

ANOTHER BALKAN MONARCH TREMBLING ON HIS THRONE

Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria.



The Royal Palace in Sofia, Capital of Bulgaria.

RULER OF BULGARIA FEARS ASSASSINATION

His Throne Is the Shakiest in the Turbulent Balkans. Alarmed Anew by the Servian Crime.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

SOFIA, June 14.—The news of the assassination of King Alexander of Servia causes great alarm here lest Prince Ferdinand, the ruler of Bulgaria, shall be the next victim of assassins.

Bulgaria is the uneasiest of the Balkan states, over which the war cloud has been hovering for years. It has long been feared that it would be in Bulgaria that the match would be applied to the powder magazine.

Prince Ferdinand's throne has long been considered the shakiest in Europe. For months he has been away from his capital, fearing to return to it because of the danger of assassination. Long ago Prince Ferdinand said that he expected to be assassinated. He had a narrow escape in 1895, when a determined attempt was made, and as a result four men were hanged and an officer of the army was shot.

For six years Ferdinand's reign was remarkably successful, thanks largely to Stambouloff, despite the opposition of Russia. For Stambouloff was frankly and aggressively anti-Russian, and he was the idol of the great mass of Bulgarians.

Prince Ferdinand's troubles began when he married Princess Maria Louise, daughter of the duke of Parma, one of the most devoted Catholics in Europe. She had little sympathy for the Bulgarians. She would have liked to make them all Catholics, and the Greek church is all-powerful there. She wanted to make Sofia a sort of imitation Versailles. Above all she hated Stambouloff. This rough and rude genius, the son of a mountain inn-keeper, with his uncouth ways, his hatred of show and sham, grated upon her.

It was because of his wife's influence that Prince Ferdinand quarreled with his minister, dismissed him from power and sought to heap ignominy upon him. Stambouliff was murdered in July, 1895, being shot and then stabbed in 17 places.

The assassination of Stambouloff was practically traced to Prince Ferdinand's door, although Russia had much to do with the plot. It was after his death that Russia recognized Prince Ferdinand and from that time the feeling of the Bulgarians has gradually turned to hatred. From that time dates the unfriendliness of other European powers, a feeling that was intensified when Ferdinand had his little son, Prince Boris, heir to the throne, baptized in the Catholic faith.

Bulgarians never forgave the assassination of Stambouloff, and Prince Ferdinand's popularity has been steadily waning. His alliance with the Macedonian party has further alienated Bulgarians and the powers of Europe, save only Russia, and for months a revolution has been expected.

Prince Ferdinand has thought that the Turks would remove him, for he long ago quarreled bitterly with the sultan. Both he and his wife longed for a real throne, to be called king and queen instead of prince and princess. The death of Princess Marie Louise in 1899 did not stay his downward trend in the regard of his subjects.

Ferdinand is a brave and cultivated man, a spendthrift and a lover of show, none of which qualities appeal to the Bulgarians.

CARNEGIE TELLS WHY LIBRARIES ARE HIS HOBBY

Learned When a Boy What It Is to Be Without Books—American Capital for English-Speaking People.

Andrew Carnegie explains in an interview in the London News why his benevolence so often takes the form of gifts of libraries. He says:

"When I was a boy in Dunfermline, I lived among books and talked about books. Mr. Barrie, in his 'Window in Thrums,' gives you the gossip of the Scotch home—but that is not the reality. The reality is the talk of high things"——

The eye of the millionaire seemed to go back to the little home of his infancy in Dunfermline, where the Scottish loom-weaver first taught his little son the love of books.

"Ah! I am proud of my genealogy—I am," he cried, and he crossed his arms with a look of tender, humorous vanity. "I am proud of the Scotch library-giving weaver, who gave the first books to Dunfermline out of his savings"—the books which his son completed into a library.

"And then came the exile to America—the long day hours in the Pittsburg factory, the still longer evening hours at home without books.

"Then I learned what it was to be without books—and I have vowed that, as far as I can prevent it, others shall not go without. There was a man who came and gave us boys books on Saturdays, and he did a better deed than many men have done by years of worship and adoration.

"I am not a philanthropist. Not one of those people who give people something that will do them harm. I administer an estate—I transact a business with mankind.

"I get 200 letters a day about libraries, and I answer them all. The applications come from all parts of the world. Here is one from British Columbia, that came in just as you arrived.

"I gave first to America—to Pittsburgh, to Philadelphia, to New York—and then to Scotland—and now to England.

"I give, but on conditions. I require that the people themselves shall also give.

"I hold to my 'Gospel of wealth' as I stated it, and not as others state it. It is that when a man is thus rich he should spend what he has to spare, after first providing for those nearest to him and leaving enough to maintain the business which enriched him without hurt or detriment."

Then Mr. Carnegie essayed to prove that Washington is the proper capital for the English-speaking world.

"See," he cried, pencilling the number of days' journey to the common center, "it is nearer to Canada and Australia—it is quicker now in a German liner to go to Washington from London than from San Francisco—it is the real center of the English-speaking race—not London."

And then, rapidly—for now he was quite wideawake and alert—and began to pencil the comparative figures of the population in America and the British empire.

"Look!" he cried, "how can you compete with it? The American union has now 78,000,000; immigrants are pouring in—there are 4,000 new little faces to greet every morning sun in the United States. Between 1890-1900 the increase was 15,000,000; between 1900-1910 it will be 17,000,000. What was and what will be your increase?

"You are now 41,000,000. Between 1890-1900 you increased 3,500,000. You may increase the same amount between 1900-1910, but your rate of increase must soon begin to diminish, for you are 'full up,' and you are exhausting your coal and iron very rapidly. Besides, you lost 685,000 in the last decade by immigration, and we gained 681,000 last year alone.

"Your colonies? Let us see"—and the pencil worked ruthlessly forward:

Australasia	5,000,000
Canada	5,000,000
South Africa (whites)	1,500,000

"A total of 12,000,000! Add to your home population, and you have only 53,000,000 whites against our 78,000,000!

"You are only beginning? No, it is we who are beginning."

BUT ONE CONCERN MAKES ALUMINUM

Pittsburgh Reduction Co. Manufactured 7,300,000 Pounds Last Year.

REPORT OF U. S. GEOLOGIST

Local Company Has Plants at Niagara Falls, Shawingan Falls, New Kensington, Pa., and Is Installing Another Near Massena, N. Y., on St. Lawrence River.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.

The report on aluminum and bauxite for 1902, by Dr. Joseph Struthers, has just been issued by the United States Geological survey. The production of aluminum in the United States during 1902 was approximately 7,300,000 pounds as compared with 7,150,000 pounds in 1901, the sole producer being the Pittsburgh Reduction Company, which has large plants in operation at New Kensington, Pa., Niagara Falls and at Shawingan Falls, Quebec, Canada, and is installing a large plant on the St. Lawrence river, near Massena, N. Y.

The chief use of aluminum is for the transmission of electrical currents and for alloys possessing exceptional physical and chemical properties, though a considerable part of the output is manufactured into domestic articles of various kinds. Two growing uses of the metal are for lithographic work and for the production of intense heat by the combustion of the metal as powder.

The production of bauxite during 1902 amounted to 27,274 long tons, as against 18,005 long tons in 1901. Georgia yielded the greater bulk of the product, the remainder coming from Alabama and Arkansas. The consumption of bauxite in 1902 amounted to 43,112 long tons, as compared with 36,218 tons in 1901.

The domestic production of alum and aluminum sulphate in 1902 aounted to 88,614 short tons, valued at $2,238,171, as compared with 82,498 short tons, valued at $2,026,554, in 1901. The imports in 1902 were valued at $16,808, as compared with $20,781 in 1901.

Quarantine Guard Discharged.

James Scallon, a quarantine guard arrested for drunkenness by Inspector McStay, had nothing to say in his defense yesterday morning, but was discharged. Scallon arrested Col. McMichael, a figure caller, as a suspicious person while standing on Smithfield street, but Inspector McStay refused to lock him up.

Bogus Detective Captured.

H. D. Rutledge, arrested at No. 423 Second avenue Saturday night, where he pretended to be a detective, was fined $50 and costs yesterday morning. It was alleged he threatened to pull the house unless he was given $50. George Kane and Frank Farrell, who interfered with his arrest, were each fined $5 and costs.

Bad Husband Punished.

Edward Michaels of Spring Garden avenue, Allegheny, got 60 days to the workhouse yesterday for abusing his wife. Mathew Clawson of Congress street, Allegheny, paid $5 and costs for raising trouble at his home.

ST. LOUIS GATEWAY OPEN.

The flood at East St. Louis has abated, Vandalia line tracks have been repaired, Pennsylvania line through trains have been resumed and the sale of tickets from Pittsburgh and other points to St. Louis and to points beyond, via St. Louis, has been renewed.

EL PASO THRIVES ON ORE SMELTING

Location of Southwestern Metropolis Gives It Advantages Over Neighboring Cities.

HAS COMPETING RAIL LINES.

Is the Principal Passageway for Large and Rapidly Growing Commerce Between the United States and Mexico—Something About Its Mining Interests.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

EL PASO, TEX., June 14.—Geographically the city of El Paso is a portion of the territory of New Mexico, although practically it is a part of the inland empire of Texas. The city lies almost equi-distant from the Pacific and the Gulf of Mexico, and its interests are more closely identified with Mexico, New Mexico and Arizona than with those of the state in which it lies at the extreme northwestern corner.

The city of El Paso, which claims 40,000 population, and has 30,000 or more, is a city of exceptional promise for the future. As the name indicates, the town lies in the natural pass between the mountain ranges of New Mexico and Old Mexico. It is the gateway for the southern transcontinental lines of the United States, and is the principal passageway for the large and rapidly growing commerce between Mexico and the United States. It is now the principal point of distribution for mining machinery and supplies entering New Mexico and Arizona, competing with Denver, Los Angeles and San Francisco for this trade.

In addition to the trans-continental traffic and international commerce, both of which have attained large proportions and promise even greater things for the future, El Paso is a smelting point of prime importance, handling gold, silver, copper and lead ores from Mexico, New Mexico and Arizona. A limited amount of copper ore is still received from Arizona, but this is evidently a trade from which no great increase can be hoped, as the copper mines invariably erect their own smelters nearer the mines when they become important producers.

ADVANTAGES OF LOCATION.

El Paso has certain great advantages over any and all Arizona points as a smelting center, the principal points of superiority lying in the possession of competing rail lines and the possibility of obtaining much cheaper fuel. The mines of the southwest are, as a rule, at the mercy of the railroads, and in many cases the charges are exorbitant, though the sparsely settled territory through which the rail lines run justifies the imposition of passenger and freight rates that would be little less than downright robbery in more favored sections of the country.

New Mexican ores received and treated in El Paso are of all grades, though lead and silver probably predominate. New Mexico has extensive tracts of cupriferous lands, but has never become a large producer of the red metal. More is being done now, however, than at any time in the past toward developing the copper resources of the territory, and in the Santa Rita and Silver City districts copper developments are upon an important scale, while less important developments along this line are noted in a majority of the other counties of the territory.

One of the principal sources of ore supply for El Paso smelters has been found in Mexico, mainly in Chihuahua, though ore has been brought from states still more distant. The two northernmost states of the republic of Mexico are Chihuahua and Sonora and these are not only the largest in area, but are among the richest in mineral wealth. In fact it would be impossible to select any territory of equal extent in any part of the globe where more important mineral developments have been secured by a similar amount of work.

Sonora has furnished but a limited amount of ore to the smelters of El Paso, though a railroad running southwest from this city through the state of Chihuahua to the eastern part of Sonora has rendered certain mining districts accessible from this point. On the whole, El Paso has gained its pre-eminence as a smelting center from the treatment of the ores of Chihuahua, and of these silver-lead ores have been and probably remain the more important, though a larger amount of gold in the aggregate has been secured, and the copper developments are of steadily increasing importance. There are two smelting plants in El Paso, one owned by the trust, lying about four miles north of the heart of the town and being among the largest and best equipped in the country. The other plant, owned by the Federal Copper Co., is both newer and smaller, though well-planned and equipped. The building of a very large and modern smelter at Monterey, in Nueva Leon, Mexico, has cut off considerable business from the south and it is probable that the rapid growth of Mexican mining will lead to the construction of numerous other modern smelting plants in the future.

MORE OLD LANDMARKS BEING DEMOLISHED

NEW YORK, June 14.—(Special.)—Workmen will begin tomorrow to demolish another landmark of old New York. Soon there will be little left of the notorious Five Points. Mulberry Bend park is to have an extension. Its original creation doomed to destruction many a ramshackle old place famous in New York's annals of poverty, squalor and crime, and now the enlargement of the breezy park that stands upon the ruins of these old time purlieus has decreed that more of them must make room.

Pressmen Meet at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, O., June 14.—The 15th annual convention of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union will be in session here all this week. Almost all of the 300 delegates were here today for the opening receptions given by the local union and the ladies' auxiliary. The pressmen's union now has an enrolled membership of 15,000.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS HONOR DEAD MEMBERS

WATERSPOUT MENACES LIVES AND PROPERTY

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 14.—The twin cities by the sea were treated to a rare phenomenon this morning, and but for the mastery of one wind current over another there is no telling what damage might have been done. Those who witnessed the waterspout, which was formed seven miles from the beach, say that an awful calamity was narrowly averted.

The agitation of the water was observed from the boardwalk about 7 o'clock in the morning. It looked at first like a miniature tornado on exhibition. Two opposing winds engaged in a desperate struggle. It was victory or annihilation to one or the other. Soon the sea was a seething torrent and a waterspout which the sightseers say was a hundred feet high, was formed directly in front of the Ocean Grove pier.

The phenomenon was awe-inspiring until it began to move steadily toward the beach. Then there was real terror in the hearts of early risers who had come to the boardwalk. On sped the waterspout, and it seemed as though it would sweep everything before it, when suddenly the north wind relaxed its grasp and the south wind swept the great misty black column before it. The whirling torrent took a northeasterly course, increasing in size until it was finally lost to view beyond the horizon. The waterspout came within a mile of the beach and vessels off shore watching its course steered in an opposite direction and thus kept out of its track.

Found Mill Supplies.

James Coleman, a negro of No. 3222 Penn avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon, by Inspector F. H. Schmitt, on complaint of his roommate, Thomas Mosher. When the inspector went to Coleman's room for him a large quantity of mill supplies from the Park Steel Company's store room was found. Mosher claims he was robbed of $18. Coleman has been working at the Park mill. The supplies were taken to No. 2 police station and the mill officials notified.

"The man who made that refrigerator is no friend of mine," said the ironman as he deposited a 25-pound crystal chunk in the ice chamber of 50 pounds capacity and took note of the ice piece left over from the preceding day.

The refrigerator was bought at Campbell's.

Some of the specials at "The People's Store" just now is a line of refrigerators, 41 inches high, 19 inches deep and 22 inches wide, made of Wisconsin ash, with an ice capacity of 65 pounds. It is lined with galvanized iron, with double thickness of mineral wool, handled up with charcoal sheathing. Although guaranteed in every respect, and well worth $16, this special refrigerator sells for $10.98.

IN THE TRACTION PARKS.

Usual Sunday Crowds Materially Reduced by Bad Weather.

Disagreeable weather kept down the attendance at the traction parks yesterday, although the good music and other attractions drew fair-sized crowds.

At Kennywood Rocereto's band gave two good concerts, the feature being a descriptive number, "A Hunt in the Black Forests." Mr. and Mrs. George Rose did a very clever "rube" act. A big circus band was at Calhoun. Miss Katherine Miley showed that she is a good singer, and Wyman & Garner made their audiences laugh heartily. At Oakwood the Braddock Library band acquitted itself very creditably. On the program with the band were the Princess Chinquilla and Ed. Newell, a team of clever musicians, as well as odd personalities. They live in tents on the park grounds. She is a full-blood Cheyenne, while he is a typical cowboy of the ranges. Southern park's concerts were given by Nirella's Fourteenth regiment band. Miss Lola Haynes sang several songs in a very pleasing manner, and little Lorey Follett, a clever youngster, knows how to handle ragtime songs with the best of them.

The week's bills of vaudeville, free in the evenings, at both Oakwood and Southern, will open this evening.

DECLINE IN PRICES CHECKED BY BUYING

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, June 14.—Wall street has witnessed some genuine improvement during the week. Crop, weather and labor conditions all give a better account of themselves, and what is more to the point, heavy liquidation and violent stock market declines ceased and the tide turned strongly in the other direction. Some men who observed the force of the rebound in prices after the long interval of declines, have expressed surprise that the market did not earlier in the downward career give some more pronounced manifestations of hopefulness or confidence that the recent developments have shown it possessed, though in a latent form. This is one of Wall street's riddles and can be answered only in a general way by calling attention to the well-known fact that a speculative market is ever a market of extremes.

The uncertain and irregular tone which prevailed on the foreign bourses during the week was due to the rise of money rates in Berlin, the fall in the price of coffee and the developments in eastern Europe, the last of which, by the way had no appreciable effect here.

It is idle and foolish for anyone to seek to explain eight months of almost continuous stock market declines to the efforts of the bear element alone. That prices declined is simply another way of saying that some prices had been advanced above the value, present or in the near future, of the various properties. When some securities got low enough to prove attractive they found purchasers, and if they become oversold, the penalty for that is well known. The security market, therefore, has its own corrective at hand for persons who venture too far in either direction. It was not short selling which brought the market down so much as the natural workings of economic laws and spirit of conservatism which is steadily growing among the community. It is unnecessary to repeat in this column the story of the overproduction of securities and the various wild theories of finance to which the market has been treated for many months. The sound and solvent companies will survive, and the old ones which poured out their millions of capital will in time demonstrate whether the money was expended wisely or foolishly. All of the new companies, however, and all the fresh capital created must be tested in the lean years and in adversity before the final verdict is reached.

Throughout the entire business community a spirit of conservatism is reported. Orders for goods for future delivery are very cautiously given, and goods for stock in most lines are purchased only when needed for actual requirements. It is the same spirit which is noted among the railroad corporations in suspending all but necessary construction or proposing to continue only such work as is under way. In turn such a disposition has been reported by the Wabash, St. Paul, Lehigh Valley, Atlantic coast line, various Vanderbilt lines and the Baltimore & Ohio road.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Oats Continue to Advance, While Bran Is Lower—Ham Quotations Move Upward.

While there were increased receipts of hay in the market as compared with the preceding week, there was no falling off in the strength which has dominated the situation and quotations remain as they were last Monday. Sellers feel that they have the situation well in hand and are not disposed to make any concession from ruling figures for either No. 1 or No. 2 timothy, knowing that stocks throughout the country are limited, with crop prospects poor, and there is outlook for a stronger list of prices than is yet quoted. Straw is dull and but little is wanted. Only three cars came in last week, but this amount was enough, and prices are unchanged. Oats are strong and have been steadily advancing for several days, with the close on Saturday much higher than the opening of Monday. Arrivals were heavier than during the preceding week, but demand is very active and good oats do not have to seek far for a purchaser. Far corn is firm, but shelled showed some signs of weakness, although nominal prices are unchanged. Millfeed is easier and both white middlings and bran are offered at lower figures than prevailed a week ago. Rye is firm at the advance of last week and is scarce.

There have been few events of importance in the grocery market for a week, at least so far as they affect prices. Flour is strong and millers are disposed to put prices forward. In this respect they have been followed in the local market by all the jobbers who had not been quoting up to the full limit as set by those who had advanced earlier and the market rules very firm, with no concessions allowed. There is a feeling that quotations should be higher and this may result in further advances in a few days if present conditions hold. Sugar is unchanged and jobbers continue to sell at cost or below. There has been much discussion of the situation during the past few days, but without visible result and the increasing demand is making the loss column of jobbers present a more depressing appearance than it did when there was less call for sugar and consequently less loss. Coffee is quiet and unchanged. There is a steady local call for roasted, but no special activity, and prices are just steady. Reports from primal markets are of unchanged conditions, the new crop being now about all in, and its amount known to be large. There will be no real change in the situation for a while at least. Prices cannot go much lower and there is little probability of an advance. Navy beans are steady at former prices. Canned goods are steady, with quotations same as at the beginning of the week, while the only change in dried fruits was a slight advance in seeded raisins and cleaned currants.

Butter advanced a half cent last Monday and since that time the market has been fairly steady, though not quite so active as it was prior to that time. Cheese is unchanged and dealers claim to believe that the bottom of prices has been reached for the present. Eggs are higher than they were a week ago and very firm, with indications at the close on Saturday favoring further advances. Supplies are limited and dealers secure top figures for good eggs without trouble.

Poultry is still scarce and prices are high. Old fowls are quoted above figures ruling prior to last Monday, while new springers are gradually working lower in price, though still above the range at which they are popular sellers.

Strawberries are not so plentiful as they were a week ago, quality is improved and prices are higher. Blackberries and huckleberries are lower in price. Raspberries, both red and black, are now in the market and in good demand. Currants are occasional arrivals, but are not yet regularly offering. California cherries are lower. A few apricots came in on Saturday. They were of attractive appearance and sold readily. Old potatoes are higher and new are cheaper. New cabbage is scarce and has advanced. Beans have advanced, while peas have just about held their own.

Provision dealers have made a sharp advance in ham quotations.

In the Oil Fields

Oil operators in the lower southwest fields are putting forth every effort to increase their production. The reports of completed wells from all sections show that in the most cases light pumpers are the rule, and in some of the districts once prominent for good producers dusters are now of rather frequent obedirrence. The search for new pools continues, but none is coming to light, and this causes interest to be centered in the newly discovered extensions in the deep sand districts in Wetzel county, West Virginia.

Operators holding leases on the west side of the Pine Grove extension are enthusiastic over the prospects in that quarter. The South Penn Oil Company's test on the old Leonard farm is the best producer and holding up better than 100 barrels a day. The additional producing territory this well brings to the west side of the development will furnish room for active operations for some months, and those interested are losing no time. New rigs have been completed or are building in almost every direction from the Lompher's producer. There are three of the big producing companies, the South Penn, Kanawha and Southern Oil companies, large leaseholders, and there is some rivalry existing in starting new wells, each to make an effort to outdo the other in pushing its initial ventures to completion. In the older part of the extension very little new work is doing, and this is regarded as due to the development of the interior will be held back till the west side has been developed.

Each succeeding week confirms the opinion that the Fordyce district is no longer in the race for new production, despite the fact that operations are fairly active. In the early months of the development of this territory 100 barrels were common, but such is not now the case. A new well with an initial production of 100 barrels a day is the exception, and on the east side, once held in high favor, the initial strikes are small and dusters are conspicuous. The output of this development is declining and there is no longer room to increase it.

The Philadelphia Company made the most important strike of the past week when it drilled in a well on the Sarah Johnson lot, located southwest of Littleton on Camp run, Wetzel county. When drilled into the Gordon pay the well began to flow at 10 barrels an hour, and at the end of the fifth day was holding up at 100 barrels a day. It has not yet been completed, and when drilled deeper may increase its production. Development work in this district now extends over a considerable area, and there is every indication of a volume of new production from this source. The Philadelphia and South Penn Oil companies are the largest holders of territory in this section, and by the end of the month they will have 15 or more wells drilling and starting.

During the early part of the week the South Penn Oil Company drilled in a fine well on the west side of the old Fish Creek district, Marshall county, on the Jacob Standiford farm, that is much better than any of the late ventures in Marshall county. When completed and shot the well started at better than 100 barrels a day, and situated as it is on the west side of developments, would indicate the extension of the producing territory in that direction.

At Belton, southeast of Cameron, there is some speculation as to what will be the final result of the efforts making to develop a Big Injun sand pool. Four small producers have been completed in that locality and there is a little new work starting. The South Penn and Venture Oil companies are the only developers of this territory.

In the lower districts the Hope Gas Company is drilling a number of test wells.

In the old Fairview district, in Marion county, there is a small increase in operations in the fifth sand district. Operators in this district are still hopeful of finding a more prolific fifth sand deposit than has been discovered. The way the old wells held up in production this inspired the belief.

The South Penn Company has a producer on the P. B. Amons farm that is holding up with very great regularity at 120 barrels a day and is now a month old. So far as tested this is the only part of Marion county to furnish oil in paying quantities in the lower formation.

The Gordon sand district in Harrison county in the vicinity of Salem is no longer interesting as a producer. Light wells and dry holes are not comforting to those who are bringing operations to a close in the vicinity of Salem. Last week there was very active development and furnished large producers, Doddridge, Ritchie, Pleasants and Wood show scattered operations, but all are without a new pool. Along Bonds creek, in Ritchie, there is considerable work of an experimental kind, looking for extensions to some of the old Keener sand pools. The one south of Whisky run has been drilled to its outer limits and dry holes are plentiful.

In the Buckeye country the new territory on Rays and Shesta run has more work of the wildcat order starting than any other part of southeastern Ohio. This section contains quite an acreage that looks capable of furnishing a large number of wells, good for 15 or 20 barrels a day in the Big Injun and Squaw sands.

The shallow sand districts in Washington and Morgan counties are supplying a large number of dry holes, and there is a slight falling off in new work.

The tonnage for a Big Lime pool in Monroe county, running northwest from the Koontz development, near Mount Hope, shows decided action as a month ago, when the 16-barrel producer was drilled in on the M. Burkhart farm. Since then three test wells have been completed, and all have fallen to the duster list.

Neither Belmont nor Jefferson county has anything new to offer, in the first named the five 2-barrel Defenbaugh pools down the river and the same is true of the pool near Knoxville, in Jefferson county.

Operators are not making any effort to find new pools in the Ingomar field. In the Burgettstown district, in Washington county, a small extension has been found. R. G. Gillespie completed a well during the week that looks like a 2-barrel producer. Beaver county has more work under way than any other county, but dusters still figure in the reports from that district.

East of Bakerstown, near the Butler-Allegheny county line, the Forest Oil Development Company and the South Penn Oil Company have drilled in a test well on the George Fisher farm that looks to be good for 30 or 40 barrels a day. If this proves true, it will open up a few new locations.

SELLING STEEL BONDS.

Morgan & Co. Said to Be Buying Steel Preferred, Turning It Into Bonds.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(Special.)—It is reported that the Morgan underwriting syndicate is quietly selling the new sinking fund bonds of the United States Steel Corporation in the market and buying preferred stock for conversion into the bonds as fast as sales are made. The bonds are selling between 85 and 86 and the stock is kept depressed to about 81, so that there is a clean profit of about 3 per cent in the transaction.

Members of the syndicate, among whom are the greatest houses in the street, are pleased at the policy being pursued by Morgan & Co. and are not urging their customers to buy the steel stocks. This is keeping the public out and giving the entire market to Morgan & Co. for arbitrage. These same brokers are urging their customers to buy the bonds, thus maintaining the difference in price and insuring their own ultimate profit.

STRONG SERMON TO YOUNG MEN

Baccalaureate Address to Western University of Pennsylvania Graduates.

GIVES SOME GOOD ADVICE

Preaches on "Christian Manliness" and Urges the Young Men to Take Their Place in the Ranks and Fight Manfully for Truth and Right.

Before the graduating class of the Western University of Pennsylvania, numbering 27 young men, the Rev. E. H. Ward, D. D., preached the baccalaureate sermon in St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, Craft avenue and Forbes street, yesterday morning. His topic was "Christian Manliness," and his text was taken from First Corinthians xvi.13, "Quit you like men." Dr. Ward said in part:

The apostle here makes an appeal to the manly instincts of our nature. "Be men," is his exhortation. "What is man?" asks the psalmist. Whatever view we take of his origin, he is a being of great honor and dignity. If we take the account in Genesis as literally true, he is a being created in God's image, and into whom God breathed the breath of His own life. Jesus Christ is the one perfect example of manhood. The old creed asserts that He is of our substance with the Father. Contemporary thought goes further, and asserts that man is of one substance with the Father. It believes the inspired writers were speaking literal truth when they declared: "Now are we the Sons of God." We are "partakers of the Divine Nature." Children of God, and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ. Man's lineage, then, is not only moral, it is divine.

REV. E. H. WARD, D. D.,
Rector of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church.

The whole purpose of life is summed up in that noble hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Nearer not in space, but in moral likeness or character. Michael Angelo said that he could see in every rough block of marble the head of an angel. We have the block of marble given us, and we may fashion out of it a gleaming angel or a hideous satyr. We will notice some elements which must enter into the composition of Christian manliness. First we have love of and devotion to truth. God is the God of truth, and he who seeks truth, in whatever sphere, is so far seeking God. Be ready to follow wherever truth may lead, even though she may call you to leave the "seats of death and sunless gulfs of doubt."

A second element of manliness is righteousness. By this is meant true speech, fair purpose, right dealing between man and man. Right makes might in God's truth; might makes right in the devil's lie. A Christianity which does not speak the truth on all occasions is ounces to the pound is only a plaything for time; it is no part of a soul's outfit for eternity. Purity is strength, impurity is weakness. There is truth in Sir Galahad's words:

"My strength is as the strength of ten Because my heart is pure."

Without courage we can have no real manliness, but we speak now not of physical, but of moral courage. We want courage to step forward when duty calls, though it be to face a thousand bellowing cannon or the blazing fires of martyrdom. Young gentlemen, as you go forth to enter the Arena of Life in the contest for the world's prizes "be men." The world sadly needs men. Take your place in the ranks and fight manfully for truth and right, and when the battle is ended you will receive the victor's crown.

CHILDREN'S DAY OBSERVED.

Churches at Braddock and Vicinity Held Appropriate Exercises Yesterday.

The annual "Children's Day" services were held yesterday in a number of the churches of Braddock and vicinity by the various Sunday schools, taking the place of the regular church service. The Fourth Street Methodist church had an elaborate service in the morning. A chorus of 60 children was under the direction of Mrs. L. M. Beatty. The sacrament of the baptism was administered and in the evening the pastor preached on "The Necessity of Real Religion."

The Second United Brethren church enjoyed an address by the pastor, the Rev. C. C. Miller, in the morning. Other Braddock churches observing the day were St. Luke's Reformed, the First Methodist, First English Lutheran and First Presbyterian churches. The First Baptist and First Congregational churches postponed observing the day until next Sunday.

DEDICATION OF NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The new church building of the Shermandeville Presbyterian congregation was dedicated yesterday by exercises in the morning, afternoon and evening. The morning sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. D. Moffat, D. D., LL. D., president of Washington and Jefferson college, and the dedicatory prayer was offered by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Herbert Heslep. An address was made at the afternoon meeting by the Rev. J. C. Bruce of Crafton on "Neighborly Expectations." Children's day exercises were held in the evening under the direction of William H. Wicks, superintendent of the Sunday school. The members of the session of the church are J. P. Weihar, Dr. C. L. Campbell, William H. Wicks, H. F. Barrett, J. W. German and W. B. Cochran. The trustees are Samuel Vogel, H. H. Stegall, H. E. Jeffries, Dr. H. E. Clark, William J. Sheradan and C. A. Stevenson.

BEAVER FALLS DIVINE IN PITTSBURGH PULPIT

The Rev. J. L. McCartney of Beaver Falls preached a sermon yesterday morning for the Rev. D. C. Martin in the East End Reformed Presbyterian church, his subject being "Slums of Glasgow." After giving his experience of 30 days' work in Glasgow, Mr. McCartney alluded to the poverty and want in our own cities. "But what of the slums of this city?" said Mr. McCartney. "What of the submerged masses at home? There are thousands of drunkards on the steady march to a drunkard's grave. There are scores and scores of mothers' hearts breaking because of brutal treatment from men who are called their husbands. There are multitudes of young men from home who have been drawn into city vice and are surging on, on the way to eternal shame and ruin."

DR. SMITH PREACHES IN EMORY CHURCH

The Rev. Dr. Charles W. Smith, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, occupied the pulpit in Emory Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Arthur D. Mink, D. D. Dr. Smith's topic was "We Walk by Faith and Not by Sight." "We do everything by faith," said Dr. Smith, "and not by sight. That is the natural and logical way of doing things. Yet there is no such thing as faith without cause. We do not ask people to become Christians on faith alone. We give them good reason why they should be Christians. There are people outside of lunatic asylums who have faith of the mind and without cause. Fortunately Christianity differs from that sect."

DR. JAYNE'S SERMON ON "FOLLOWING THE ARK"

At the Observatory Hill Christian church, Allegheny, yesterday morning the pastor, the Rev. John A. Jayne, preached a sermon on "Following the Ark." His text was from Joshua, iii:4: "We Are Pilgrims of Hope." Said Mr. Jayne: "We have left the Egypt of sin behind, have passed over the Wilderness of pain, the Jordan of trial and temptation is before. Just on before, over the river is the land of peace. New experiences constantly environ us. We have not passed this way before. For our guidance we have the ark of God's word, with its facts to be believed, commands to be obeyed, its promises to be enjoyed. With our eyes fixed on that ark and following obediently we will have a successful journey and a triumphant end."

FLAG DAY SERVICES IN SECOND CHURCH

Flag day services were held in the Second Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh, last night. The exercises were attended by Pittsburgh and Allegheny camps of the Sons of Veterans, the Pittsburgh Society of the Sons of the American Revolution and Ladies auxiliary and members of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Rev. S. Edward Young preached a sermon, "Old Glory's Place Among Mankind." His text was taken from Isaiah lxii:10 and 11: "Lift Up a Standard for the People." "Say, Behold Thy Salvation Cometh."

HOPING FOR MORE WATER.

River Not High Enough for Coal Men, but Prospects Are Bright.

Despite all the rain that has fallen in this vicinity during the past two days, the rivermen have been unable to get out any coal. The downfall of Saturday indicated that the river would rise sufficiently to send south several tows of boats, but in this the rivermen were mistaken. Unless more rain falls in the upper portion of the stream no coal can be moved during this rise.

The rivermen were kept busy yesterday making preparations for sending out one of the largest amounts of coal ever shipped at one time. There were 32 steamboats in the first pool ready to take a downward trip. Early in the day the captains were notified to get up steam and prepare for leaving on a minute's notice. The boats were all hitched to fleets. Some of the fleets were made up of barges and others of boats. This was done so that if only a barge stage should come they could be sent down, and should the river permit moving the boats then the larger steamers could start on the southern journey.

Few rivermen were in the city yesterday. Most of them went to St. Louis and points below, where they expected to find sufficient work. This left the local river shippers short of hands, and early yesterday the telegraph wires were put to use in scouring the country for men. They succeeded in getting 100 from Middleton, O., and several more at various places. By noon they were assured of plenty to take out all the coal in the harbor.

It is roughly estimated that 15,000,000 bushels of coal is loaded in the first pool. Barges average 15,000 bushels and boats 26,000 bushels. A boating stage will permit over 300 boats and barges being sent down the river, and should the rise continue a few days nearly twice that amount will be shipped.

The Boaz, which was tied up at Sewickley since the last rise, was able to reach the Pittsburgh wharf this morning, as was also the J. C. Risher, which was held up at Logstown. Both boats are in good condition, and will be among the many who south should a rise occur.

The stage of water at Davis island dam at 9 o'clock last night was 7.4 feet and the river was falling.

STOCK REDUCTION SALE.
Rare Chance to Buy Fine Furniture and Carpets Cheap at Taylor Bros., 932-934 Penn Ave.

Taylor Bros., the old reliable home furnishers, at 932-934 Penn avenue, inaugurate a sale of furniture, carpets and house furnishings today that will doubtless attract buyers from far and near. The firm wishes to make a complete inventory early in July, and for the purpose of reducing their immense stock to a minimum, prices have been cut close to first cost. This means a saving of from one-four to one-third on every article purchased during this great clearance sale.

The opportunity seldom comes to get such wonderful values in brand new, reliable goods. The firm has no old stock or samples to dispose of. Everything is new, origin and up-to-date—the latest patterns in floor coverings, the most desirable styles in furniture of every kind.

Out-of-town people who need house furnishings of any description will do well to make a note of this event, as such wonderful values in dependable furniture, carpets, ranges, etc., have never before been offered. Young folks just starting housekeeping will also find in this sale a grand money-saving opportunity of which they should take advantage. In short, people who want home fixings and buy them before comparing goods and prices at Taylor Bros., do an injury to their own pocketbooks. Full particulars of sale will be found on page 5 of today's Gazette.

MANY CANDIDATES ARE IN THE FIELD

Interest in the Election of Delegates to the General Conference of M. E. Church.

MEETS IN LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Equal Representation by Clergy and Laymen—Pittsburgh Conference to Send Ten Representatives—Important Subjects to Be Discussed.

The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will have its next meeting at Los Angeles, Cal., during May, 1904, and already activities have begun in what promises to be a most spirited campaign for the choice of delegates to it, ministerial and lay. The general conference is a delegated body which meets quadrennially, and is the supreme authority and only legislative body of the denomination, world-wide in its scope. Interesting questions of church policy, and probably the election of a number of bishops, will engage its attention at the coming session, and these things, along with the place of its meeting, give it unusual interest. At its meeting in the year 1900, the laity for the first time had equal representation with the clergy, but that is now a fixed rule of the denomination.

The ratio of representation is fixed at one minister and one layman for each 40 ministers in each annual conference. The membership of the Pittsburgh conference for a number of years has approached, but not quite reached, 200, so it has been entitled to send four of its members, and this gave the laymen a like number of delegates in 1900. The membership has now about reached 200, and unless deaths or transfers out of the conference operate to reduce the membership to less than 200 the Pittsburgh conference and the churches served by its ministers will be entitled to five delegates of each order.

PITTSBURGH CONFERENCE MEETING.

The meeting of the annual conference will be held in Emory church, in North Highland avenue, beginning the second week in October, and at that time the ministers will elect their delegates. On one of the days of that gathering the laymen will have their meeting, each charge in the conference being represented by one delegate, and they will make like choice.

The chief activity thus far is among the laymen, a dozen or more of whom, throughout the conference, are understood to have aspirations to represent it. The ministers vote without nominations, and such work of canvassing as is done comes principally when the body assembles, there being a week of opportunity afforded. The conference is divided into five districts, each under the care of a presiding elder, and it is one of the unwritten rules that the presiding elders are always understood to be candidates. But in recent years there has been a growing sentiment in favor of distributing the honors outside the charmed circle of the eldership, and as a result men have been found in the local pastorates who have been deemed fit to be sent as delegates. It will not be surprising if some of that class shall loom up as prominent candidates on this occasion. Dr. Chas. W. Smith, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, has been sent as one of the representatives of the Pittsburgh conference to every general conference for a number of years, and doubtless will be honored thus again.

MEN WHO MAY GO.

The presiding elders are: Pittsburgh district—The Rev. T. N. Boyle, D. D., Crafton; Allegheny district—The Rev. G. W. Terbush, D. D., Allegheny; McKeesport district—The Rev. J. F. Murray, D. D., McKeesport; Blairsville district—The Rev. S. T. Mitchell, D. D., Aspinwall; Washington district—The Rev. James Mechem, D. D., Wilkinsburg. Some of these have served in past sessions of the general conference.

The lay delegates in 1900 were: Hudson Samson, Pittsburgh, the Sixth avenue funeral director; W. W. Ulerich, Latrobe, county superintendent of schools of Westmoreland county; Albert Gaddis, a business man of Uniontown, and William G. Gleason, a McKeesport real estate dealer. Of these Mr. Samson is in the field as a candidate for re-election, and the others are understood to be willing to go, if chosen, though Mr. Ulerich is in ill health and absent from home.

Other candidates for lay delegate who have announced or been announced by their friends, include the following in the Pittsburgh district: J. W. Kinnear of Lincoln Avenue church, an attorney; Samuel Hamilton of the Emory church, the Fifth avenue music dealer; Capt. John A. Wood of the West End church, a retired coal operator; W. M. Cramp of Crafton church, a music dealer.

ALLEGHENY DISTRICT CANDIDATE.

In the Allegheny district A. M. Schoyer of the Calvary church has been brought out by his friends, and is considered a promising candidate. He is superintendent of the northwest system, Pennsylvania lines. Other candidates in the district are Harvey Henderson of the North Avenue church, an attorney; A. G. Williams of Butler, a member of the state senate; Winfield S. Moore of Beaver, an attorney.

In the McKeesport district the first to announce was R. T. Wiley, editor of the Elizabeth Herald. He has been secretary of the conference lay association since its organization at Johnstown four years ago, and thus has a wide acquaintance among the laymen. B. F. Hopwood, Uniontown attorney, at present president of the same association, is spoken of in connection with the general conference election, and C. M. Galley, a Mt. Pleasant business man, is a recently announced candidate.

The Washington district has thus far but one avowed candidate, in the person of Capt. J. B. Donley, an attorney of Waynesburg, and so far as can be learned no one has been announced in the Blairsville district. The delegates are not elected by districts, a majority vote of the whole conference being necessary to elect, and they may be chosen without regard to geographical distribution. It is yet some months until the assembling of the meeting which will elect the delegates, and it will not be surprising if other candidates come to the front in the meantime. The congregations are now electing their delegates, a little more than half of the whole number having already been chosen. While ordinary political methods on the part of the candidates are not considered in good form in these contests, it is recalled that the winning candidates will need hustling in their behalf, and the partisans of some of them are already active.

BRICKLAYERS STILL WILLING TO ARBITRATE

Preece Says "Hands Off" to Those Who Are Not Effected.

Thomas R. Preece, who has charge of the Bricklayers' and Masons' International union's local fight against the stone masons, gives out a statement regarding his organization's attitude toward the pending trouble. It reads in part:

To the citizens of Pittsburgh and to those who might be effected by the building industry in this city:

The Bricklayers and Masons International union, locals Nos. 2, 4, and 31, realize the hardships and the loss of money caused by this controversy, but believe it is a matter pertaining only to those directly involved.

The Bricklayers and Masons' International Union of America was organized October 17, 1865. During the many years of the organization, and meeting with the many reverses which all organizations endure during panics and dull times, we have always cared for the wants of both bricklayers and stonemasons. Their wages have been advanced, their hours of toil reduced, so that now the members throughout the United States have so appreciated our efforts towards bettering conditions that they would not sever affiliations with our international organization.

We find that some time ago (on the part of those who seek official notoriety) a movement was started which resulted in bringing together a few stone masons in different localities, and has culminated what is now known as the Jones' union, which membership in the United States is about 1,000, as against 23,000 affiliated with our organization, the B. T. U.

This organization has applied to the American Federation of Labor upon several occasions for a charter. The association, along with others, spent considerable time in ascertaining the exact number of members and also ascertained the exact number of members that wished to hold their affiliation with the B. M. I. U. Knowing it is their duty to bow to the will of the majority, the Federation refused to grant the small gathering of men a charter.

In conclusion, we wish to state that the B. M. I. U. has built up a majority through the system of arbitration and conciliation. We have always stood willing to submit the differences existing between ourselves and the dual organization to a fair board of arbitration. We stand now the same as we did some weeks ago, ready to submit the entire matter either to a board of arbitration or to one man, if he be a national character in a labor organization. We will abide by the will of either.

TURNED DOWN STRIKE FUND PROPOSITION

Bridgeworkers Disregard Manufacturers' Move to Wipe Out Unionism.

The Bridge and Structural Ironworkers Union will not create a strike fund. This was virtually decided upon yesterday by Local No. 3 voting against the proposition. The plan contemplated was to assess members $2 for 20 months. Local No. 3 has 2,000 members, and at the special meeting yesterday afternoon it was almost unanimously agreed that a strike fund was unnecessary, owing to the fact that their scale had been signed for two years by the American Bridge Company, which is the largest concern of its kind in the world.

The meeting was held in the local's headquarters, No. 516 Wylie avenue. About 500 members were present, many of whom had voting credentials of other members. When the plan was placed before the members at the meeting nearly every person rose to speak. The discussion was a lively one. The few that were in favor of it were recipients of more questions than they could answer in a month. The chairman had the greatest difficulty in maintaining order, and it seemed impossible for him to prevent less than two speaking at the same time.

The special meeting was the result of action taken by the executive committee of the union held in New York last week. It met to take measures against several minor questions, where the men were alleged to have infringed upon the scale. It turned out that the manufacturers were guilty in some instances of disregarding the rules of the agreement.

After reading reports the committee was induced to believe that the manufacturers were planning to organize an association to wipe out the union. Heading the association is said to be the American Bridge Company. There are 11 other bridge companies interested in the move. It is to be known as the Bridge Erectors' association. The executive officials of the bridge workers are under the impression that Pittsburgh will be the first place the Bridge Erectors will wage a fight and considered it proper to warn the members and induce them to prepare for the battle.

METROPOLIS CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY OF THE FLAG

NEW YORK, June 14.—(Special.)—Flags will tomorrow be unfurled over the public buildings of the city and private houses in honor of the anniversary of the birthday of the Stars and Stripes, for it was on June 14, 1777, that congress enacted the law which created the national emblem. Although the anniversary fell today, the American Flag association has sent out circulars asking that tomorrow be celebrated.
